ACHIEVE MAXIMUM POTENTIAL.

UNLOCK THE HIDDEN VALUE IN YOUR COLLECTION.

Classics Incorporated has been an innovator in all aspects of comic preservation for nearly a decade, providing a worldwide client base with the highest level of quality and professionalism in the industry. Because of an extensive and ongoing dedication to research and development, we remain on the cutting edge, always offering the finest services available anywhere.

For years, Classics Incorporated has helped clients find something we call "hidden value" in their collections. The hidden value usually lies within mid and high grade copies exhibiting small defects, such as dents, impacted corners, light creases, spine rolls, warping, and folding, that can be corrected with safe, non-restorative techniques. Removal of the right defects can dramatically improve the appearance of your comics, and possibly increase the grade and value without the book becoming "restored." We have invested thousands of hours researching and developing these techniques, and our track record is unparalleled.

Through it all, our number one concern is the preservation of comics. We place full emphasis on assuring every technique is safe for the short and long term. Comic books remain one of the few representations of pure American culture, and must be protected for generations to come.

Visit classicsincorporated.com or call us for more information on this revolutionary service, and unlock the hidden value in your collection today.

"I got the books back from CGC today. The AM #6 came back the same, 9.2 with white pages. That's fine with me, because the book looks better with the defects taken out. Now the big news. The AM #7 went from 6.5 to 9.0! That makes it the highest graded copy, and I couldn't be happier. You do great work."

Jeff Delaney

"I really appreciate the speed and professionalism with which Matt does his work. I had sent him a number of books. He advised me to leave them as they are. Now that's a real professional; advising what was in my best interest that would result in less work/money for him."

Gary Rehfeldt

"Thanks very much for your good work on my books. The Weird Science #11 came out beautifully! The value is more thanks to you...it was really worth it to me to get these books fixed."

Bob Overstreet

CGC has made a commitment to exceeding the market's unique requirements while also applying its management's experience and reputation for integrity in certification. CGC's attractive and durable tamper-evident holder utilizes cutting edge technologies to provide the best protection for your books. The holder is slim and lightweight, making for easy storage and transportation. Its front and top labels display comprehensive information about the book and its grade.

"...probably the most important event [in our hobby] to date was the arrival of comic book certification with CGC. The technical grade applied to each comic has become the standard used for buying and selling."

Benefits of CGC Grading

- ▲ CGC has an established and trusted grading standard. CGC's grading team includes the most experienced and recognized experts in the field.
- ▲ CGC provides an expert restoration check for each book submitted. When detected, restoration is noted on CGC's purple label.
- ▲ Better protection for your comic books. The CGC holder is made with state-of-the-art materials and is designed to meet the needs and demands of comic book collectors.
- ▲ Holder can be safely opened. The CGC holder is designed to allow optimal visibility of the comic book, while still keeping it safe from the elements. It can be opened carefully, allowing safe removal. We strongly recommend you call for instructions on the proper way to open the CGC holder. Due to the fragile nature of comic books, we also recommend immediate recertification.
- ▲ Access to the Message Boards. Talk to the experts and collectors who have similar interests to yours. Do you have a question about a rare piece? Ever wondered who's collecting what? Maybe you want to share a bit of interesting information? Speak out on the Message Boards, get your answers and become a more knowledgeable collector today!
- ▲ Access to the Comic Population Reports. A comprehensive database that lists submitted items graded by our companies. Watch for the updates and see the trends shift week-by-week.

Why Sell???

Why Sell Your Best Stuff to William Hughes' Vintage Collectables?

I PAY THE MOST, BECAUSE I GET THE MOST!!

Yes, you read correctly, I will usually pay the most for a quality vintage COMIC BOOK, MOVIE POSTER or BASEBALL CARD because I can usually get the most for these items through my vast network of associates and customer list of thousands of active buyers. I also sell many items "outside the hobby" to people that don't care what price guides say and who don't want to bid in auctions.

When nobody thought it was possible...I put the sale together for the highest price ever paid for a comic book – Marvel Comics #1 = $350,000

When nobody thought it was possible...I got a World Record price for an original Frankenstein movie poster - $235,000 (just after it had appeared in two public auctions within a few months of each other and sold for $155,000 and $189,750 respectively)

When nobody thought it was possible...I was able to sell the original interior art to X-Men #1 for a price well over $200,000 (the exact price cannot be revealed, per buyer's request).

When nobody thought it was possible...I sold a Cracker Jack Ty Cobb baseball card for $100,000, which at the time was the most a single baseball card had ever sold for! And this was before slabbing!

I Am Up To The Challenge! I Will Do My Very Best To Pay Your Ultimate Desired Price, Just Try Me First.

Why Consign???

Why Consign to William Hughes' Vintage Collectables?

There are actually a number of sound reasons why consigning to W.H.V.C. may be the best way to maximize the value of your treasures. Here are a few:

Experience: I have been a regular face "on the scene" in at least eight of the hottest hobbies for many years now – *Comic Books * Movie Posters * Baseball Cards * Sports Memorabilia * Non-Sports Cards * Disneyana * Music Memorabilia * Hollywood Memorabilia ***

I am a "Senior Advisor" to the Official Comic Book Price Guide by Robert Overstreet and still continue to gather and submit data for the new edition each year.

I am "Charter Member #11" of CGC's (Comics Guaranty, LLC) authorized group of dealers and have been one of their biggest submitters over the years.

I've been a guest columnist in various hobby publications over the years and have given too many television, radio and newspaper interviews to list (or even remember).

I was hired as the first consultant to PSA (Professional Sports Authentications), at an embryonic stage of the company's history, to define and implement their 10-point grading scale and to enlist collectors and dealers to the certified baseball card concept. I personally graded and encapsulated the "Most Valuable Baseball Card in the World", ultra-rare 1909 T-206 Honus Wagner card that was once owned by hockey Hall-of-Famer Wayne Gretzky, presently valued at around $2,000,000.

I was instrumental in putting the deal together between Greg Manning Auctions & Butterfields auction houses and the 'Rock' band "Kiss" for the sale of the vast majority of their career-collected memorabilia. The 2001 Los Angeles auction did approximately $1,600,000.

I was also instrumental in the deal that brought the Academy Award winning actor, Nicolas Cage's comic book collection to the auction block. The October 2002 auction in Dallas brought nearly $1,700,000.

I put the deal together for the buyout of World's Finest Comics by Greg Manning Auctions and the subsequent sale of much of the same inventory to 'The Mint' for approximately $2,400,000.

On behalf of GMAI, I bought the fabled collection of Jack Kirby original comic art from long-time collector Tony Christopher, which consisted of over 900 pages of Kirby art that included some of the earliest and most important known Silver-Age Marvel pages as well as other fabulous original art by Steve Ditko, Neal Adams, Bill Everett and others. Purchase price $1,100,000.

I've bought, sold and traded collectibles in every conceivable way, including through trade shows, my own auctions, live and telephone, and auctions that I've conducted for other "houses". In all, I have been involved in the retailing, wholesaling and auctioning of over $30,000,000 worth of collectibles over a span of 31 years.

RUSS COCHRAN'S COMIC ART A U C T I O N

All characters ©2004. All rights reserved.

Russ Cochran's Comic Art Auction

started in 1973 with the publication of his illustrated art catalog, Graphic Gallery. Soon after that, it became the main source of comic strip and comic book art, as well as paintings by Carl Barks and Frank Frazetta. It is safe to say that Russ Cochran sold more Barks and Frazetta paintings than all the other dealers in comic art combined.

At the same time, auctions were being held for the EC original art, all of which passed through Russ's Comic Art Auction. Dozens of important originals by Hal Foster, Alex Raymond, George Herriman, George McManus, Milton Caniff, and virtually every comic artist have passed through the pages of this auction catalog, finding their way to comic art collections all over the western world.

In all, a total of 13 issues of Graphic Gallery were published, and to date, 67 issues of the Comic Art Auction.

Introduction

About This Book

Welcome to the 35th edition of the most comprehensive reference work available on the history and pricing of American comic books! The Official Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide is respected and used by dealers and collectors throughout the world as their guide to American (and North American) comics. This is not a position we have earned easily or take lightly.

Documenting this rich avenue of American pop-culture history is clearly an organic, on-going process with many vital components. Just as we strive to record everything from major and minor trends to individual items, so do our advisors and regular readers. Such enthusiasts are the driving force behind the growth of this book. Whether supplying photos of rare comics or simply asking the question that gets us looking in the right direction, it is our fellow hobbyists and professionals who are our primary inspiration.

About Values

Values for items pictured in this book are based on the author's experience, consultations with a network of advisors including collectors specializing in various categories, and actual prices realized for specific items sold through private sales and auctions, sales catalogs, mail-, telephone-, and internet bid auctions. The values offered in this book are approximations influenced by many factors including condition, rarity and demand, and they should serve only as guidelines, presenting an average range of what one might expect to pay for the items. In the marketplace, knowledge and opinions held by both sellers and buyers determine prices asked and prices paid. This is not a price list of items for sale or items wanted by the author or publisher. The author and the publisher shall not be held responsible for losses that may occur in the purchase, sale or other transaction of property because of information contained herein. Efforts have been made to present accurate information, but the possibility of error exists. Readers who believe they have discovered an error are invited to mail corrective information to the author, Robert M. Overstreet, Gemstone Publishing, Inc., 1966 Greenspring Drive, Timonium, Maryland 21093 (or e-mail feedback@gemstonepub.com). Verified corrections will be incorporated into future editions of this book.

How Comics Are Listed

Comic books are listed alphabetically by title, regardless of company. It is important to note that the true title of a comic book can usually be found listed with the publisher's information, or indicia, often found at the bottom of the first page. Titles that appear on the front cover can vary from the official title listed inside.

Comics are listed in the following sections: Big Little Books, Promotional Comics, Victorian Age, Platinum Age, and the main section, which is entitled Modern Age. This year, the Guide has added a new age, the Pioneer Age, which helps to more accurately define the progenitors of today's comics. (For some key dates and more insight into comic book Ages, see the chart below and the timeline that runs across the bottom of the next three pages.)

The listings include comic book titles, sequence of issues, dates of first and last issues, publishing companies, origin and special issues are listed when known. Prominent and collectible artists are also pointed out (usually in footnotes).

Prices listed are shown in a variety of grades, including 2.0, 4.0, 6.0, 8.0, 9.0, and 9.2 based on the 10-point scale outlined in this book and fully detailed in The Official Overstreet Comic Book Grading Guide. Some issues may not have prices listed in all categories if the author has not been able to determine if these particular books exist in a specific grade.

Many of the comic books are listed in groups, such as 11-20, 21-30, 31-50, and so on. The prices listed opposite these groupings represent the value of each issue in that group, not the group as a whole. More detailed information is given for individual comic books where warranted, such as publication dates, creators, and significant story and/or character notations.

Most comic books began with a #1, but occasionally many titles began with an odd number. There is a reason for this: publishers had to register new titles with the U.S. Post Office for 2nd Class permits, but the registration fee was comparatively expensive. To avoid this expense, many publishers would continue the numbering on new titles from older, defunct series. For instance, EC Comics' Weird Science #12 (1st issue) was continued from Saddle Romances #11 (the last issue). Captain America #100, for instance, followed Tales of Suspense #99. Sometimes this was done for creative reasons, but in most early instances publishers hoped to avoid the expense of registering new titles. However, the USPS would soon discover the new title and force the publisher to pay the registration fee as well as to list the correct number. As an example, Weird Science continued from #12 through #15. That was followed by #5 after the Post Office correction. Now the sequence of published issues (see the listings) is #12-15, #5-on. This sort of deviation created a problem in early fandom, but this Guide offers a roadmap to these sometimes confusing twists and turns in the publishing history of many comic book series.

New Comic Listings

Every effort is made to incorporate as many new comics into this Guide as possible during the course of a given year. Unfortunately, not all comics released each year may be listed in this book for reasons of space limitation or even the human error of simple oversight. We attempt to list complete information wherever possible, and we encourage readers to contact us with any information that may enhance the accuracy of our listings. We're also interested in review copies of any new comic books that are published.

AGE	YEAR RANGE
Pioneer	1500s-1828
Victorian	1828-1883
Platinum	1883-1938
Golden	1938-1945
Atom	1946-1956
Silver	1956-1970
Modern	1992-Present

In many cases, the market does not assess new comics at a value equal to their cover prices. In some cases, collectors may pay pennies on the dollar for copies of these issues. Nevertheless, since these comics have yet to establish themselves as collectors' items, they are listed at full cover price. Dealers and buyers alike should be aware the demand for many of the recent issues that do attract premium prices is highly volatile, and should act accordingly.

Regarding polybagged comics, it is the official policy of The Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide to grade comics regardless of whether they are still sealed in their polybag or not. If opened, the polybag and its contents should be preserved separately so that all components of the original package remain together. Most polybags degrade rapidly, so for collectors or dealers with large quantities of issues in polybags this is a concern.

Grading

About Grading

Before a comic book's true value can be assessed, its condition or state of preservation must be determined. In all cases, the better the condition of the comic, the more desirable and valuable the book will be. Comic book grading has evolved over the past several decades from a much looser interpretation of standards in the beginning to the very tight professional scrutiny in use by the market today. In recent years, grading criteria have become even tighter, especially in Silver and Bronze Age books, due to their higher survival rate.

Several events have impacted grading over the years. The first has to be the arrival of comic book conventions. Here, collectors could easily compare and discuss grading with dealers. The second major event was the discovery of the Mile High collection in 1977, which showed fandom truly high-grade Golden Age books.

Probably the most important event to date, however, was the arrival of comic book certification with Comics Guaranty, LLC (CGC), which has transformed much of the industry and introduced many die-hard and casual collectors alike to the subtle distinctions involved in grading comic books. For a profile of CGC, please turn to Page 995 in our article section.

The 2002 release of the second edition of The Official Overstreet Comic Book Grading Guide re-established Gemstone Publishing as the purveyors of a grading standard embraced by the vast majority of the comic book collecting community. The Overstreet standards, long relied upon by collectors from the professional to the casual level, describe a method for evaluating the condition of all comic books from the Victorian through the Modern Age.

How To Grade

It is very important to be able to properly grade your books if you are trying to ascertain their value. Comics should be graded from the exterior (the covers) to the interior (the pages) and thoroughly examined before assigning a final grade.

Carefully remove the comic from its plastic bag or Mylar sleeve, if it is stored in one, and lay the comic down on a flat, clean surface. Under normal incandescent lighting, examine the exterior of the comic from front to back, identifying any defects, loss of cover reflectivity or other significant attributes. Check the spine for rusted staples, stress lines, tears, and spine roll.

Check to make sure that the centerfold and all interior pages are still present. The whiteness level of the pages is of major importance in determining the final grade as well. Locate and identify interior defects such as chipping, flaking, possible brittleness, and other flaws.

After all the above steps have been taken, the collector can then begin to consider an overall grade for his or her book, which may range from absolutely perfect Gem Mint condition to Poor, where a comic is extremely worn, dirty and even falling apart.

Numerous variables influence the evaluation of a comic book's condition and all must be considered in the final determination of a grade. Although the grade of a comic book is based upon an accumulation of defects, some defects may be more extreme for a particular grade as long as other acceptable listed defects are absent or less severe. As grading is the most subjective aspect of determining a comic's value - more of an art than a science - it is very important for the grader to take care not to allow wishful thinking to influence what the choice of grade. It is also very important to realize that older comics in high-grade condition are extremely scarce.

including minor creases. Corners may be blunted. Inks are generally bright with a moderate reduction in reflectivity. Stamped or inked arrival dates may be present. Minor foxing. The slightest spine roll may be present, as well as a possible moderate color break. Staples may show some discoloration. Slight staple tears and a small accumulation of light stress lines may be present. Slight rust migration. Paper is cream to tan. Centerfold is mostly secure. Some accumulation of minor bindery/printing defects is allowed. Minor cover wear apparent, with minor to moderate creases. Inks show a significant reduction in reflectivity. Blunted corners are more common, as is minor staining, soiling, discoloration, and/or foxing. Stamped or inked arrival dates may be present. A minor spine roll is allowed. There can also be a 1/4" spine split or severe color break. Staples may show minor discoloration. Minor staple tears and a few slight stress lines may be present, as well as minor rust migration. Paper is tan to brown and fairly supple with no signs of brittleness. Minor interior tears at the margin may be present. Centerfold may be loose.

5.5 FINE- (FN-): Fits the criteria for Fine but with an additional defect or small accumulation of defects that detracts from the book's appearance by a perceptible amount.

5.0 VERY GOOD/FINE (VG/FN): An above-average but well-used comic book. An accumulation of bindery/printing defects is allowed. Minor to moderate cover wear apparent, with minor to moderate creases and/or dimples. Inks have moderate to low reflectivity. Blunted corners are increasingly common, as is minor to moderate staining, discoloration, and/or foxing. Stamped or inked arrival dates may be present. A minor to moderate spine roll is allowed. A spine split of up to 1/2" may be present. Staples may show minor discoloration. Minor staple tears and minor stress lines may also be present, as well as minor rust migration. Paper is tan to brown with no signs of brittleness. Centerfold may be loose. Minor interior tears may also be present.

4.5 VERY GOOD+ (VG): Fits the criteria for Very Good but with an additional virtue or small accumulation of virtues that improves the book's appearance by a perceptible amount.

4.0 VERY GOOD (VG): The average used comic book. Cover shows moderate to significant wear, and may be loose but not completely detached. Cover reflectivity is low. Can have moderate creases or dimples. Corners may be blunted. Store stamps, name stamps, arrival dates, initials, etc. have no effect on this grade. Some discoloration, fading, foxing, and even minor soiling is allowed. As much as a 1/4" triangle can be missing out of the corner or edge; a missing 1/8" square is also acceptable. Only minor unobtrusive tape and other amateur repair allowed on otherwise high grade copies. Moderate spine roll may be present and/or a 1" spine split. Staples may be discolored. Minor to moderate staple tears and stress lines may be present, as well as some rust migration. Paper is brown but not brittle. Minor to moderate interior tears may be present. Centerfold may be loose or detached at one staple.

3.5 VERY GOOD- (VG-): Fits the criteria for Very Good but with an additional defect or small accumulation of defects that detracts from the book's appearance by a perceptible amount.

3.0 GOOD/VERY GOOD (GD/VG): A used comic book showing some substantial wear. Cover shows significant wear, and may be loose or even detached at one staple. Cover reflectivity is very low. Can have a book-length crease and/or dimples. Corners may be blunted or even rounded. Discoloration, fading, foxing, and even minor to moderate soiling is allowed. A triangle from 1/4" to 1/2" can be missing out of the corner or edge; a missing 1/8" to 1/4" square is also acceptable. Tape and other amateur repair may be present. Moderate spine roll likely. May have a spine split of anywhere from 1" to 1-1/2". Staples may be rusted or replaced. Minor to moderate staple tears and moderate stress lines may be present, as well as some rust migration. Paper is brown but not brittle. Centerfold may be loose or detached at one staple. Minor to moderate interior tears may be present.

2.5 GOOD+ (GD+): Fits the criteria for Good but with an additional virtue or small accumulation of virtues that improves the book's appearance by a perceptible amount.

2.0 GOOD (GD): Shows substantial wear; often considered a "reading copy." Cover shows significant wear and may even be detached. Cover reflectivity is low and in some cases completely absent. Book-length creases and dimples may be present. Rounded corners are more common. Moderate soiling, staining, discoloration and foxing may be present. The largest piece allowed missing from the front or back cover is usually a 1/2" triangle or a 1/4" square, although some Silver Age books such as 1960s Marvels have had the price corner box clipped from the top left front cover and may be considered Good if they would otherwise have graded higher. Tape and other forms of amateur repair are common in Silver Age and older books. Spine roll is likely. May have up to a 2" spine split. Staples may be degraded, replaced or missing. Moderate staple tears and stress lines may be present, as well as rust migration. Paper is brown but not brittle. Centerfold may be loose or detached. Moderate interior tears may be present.

1.8 GOOD- (GD-): Fits the criteria for Good but with an additional defect or small accumulation of defects that detracts from the book's appearance by a perceptible amount.

1.5 FAIR/GOOD (FR/GD): Shows substantial to heavy wear. Books in this grade are commonly creased, scuffed, abraded, soiled, and possibly unattractive, but still generally readable. Cover shows considerable wear and may be detached. Almost no cover reflectivity remaining. Book-length creases, tears and folds may be present. Rounded corners are increasingly common. Soiling, staining, discoloration and foxing is generally present. Up to 1/10 of the back cover may be missing. Tape and other forms of amateur repair are increasingly common in Silver Age and older books. Spine roll is common. May have a spine split between 2" and 2/3 the length of the book. Staples may be degraded, replaced or missing. Staple tears and stress lines are common, as well as rust migration. Paper is brown and may show brittleness around the edges. Acidic odor may be present. Centerfold may be loose or detached. Interior tears are common.

1.0 FAIR (FR): Shows heavy wear. Some collectors consider this the lowest collectible grade because comic books in lesser condition are usually incomplete and/or brittle. Cover may be detached, and inks have lost all reflectivity. Creases, tears and/or folds are prevalent. Corners are commonly rounded or absent. Soiling and staining is present. Books in this condition generally have all pages and most of the covers, although there may be up to 1/4 of the front cover missing or no back cover, but not both. Tape and other forms of amateur repair are more common. Spine roll is more common; spine split can extend up to 2/3 the length of the book. Staples may be missing or show rust and discoloration. An accumulation of staple tears and stress lines may be present, as well as rust migration. Paper is brown and may show brittleness around the edges but not in the central portion of the pages. Acidic odor may be present. Accumulation of interior tears. Chunks may be missing. The centerfold may be missing if readability is generally preserved. Coupons may be cut.

0.5 POOR (PR): Sufficiently degraded to the point where there is little or no collector value; easily identified by a complete absence of eye appeal. Brittle almost to the point of turning to dust with a touch, and usually incomplete. Extreme fading may render the cover almost indiscernible. May have extremely severe stains, mildew or heavy cover abrasion to the point that some cover inks are indistinct/absent. Covers may be detached with large chunks missing. Can have extremely ragged edges and extensive creasing. Corners are rounded or virtually absent. Covers may have been defaced with paints, varnishes, glues, oil, indelible markers or dyes, and may have suffered heavy water damage. Can also have extensive amateur repairs such as laminated covers. Extreme spine roll present; can have extremely ragged spines or a complete, book-length split. Staples can be missing or show extreme rust and discoloration. Extensive staple tears and stress lines may be present, as well as extreme rust migration. Paper exhibits moderate to severe brittleness (where the comic book literally falls apart when examined). Extreme acidic odor may be present. Extensive interior tears. Multiple pages, including the centerfold, may be missing that affect readability. Coupons may be cut.

Pedigrees

There are a group of special books, known as pedigrees, that have high cover gloss, brilliant cover inks and white, fresh, supple pages that place them far above other books that might receive the same technical grade. Books from these pedigree collections actually transcend their technical grade. Of these, many collectors and dealers agree that the most important collections are the Mile High (Edgar Church) collection, the San Francisco (Reilly) collection, and the Gaines file copies. They are the most sought after and generally the most well-documented, making it easier to ascertain identity or provenance. Books from these collections all exhibit the extra qualities mentioned above.

This striking difference becomes apparent when comparing two comic books of the same grade, one pedigree and one generic. In most cases, the pedigree book will far outshine the generic one. This is the reason why Mile Highs, San Franciscos and Gaines file copies bring multiples of Guide. Many also agree that a book from one of these collections could very well be one of, if not the, best surviving copies.

To the beginner, it may seem odd that a 9.2 Mile High will bring a higher price than a non-pedigree 9.4, but to the seasoned collector with a good understanding of the hobby and its historical background, it makes perfect sense. The novice collector should understand these facts and acquire as much knowledge as possible about all the other pedigree collections and their place in the market before paying large multiples of Guide for books that are not of pedigree quality.

Preservation & Storage

Comic books were built to last but a short time - utilizing acidic newsprint paper, thin covers, inconsistent inks, occasionally damaging bindery machinery - and bound not for a Mylar snug or a CGC slab but for a child's back pocket and eventually the nearest rubbish bin. Comics were intended as disposable fare, but collectors now apply the most stringent archival regulations on a class of collectible that was ephemeral at best.

Some of the best advice for preserving a comic is simply to handle it carefully. Most dealers and collectors hesitate to let anyone personally handle their rare comics, and it is common courtesy to ask permission before handling another person's comic book. Most dealers would prefer to remove the comic from its bag and show it to the customer themselves. In this way, if the book is damaged, it would be the dealer's responsibility and not the customer's.

When handling high grade comics, always wash your hands first, eliminating harmful oils from the skin before coming into contact with the books. Lay the comic on a flat surface or in the palm of your hand and slowly turn the pages. This will minimize the stress to the staples and spine. In basic handling situations:

Step 1: Remove the comic from its protective sleeve or bag very carefully (more detail can be found in "How to Grade").

Step 2: Gently lay the comic unopened in the palm of your hand so that it will stay relatively flat and secure.

Step 3: Leaf through the book by carefully rolling or flipping the pages with the thumb and forefinger of your other hand. Be sure the book always remains relatively flat or slightly rolled. Avoid creating stress points on the covers with your fingers and be particularly cautious in bending covers back too far.

Step 4: After examining the book, carefully insert it back into the bag or protective sleeve. Watch corners and edges for folds or tears as you replace the book. Always keep tape completely away while inserting a comic in a bag.

Careful handling of an exceptional book can go a long way to preserving its condition for some time to come, but careful storage is also a key element. Comic books must be protected from the elements, as well as the dangers of light, heat, and humidity. This can be accomplished with certain storage methods, but remember: improper storage methods will be detrimental to the "health" of your collection, and may even quicken its deterioration.

Store comic books away from direct light sources, especially florescent light, which contains high levels of ultraviolet (UV) radiation. UV lights are like sunlight, and will quickly fade the cover inks. Tungsten filament lighting is safer than florescent lighting, but should still be used at brief intervals. Remember, exposure to light accumulates damage, so store your collection in a cool, dark place away from windows.

Room temperature must also be carefully regulated. Fungus and mold thrives in higher temperatures, so the lower the temperature, the longer the life of your collection. Like UV, high relative humidity (rh) can also be damaging to paper. Maintaining a low and stable relative humidity, around 50%, is crucial. Varying humidity will only damage your collection.

Atmospheric pollution is another problem associated with long term storage of paper. Sulfuric dioxide, which can occur from automobile exhaust, will cause paper to turn yellow over a period of time. For this reason, it is best not to store your valuable comics close to a garage. Some of the best preserved comic books known were protected from exposure to the air, such as the Gaines EC collection. These books were carefully wrapped in paper at the time of publication and completely sealed from the air. Each package was then sealed in a box and stored in a closet in New York. After over 40 years of storage, when the packages were opened, you could instantly catch the odor of fresh newsprint; the paper was snow white and supple, and the cover inks were as brilliant as the day they were printed. This illustrates how important it is to protect your comics from the atmosphere.

Care must also be taken when choosing materials for storing your comics. Many common items such as plastic bags, boards, and boxes may not be as safe as they seem; some contain chemicals that will actually help to destroy your collection rather than save it. Always purchase materials designed for long-term storage, such as Mylar sleeves and acid-free backing boards and boxes. Polypropylene and polyethylene bags, while safe for temporary storage, should be changed every three to five years.

Comics are best stored vertically in boxes to preserve flatness and spine tightness. If you choose to store your comics on shelves, make sure that the books do not come into direct contact with the shelving surface. Use acid-free boards as a buffer between the shelves and the comics. Also, never store comics directly on the floor; elevate them 6-10 inches to allow for flooding. Similarly, never store your collection directly against a wall, particularly an outside wall. Condensation and poor air circulation will encourage mold and fungus growth.

Ultimately, nothing will prevent the deterioration of a comic book collection, but as examples like the Gaines collection have proven, there are occasions when even unintentionally well-stored comics can avoid the aging process for a considerable length of time. With some care in handling and attention to the materials used for comic book storage, your collection can enjoy a long life and maintain a reasonable condition for years to come.

Cover Bar Codes

Today's comic books are cover-coded for the direct sales (comic shop, newsstand, and foreign markets). They are all first printings, with the special coding being the only difference. The comics sold to the comic shops have to be coded differently, as they are sold on a no-return basis while newsstand comics are not. The Guide has not detected any price difference between these versions. Currently, the difference is easily detected by looking at the front cover bar code (a box located at the lower left). The bar code used to be filled in for newsstand sales and left blank or contain a character for comic shop sales. Now, as you can see below, direct sale editions are clearly marked, both versions containing the bar code.

Comic Book Reprints

Over the years, many publishers have reprinted comic books, from individual stories collected under new covers to entire issues published with facsimile covers that may be indistinguishable from the original. Some did not represent old material but were successive printings generated at the time of an original comic's release to satisfy demand for more copies. Whatever the reason for the reprint, distinguishing a reprint from an original edition can be tricky.

Many such reprints carry a notation somewhere in the indicia indicating that it is a "reprint," or "2nd printing," etc., and perhaps even a later copyright date. Still others even feature a variation in cover coloring or issue number information to distinguish it from the original. Fantastic Four #371, for example, featured an all-white embossed cover in its original printing, but the second printing changed to an all-red embossed cover. In the 1990s, many Marvel reprints sported a gold logo.

Unfortunately, many reprints were never marked as such. For example, a few of the Marvel movie books, such as Star Wars, the Marvel Treasury Editions, and tie-ins such as G.I. Joe, were reprinted and not identified as reprints. The Star Wars reprints have a large diamond with no date and a blank UPC symbol on the cover. Others had cover variations such as a date missing or different colors.

Gold Key and other comics were also sold with a Whitman label. Although collectors may prefer one label over the other, the Guide does not differentiate in price. Beginning in 1980, all comics produced by Western carried the Whitman label.

Recently, DC Comics reprinted many key issues with a gold foil "Millennium Edition" stamp. There is little difficulty in distinguishing the reprint, however, due to the distinctive modern trade dress and border surrounding the original cover art.

Timely/Marvel/Atlas Codes

"A Marvel Magazine" and "Marvel Group" were the designations used between December 1946 and May 1947 for the Timely/Marvel/Atlas group of comics during that period, although these taglines were not used on all of the titles/issues during that time. The Timely Comics symbol was used between July 1942 and September 1942, although again not on all titles/issues during the period. The round "Marvel Comic" symbol was used between February 1949 and June 1950. An early Comics Code symbol (star and bar) was used between April 1952 and February 1955. The Atlas globe symbol was used between December 1951 and September 1957. The M over C symbol (signifying the beginning of Marvel Comics as we know it today) was introduced in July 1961 and remained until the price increased to 12 cents in February 1962. # Comic Book Artists

Many of the more popular artists in the business are specially noted in the listings. When more than one artist worked on a story, their names are separated by a (/), with the penciler first and the inker second. When two or more artists worked on a story, only the most prominent will be noted in some cases. Due to space limitations, only the most popular artists can be listed.

Market Report 2005

2005

SET NEW RECORD PRICES?

by Robert M. Overstreet

The US economy remained steady the past twelve months with the stock market ending the year showing single digit growth. Predictions for 2005 are optimistic with the Dow increasing in the low double digits. Energy and precious metals enjoyed a rally during the year while the comic book market continued to show strong support from investors and collectors all year long. Collectibles of all types were sold through auction houses, from mail order and on the Internet, setting many record prices. As the year progressed, we began to notice a diminishing frequency of high quality comic books being offered for sale. Will this trend continue into 2005?

Certified Comics: The newly certified magazine-size comics continued to pick up steam throughout the year with increased collector demand. Certified comics by Comics Guaranty, LLC continued to penetrate and influence the market. Many dealers now utilize the CGC population reports that point out books that are the highest grade copy; these books generally command premium prices.

Big Little Book Listings:

These listings have been expanded as a result of research on our recently released, full color coffee-table book, The Big Big Little Book Book: An Overstreet Photo-Journal Guide. Our listings now include every variation known in this genre as well as many other related books.

Auction Houses: Last year, Hake's Americana Auctions of York, Pennsylvania was acquired by Diamond International Galleries, located in Timonium, Maryland. Hake's will now operate out of their Timonium offices. Heritage Comics Auctions continued to auction off millions of dollars in comic books, comic art and movie posters last year, giving our hobby more exposure than ever. There are now many dozens of auction houses selling collectibles of all types to anxious buyers throughout the world. What this means is liquidity! More than any time in the past, collectors have many venues for selling their collections quickly.

Record Certified Sales:

The news for 2004 was the sale of a CGC certified 7.5 copy of Superman #1 which went for $250,000! Other important books that sold are: A CGC-certified Walt Disney Comics & Stories #1 in 8.5 brought

David T. Alexander & Tyler Alexander (Cultureandthrills.com)

2004 has been an absolutely fabulous year for selling old comic books. This was our 36th year of continuous operations and without a doubt has been the most spectacular for both buying and selling. The demand for comic books published prior to 1975 has been unceasing. We have noticed the trend of fewer full-time sellers exclusively providing vintage material has continued. The costs of maintaining a large inventory, plus the competition from the larger auction houses, has squeezed many marginal dealers to look for newer types of merchandise to offer their customers. Internet sales have continued to provide a way for collectors to buy and sell, and has placed additional pressure on many dealers. eBay, websites, and other Internet selling areas have hurt some dealers and some conventions.

For the first time in several years we made convention buying trips a priority area for acquisitions. We traveled close to 20,000 miles during the spring and summer and attended most of the major conventions. The overall trend seems to be placing less emphasis on older material at the conventions. A minority of dealers at most conventions are offering older material. Many of the collectors don't seem to want to take the time and expense to attend conventions and would rather buy from the comfort of home over the Internet. This has worked in our favor, as many convention dealers that we have seen this year have been very happy to offer material to us in large quantities at reasonable prices.

Acquisitions: Our buying appetite has not been quenched, although we have obtained many incredible collections during the past twelve months. The biggest group consisted of 70 large boxes of Golden Age comics. The owner had told me he wanted to sell five or six boxes of old comics with many being coverless. I was absolutely astounded to see over 70 boxes of original owner Golden Age comics by genre: superhero, horror, western, science fiction, war, romance, etc. It takes a lot to impress me after 36 years in the business, but this load did it. Exciting would be an understatement. There were even multiples of some very rare issues. The other collections that have come in this year have been pale next to this collection. This is not to say they have been bad, but none of them had the volume of the big load.

The other impressive fact from the year's acquisitions is geographical in nature. For years I could not find a decent original collection in Florida; this year was radically different. The year started out with a run of Superman #1-35 that had been in an Orlando garage for about 30 years; Action #2-60 were also part of this group. We were not all smiles with this one. Heartbreak prevailed as the original owner had disassembled the Action set, saving only the front covers and Superman stories, hoping to someday make them into a bound volume. That would have been a costly book.

A big surprise to us was that several other Golden Age collections were offered to us from Florida owners. Some of the books that came in were: Flash #92, All-Winners #19, Namora #1, Sun Girl #1, and various issues of Phantom Lady, Black Cat, Crimes By Women, Captain America, and other Timely, DC, Atlas, Avon, EC, Fox and Fawcett titles.

The other area of high volume acquisition was in the magazine field. Last year we took the position of Senior Advisor for the second edition of the Old Magazines Identification And Value Guide. This position allowed us to be in contact with many people who wanted to part with their magazine collections. We have obtained tons of material, and as we began to organize and research it, a connection with comic books became apparent. Many top comic artists worked on a variety of magazines. Some of this material has been highly collected for years, additional items have surfaced in the last year that would be of interest to comic collectors. Some of the top comic book artists to work in the magazine field are: Hal Foster, Frank Frazetta, Jack Davis, Matt Baker, George Gross, Jack Kirby, Carl Barks, Bill Ward, Basil Wolverton, Norman Saunders, and George Evans. Don't overlook this area when seeking the work of your favorite artist.

Here is a tip for the astute collector. In the early 1940s, Radio And Television Mirror magazine had a Superman feature each month related to the Superman radio series. Each issue had panels of art accompanying a text adventure story. I have been told that the first print appearance of Lois Lane was in an issue of Radio And Television Mirror. What would be the value of that issue?

Internet vs. Catalog Sales: The volume of people buying on the Internet is huge. Many people who never heard of a price guide, fanzine, or comic convention can now add to their collections from home with a minimum of effort. Thousands have become addicted collectors with the advent of eBay and websites. We have noticed that most dealers have given up on issuing catalogs. Even though Internet activity accounted for over 50% of our sales volume for the first time last year, we still hear from a surprising number of collectors who prefer to order from a catalog. Believe it or not, some people still don't have a computer and don't want one. We will still issue our catalogs several times annually.

Victorian and Platinum Age: We have experienced steady demand and sales in this area. The group of collectors who are actively seeking this material is not large, but it is big enough to absorb all available quality material. We feel that some collectors are hesitant to enter this area because sales data is often not readily available. Very little of this type of material will show up at conventions and it takes dedication to seek it out. Any time you have a chance to get copies of Judge or Puck magazine, do not hesitate, as these appear to have the most growth potential in the short term.

Golden Age: Always popular, fun to own, fun to find, fun to read. The top publisher remains Timely. All issues are in demand, with Captain America leading the way. It seems that every Timely publication will be on someone's want list. As prices increase, there are fewer collectors trying to complete runs; instead they're seeking special issues or popular covers. The most requested issues due to the outstanding cover concepts are Marvel Mystery #46 and #63. The majority of the superhero issues will sell at 100% to 150% of Guide in all grades. Even Timely funny animal and teenage comics are very popular. These types represent the area where many collectors are still trying to complete sets; relative to most Timely titles these appear to be bargains. Millie the Model and all related titles have additional demand from those who collect paper dolls. Atlas comics of the 1950s era were very popular. Horror, romance, western and war issues all were quick sellers at Guide and higher. The Love Romance and Teen-Age Romance titles from the Atlas/Marvel transition era in the early 1960s with Jack Kirby art all went for 5 to 8 times Guide in mid-grades.

DC comics will never see a slowdown in popularity. Many collectors are driven to pick and choose among their favorite issues as very few can afford to try to complete sets. Increased demand was seen for Mr. District Attorney, Gangbusters, Sensation and Wonder Woman. These all sell at above Guide in all grades. Some Wonder Woman issues have sold at 5 times Guide in mid-grades. Funny animal, teenage and romance all had increased demand. DC war comics were strong sellers at around Guide. A few key and minor key issues of Our Army At War constantly bring 3 to 5 times Guide in any grade.

Fiction House comics continue to be strong sellers, as do the pulps published by Fiction House. Jumbo is the strongest comic book followed closely by Planet Comics. In the pulp area, Jungle Stories and Planet Stories lead the way.

Western Comics: Demand has actually increased in the last year for cowboy material. We feel that this demand is fueled by nostalgia. A lot of previous non-collectors have discovered the road to finding their childhood treasures through Internet access. B-movie and TV-related comics have once again become hot items. Dell and Fawcett are the top sellers here. Prices are mostly above Guide levels as this Internet-driven collector is often unaware of any price guides; they buy based on what an item is worth to them. Roy Rogers and Hopalong Cassidy are the leaders here. Atlas westerns are very popular, particularly those with Joe Maneely covers. Joe did highly detailed western covers that almost have a surreal fantasy element to them. How did he come up with the concepts for all those outfits and gun belts?

Disney Comics: These have had a resurgent demand. The majority of Disney material that we ship now goes outside the US. Believe it or not, most of the issues we sold in the last year went for above Guide prices.

Archie Comics: Pre-Archie MLJ issues are good movers. The early Archie appearances are almost impossible to find.

Archie #1 was the most requested Golden Age book last year. Archie comics have taken on a life of their own and many people want to live that life. Keep sending those want lists.

Harvey Comics: Richie Rich is king here; we received a huge collection of Richie Rich comics during the year. The previous owner was a fanatic collector and had kept his comics since childhood and added to the collection constantly up to the week of the sale. This impressive group had all the key issues and tons of multiple copies. The collector did not care how many multiples he had and bought any Richie Rich comic that he saw for sale.

Pulp Magazines: We were able to add substantially to our pulp library; we picked up nice runs of detective and aviation titles. We had an almost complete run of Spider pulps that sold as individual issues on eBay; most went in the first week they were offered. High grade Shadow pulps were the other highlight in the incoming pulp department.

Silver and Bronze Age: Spider-Man is the leader, closely followed by X-Men. Marvel volume tops DC. Certainly that is not a revelation to a seasoned collector. Bronze Age continues to impress us. We suggest that you buy any 20-cent cover

Original Art: Demand has grown. We have trouble keeping significant or even mediocre pieces of DC or Marvel art. Our big surprise has been the demand for production art. We have sold tons of color guides, preliminary covers and comic story scripts. If it has anything to do with the production of a comic book, collectors want it. As most of these items are one of a kind pieces of art, we feel the values will escalate in coming years. Comic books are heavily computer generated now, so this past era hand done production art will continue to be sought after by collectors and historians alike.

Dave Anderson (Want List Comics)

Going Up: As I have mentioned in previous reports, pre-hero comics – specifically those published from 1933-38 – have risen very little if at all in the past few years. Although these Platinum Age books are extremely hard to find, especially above 6.0, they are consistently held at a static level. I don't expect an increase the size of Gobbledygook #1, but a little respect for the 'founding fathers' of an industry would seem appropriate.

Going Up, Part 2: No decreases come to mind in the area in which I specialize. Superhero Golden and Silver Age are still the places to be over all for the greatest percentage increases. Each year these books become rarer as they are buried forever in personal collections while at the same time the number of collectors and investors increases and demand seems unending.

Amazing Spider-Man is the leader of both the Silver and Bronze Ages.

Stephen Barrington (with Michael Haller and John Schmidt)

The 2003-04 fiscal year saw moderate gains across the board but didn't appear to reach any record levels locally. Even the 2004 San Diego International Comic Con had a different feel to it. The Mobile, Alabama area was adversely affected by Hurricane Ivan in September but comic sales still went on; some things are stronger than nature. This area also saw the loss of a major comic book store, causing the remaining two shops to see big increases in new sales.

New DC Comics: After starting this year surprisingly slow, DC has come on like a hurricane by blowing away the competition with what makes comics truly great: beautiful artwork and gripping stories. Sales have grown quietly but steadily throughout the year. DC has seen big gains overall with Identity Crisis and Jim Lee's run on Superman affecting all of the Man of Steel's titles. Michael Turner, the man behind Aspen and Soulfire, has joined Lee at the top with his unparalleled penciling of another huge title, Superman/Batman. The title has shot to the top in sales for DC with back issues hard to keep in stock. This, along with new teams, on Action and Adventures of Superman has brought Superman back into the fold with a vengeance. The biggest hit of this year is the seven-issue mini-series Identity Crisis. This is what I mean when I said gripping stories. Brad Meltzer and Rags Morales have combined to captivate comic readers and non-comic readers with his "whodunit" tale involving some of the greatest comic book icons of all time, while Morales adds a 'days gone by' style of artwork that reminds fans of the great artists such as Steranko and Kubert. These events, along with the long awaited comeback of Hal Jordan as the Green Lantern, have caused a major panic for their main competition.

Batman still enjoys solid sales but his supporting titles are a bit off. JLA and JS4 continue to be strong, as well as Teen Titans. Their sales are beginning to rival Marvel's X-titles. Back issues of Teen Titans are very strong. Vertigo sales are hit and miss but have never been extremely big in this area. Green Arrow, Smallville, Flash, Plastic Man, Wonder Woman, Losers, Losers, Human Target and Fallen Angel are pretty much middle of the road sellers and in some cases just marginal.

New Marvel Comics: Marvel's X-titles still enjoy strong sales with Uncanny, Astonishing, X-Men, New X-Men, X-Force and Ultimate X-Men doing very well. Wolverine is still a super seller with Cable/DeadPool picking up steam after a slow start. The Spider-Man titles are a mixed bag with Amazing, Spectacular and Ultimate doing very well while the remainder – Marvel Knights, Marvel Age etc. – is marginal at best. Fantastic Four seems to be dragging but Daredevil, Iron Man and Hulk are steady. Other Marvel titles are rather stagnant, including Punisher, Marvel Knights 4, Spider-Girl, Emma Frost, Alpha Flight and She Hulk. Captain America and Cap and the Falcon are embarrassing when it comes to sales. Mary Jane was an out and out flop, as was Identity Disc. It's too early to tell what kind of impact Marvel's relaunch of its major titles will have on the market. Iron Man looks promising with Warren Ellis handling the scripts. Marvel's relaunches are getting to be tiresome.

Even though Marvel is out of bankruptcy, their status as one of the "big two" has become a little less intimidating and credible. Relaunches, returns, cancellations, and more X-titles have plagued them this year, and it's hard to see how they still take up basically half of the sales chart each month. The opinion of many comic fans is that this is the only way Marvel can compete with DC's success. Sales, though, still tell the tale, as though Marvel is trying to recapture the glory they enjoyed in the early 1990s by offering new overrated multiple covers again. Only time will tell whether their decisions will come back to haunt them or give them a boost.

Archie Comics: Sonic The Hedgehog is Archie's biggest seller, selling as well as DC's and Marvel's middle titles. Back issues are impossible to keep in stock. The rest of the Archie line is almost nonexistent when it comes to new sales.

IDW: Quickly becoming the new Chaos!, these guys have done quite well by producing good horror stories and selling out of these low print books, but fans will eventually get tired of the $3.99 price tag per issue. That aside, many of their properties, like 30 Days of Night and some others, have been offered up for a shot at the big screen.

Image: While Image plods along with too many titles, Spawn still holds its own and could see an upsurge with its recent restructuring. The Walking Dead is the most talked-about book from Image, with this sleeper catching quite a few people off guard. Robert Kirkman's tale of the zombie holocaust and its survivors has a realistic feel to it.

Silver Age: Batman, Detective, Justice League of America and Wonder Woman lead the pack for DC when it comes to issues from the Silver Age. All Superman family titles are slow as are DC's other core books, including Green Lantern, Atom,

Flash and World's Finest despite the success of the Superman/Batman series. Off-beat titles such as Metal Men, Sea Devils, Challengers of the Unknown and Rip Hunter,

Superman/Batman with covers and art by Michael Turner is a top seller. (#10 shown)

Time Master are dead in the water. The “Dial H For Hero” House of Mystery issues don’t even get a casual glance anymore. Some other fine books constantly overlooked are Gold Key’s Magnus Robot Fighter and Doctor Solar as well as the Charlton Steve Ditko’s Captain Atom and Blue Beetle issues. On the Marvel front, it’s Spider-Man hogging all of the action. Anything from the 1960s is usually snapped up while the rest are hit and miss at best. Tales of Suspense, Tales To Astonish, Fantastic Four, Avengers, Hulk and Captain America don’t even sell well in high grade. X-Men issues still sit around for months at a time. The exceptions are key issues and very early numbers. Dell Comics in low to mid-grade sell well at 50 percent of Guide as do other miscellaneous companies from the 1950s. Oddball 1940s comics in the same grades are steady movers. Classics Illustrated sell every now and then as do movie cowboy titles.

Bronze/Copper/Modern Age: Comics from these periods are still very plentiful in all grades. With the exception of a few key issues, these comics are very affordable with a lot of dealers willing to cut the prices to move them. X-Men from this period are for the most part still overpriced and difficult to sell at Guide. X-Men and Spider-Man issues sell very well in the dollar boxes due to the residual effects of the recent movies. As usual, quarter boxes are a big hit with issues going back to the early ‘70s winding up there. If the issue is not high grade, it’ll wind up in the cheap section.

eBay: Today’s view of eBay is ever changing. While there will always be high-priced CGG comics for the extremely wealthy to purchase as a comic collector or to invest, the common man has found eBay to be an excellent source of obtaining current issues. Has your local shop received too many damaged books for a certain title and you didn’t obtain your copy? Get it on eBay. Did your local shop not receive that variant cover you have been waiting months for? Get it on eBay. The number of comic book dealers increases day by day, which means there are more dealers who have little or no experience in the business. Some do note they are not professional comic dealers or graders. Most of these Internet sellers grab Overstreet grading and price guides for reference and then try to start selling. When it comes to getting a decent price on comics, it’s still a free-for-all. It always depends on who’s looking for a certain book and always what somebody is willing to pay. All of us have experienced many comics that went for over Guide one week and for $5 the next.

San Diego: With 80,000 in attendance, the San Diego Con continues to grow; in 1999, there were 50,000 attending. As usual, the convention was jam-packed with excellent guests from every spectrum of the medium. Exhibits, panels and other features kept one scurrying throughout the show. The dealer room was somewhat different this year with many new small-time merchants setting up; unfortunately this was not a good thing for the most part. Many of these new dealers set up with the thought of getting top dollar for their middle-of-the-road books. ‘Hey, this is the San Diego Con; we can make a fortune regardless of what we have.’ Wrong. Even the well-established dealers were hurting while other big-name sellers showcased their wares with over Guide prices. But there were a lot of bargains to be found.

This was the first year I (MH) attended Comic Con in San Diego. I was blown away by the sheer size of this convention and the mass of humanity that comes along with it. By the end of the convention I was a little bit weary of the atmosphere. It didn’t seem as upbeat as I would have expected. DC was its usual powerful self, bringing in all of their heavy hitters including Jim Lee, Brad Meltzer and Matt Wagner. Marvel was non-existent except for several panel discussions. Their major announcement for the convention was the exclusive contract signing of Robert Kirkman. IDW, TokyoPop, Image, Dreamwave, Devil’s Due and of course Star Wars were all represented strongly.

As far as selling goes with dealers, it was fast and furious; alas the furious part came when collectors saw the prices for high grade comics. Nearly every core issue of any title including Batman, Superman, and Spider-Man were easily double to triple Guide, and by the end of the convention, dealers were scrambling to make sales on these items. There were also plenty of current issues to be obtained and even issues coming the week before were marked up by 50%. At the end of the convention, many dealers were offering anywhere from 50-75% off all their books except for key Silver Age issues.

The San Diego convention is the one every comic fan should attend at least once in their lifetime and I can guarantee if they go that first time, they will want to attend every year. This year’s convention allowed me to meet new dealers, some of my favorite artists and writers, and make several friends in the comic book industry. I was even sitting against a wall reading a few Spider-Man comics when all of a sudden Stan Lee walks by and catches me reading and tells me “Thanks for reading, True Believer!” Now if that’s not worth the price of admission, I don’t know what is.

Michael Browning

The law of supply and demand ruled the market this year, which could be called the Year of the Comic Book Variant. If it was even a little bit tough to find, it was expensive to buy. Several retailer premium variants skyrocketed and made lots of dealers very happy – and made them lots of money, an Amazing Spider-Man printing error cover was discovered, and an old line of variants were unearthed. All in all, it amounted to a lot of cash spent by completists to get books that were tough to find and very hot.

An Amazing Spider-Man #149 red cover error edition was discovered. This variant was printed without the cyan part of the CMYK (cyan, magenta, yellow and black) printing process, causing several of the cover colors to be drastically different. The regular cover has a green Jackal standing atop a green-suited Ned Leeds, with Spider-Man fighting a look-alike

Spider-Man clone. The error edition has a yellow Jackal standing atop a yellow building overtop a yellow-suited Ned Leeds. The logo on the error edition is red on pink and the corner-box Spider-Man is standing in a red on pink costume in front of a yellow circle. The regular cover has the correct-colored Spider-Man with a green circle behind him. One Spider-Man's costume – the one swinging from above – has a purple look to it on the regular cover, while the variant edition is red on pink. The other Spider-Man, coming from the bottom of the page, is wearing a red and grey costume on the error edition. Also, lettering on the book that is done in green on the regular edition is yellow on this edition.

This is an error variant and not a sun-faded comic. Several collectors have looked at the book and confirmed that it is indeed a manufacturer's error edition that was probably done at the start of the print run, with most of the error copies probably thrown in the trash. This book is definitely rare and is similar to the Fantastic Four #110 color variant edition in that both have manufacturer's error covers.

Last year's completist craze started off with a couple of high-priced sales of two trade paperbacks. A Man of Steel raffle edition, given away by DC Comics as a contest prize in 1987 after the mini-series was released, sold for $750 on eBay. The closing price was $1,000, but the buyer convinced the seller to sell him the book for $250 less than the closing bid. Another copy was traded for $750 in original art not long after the first copy sold. About 10 copies of this book surfaced during the year. At first, no one knew a lot about them, because the Guide had two listings for the same book. Now, we know that this was a trade paperback collection of all six issues, rebound under one generic cover and given away to raffle winners and retailers written in on the winner's entry forms.

A similar trade paperback collection, the Diamond retailer seminar copy of Blind Justice reprinting Detective Comics #598-600, was sold for $500 cash and $250 in trade. This was given out in 1989 to retailers attending the Diamond seminar. Only three copies of that book surfaced online. Another giveaway at that Diamond retailer seminar was a trade paperback collection of the Todd McFarlane Spider-Man "Torment" storyline. A copy of that book sold for nearly $50 online. All three of these trade paperbacks are very tough to find and almost never come up for sale online or in stores.

The big sellers of 2004 were the variant covers and retailer premiums from DC Comics. A white-cover Ultimate Spider-Man #1 graded at 9.8 sold for $1,325. Two other 9.8s of the same book sold for $1,050 and $700. Two DC Comics RRP's, Superman #204 and Identity Crisis #1, both in CGC 9.8, sold for $1,849.95 each. Raw copies of the Superman #204 RRP with the Jim Lee sketch cover sold for $409.87, $580.05, $495 and $409.87; all were NM. Raw copies of Identity Crisis #1 RRP's sold for $405, $500, $499.95, $495, $429.95 and $406.01; all were NM. An older variant, the Walmart-distributed, second print Spider-Man #1 Gold with the UPC symbol, sold in 9.6 for $325. A copy of the scarce Ultimate Spider-

Man #3 pink manufacturer's error did not sell at $1,999. Last year, three copies of this book surfaced.

DC Comics, Marvel and Archie all produced a line of variants that were sold to card, specialty and novelty shops in 1987 under a licensing agreement with SoMuchFun! Inc., which produced "Classic" comics in bagged sets of three. These comics were second printings of random Archie, DC and Marvel comics that were reprinted with a "Classic" logo under the regular logo. Some had different covers altogether and all were pre-packed in bags of three and sold at a discounted price. The SoMuchFun! Inc. variants are much like the Whitman DCs of the 1970s in that they were, in many cases, the original covers and comics with only slight differences. But while the Whitmans were all first printings, the SoMuchFun! variants are all second prints. So far, a listing of the SoMuchFun! Inc. books has not been completed. There was no rhyme or reason to the comics that were printed. The books were randomly picked by each respective comic company and were reprinted with changes made to the original covers and packaged to sell to a non-comics audience through gift stores for only a year before the project was abandoned. The print runs were 5,000 copies each, according to the former owner of the company, Steve Lishansky. A Justice League #217 and a Batman #401 were traded for $100 each not long after the variant line's discovery. A Superman #161 in VG sold for $15.

Other SoMuchFun! Inc., variants that were found are a G.I. Joe, a Real American Hero #63 (Marvel), an Uncanny X-Men #221, a Fantastic Four #306, a Man of Steel #1, an Amazing Spider-Man #292, a Star Trek #6 (DC), a Betty and Veronica #289 and an Archie #282. Many of the comics had the same covers as their original printings with the exception of the word "Classic" located somewhere on the front cover, usually near the logo. The location of the word "Classic" is, on some of the comics, in different places. Some have the word under their front cover logo; others had "Classic" in the banner atop their covers. Unlike the Marvel and DC "Classic" editions whose indicia read the same as the regular editions with the exception of a note saying "Second Printing," the Archie indicia reads "Archie Classic Comics." The last line says "Distributed by SoMuchFun! Inc., Phoenix Street, Shirley, MA 01464."

The Batman and Justice League of America "Classic" editions have variations on their covers that go beyond just the addition of the "Classic" logo. DC "Classics" used a different style of lettering than did the Marvel and Archie "Classics." DC's reprints used yellow block-style lettering, where Marvel and Archie used solid black lettering. The Justice League of America Classic has a completely altered cover and "Classic" under the JLA's logo. Most have the logo of the company where the UPC symbol would have been.

Each comic apparently was priced at $1.25, an increase from their original cover price. The books are fairly scarce due to their low print runs. The remaining stock of pre-packaged SoMuchFun! variants were sold with other leftover inventory from SoMuchFun! Inc. after the company folded in 1992.

This year was also a big year for back issues of Valiant Comics, which keep getting hotter and hotter, thanks in large part to CGC and collectors who know these are truly great comics. Several VALIANT (spelled all in caps, as Jim Shooter told me) comics saw large price hikes this year. A Chaos Effect Alpha Red, which received a CGC grade of 9.8, was sold on eBay for $1,500. A raw copy in VF/NM sold for $31, while another raw NM copy sold for $102.50. A Turok Dinosaur Hunter #1 Gold CGC 9.8 sold for $161.50. Rai was hot as prices for CGCed copies soared in value. A #1 9.8 sold for $61.01, while two copies of #3 in 9.6 sold for $67 and $62 respectively. A Shadowman Valiant Validated Signature Series #0 in NM sold for $43. Solar was hot as the sun. A #1 in 9.8 sold for $91, while a #60, the last issue, graded at 9.6, sold for $39. These prices are much higher than they were during the boom of the mid-1990s. A Magnus #21 Gold in 9.8 sold for $139.01, while a #1 9.8 sold for $127.50. A #12 9.8 sold for $113.61 and two other copies of #1 sold for around $100 each. Crossovers were also heating up, as a Predator Vs. Magnus Robot Fighter Platinum #1 sold for $113.50. The X-O Manowar #1/2 Gold from Wizard is reportedly very scarce and three copies unslabbed sold for $76.51, $75.51 and $67 online. The Shadowman Vol. 3 #2 variant cover, with a print run of approximately 750, sold for $177.50.

As for current comics, Nyx slept for awhile before everyone realized that X-23 had some relation to Wolverine. Then the prices went through the roof. Slabbed 9.8 copies of Nyx #3 went for $217.50, $199.99, $199.95, and $189.99, while NM and unslabbed copies of #4 were selling for around $15. Thor #80, the first part of the "Avengers Disassembled" crossover, sold briskly at around $25 each unslabbed. Subsequent issues of Thor, which reportedly was under-ordered by retailers, saw large increases in back issue prices as well.

Another company that saw some increased interest was Broadway. While many of the Broadway Comics line can be found in quarter boxes or for cover price, Fatale's trade paperback and hardcover collections, called Inherit The Earth, saw huge increases. The trade paperback sold easily at $50 a copy, while the trade paperback was commanding prices of up to $175 when they could be found. Both the trade paperback and the hardcover are elusive. While Ultraverse comics haven't been hot in a long time, their day may be coming soon. A copy of Lord Pumpkin #1 limited signed by Dan Danko and Aaron Lopresti with a certificate of authenticity sold for $23.

Giveaways, as usual, were hot. The Free Comic Book Day edition of The Ballad of Sleeping Beauty wasn't free for long. Readers of this comic snatched up all of the FCBF copies and there just wasn't enough to go around, so prices quickly escalated to $10 a copy online, while copies of #2 and 3 were scarce in supply and high in demand. The Spider-Man Acme Dingo Boots giveaway comic, which is reportedly hard to find, sold in VG for $90.99. A J.C. Penney Ultimate Spider-Man #8 reprint sold in NM for $20.50. A Resident Evil giveaway from Marvel Comics sold in NM for $29.95. Two copies of Shazam! Visits Portland, Oregon in 1943 sold, both in NM, for $25 and for $50 respectively.

Golden and Silver Age back issues are quite scarce in the southern West Virginia, eastern Kentucky, southwestern Virginia areas, and at least one shop owner says he almost never sees Golden and Silver Age back issues these days. We don't have an abundance of comic shops, and those that are still around don't sell a lot of older back issues. They mainly survive on new comics and those new issues that are hot.

The Batman "Hush" series with Jim Lee art sold well in my area, as did the Michael Turner Superman "Godfall" crossover. A copy of Batman #608, the start of Lee's art, sold for nearly $50 at one area shop. Other shops sold copies of #608, 612 and the second printings of those books for around $25 each. Turner's art on Superman/Batman caused issue #8-10 to increase in value. Prices on #8 rose to around $20, while the harder-to-find #9 was priced at around $15-20.

The "Avengers Disassembled" series was hot, as were all the titles with crossovers of that event. Aquaman got hot when new writer Will Pfeiffer and new artist Patrick Gleason took over with #15. The introduction of Carnage into Ultimate Spider-Man was well-received and issues sold out soon after their release and soon after were selling at a premium. Identity Crisis kept readers on the edge of their seats and also saw a slight increase in back issue prices after the first issue sold out and a new printing of #1 was announced.

Spider-Girl #75-76 was hot due to the heroine wearing the black costume. Geoff Johns' and Mike McKone's Teen Titans was one of the best sellers of the year. Issue #1 with its McKone cover and Michael Turner variant sold well, with the Turner cover increasing to around $25. Turner seems to have the Midas touch when it comes to variant covers; anything he touches turns to gold.

Astonishing X-Men was a big success here in the coalfields, with copies of #1 quickly selling out and then selling for a high premium. Copies of #1, when they could be found at comic shops here, sold upwards of $10 each. Copies of the variant editions sold for $150 and $45 for the first issue Cassaday cover and no one received any of the Gabriele Dell'Otto variant covers. The Colossus variant cover to #4 also sold quickly. As retailers caught on to the variant craze, copies of #4 were selling for $10 straight out of the Diamond Comics box and soon were selling for around $30 as they made their way to the back issues walls of area stores. The Pulse took some time to heat up, but #1 started selling for a premium around the same time as #3 was released. Uncanny X-Men started selling well again after Chris Claremont's return in #444. Excalibur Vol. 2 #1 was also hot and was selling for $5 not long after its release.

The Jim Lee Superman was heavily ordered and copies flew off the shelves. However, the slow pace of the story kept many people away and back issue prices never reached the level of the Jim Lee Batman series. Even a Michael Turner variant cover (50/50) on #205 didn't make it a sell-out at our area stores for several weeks.

Free Comic Book Day was a success in our area for the few comic shops that participated in the promotional event. Some retailers pulled out of the promotion because of the increasing cost of the "free" comics. Many believed the time was wrong because so many potential comic readers were on vacation; our area's small-shop retailers said they believe many of the bigger stores in larger areas benefited, but not the smaller shops, which were far away from the vacation crowds.

Trade paperbacks continued to be very popular as many comic shops sold large amounts of trades. Watchmen is always a fast seller here as are traditional favorites Batman: The Dark Knight Returns, The Killing Joke, The Death of Superman, Secret Wars, Crisis on Infinite Earths, The Chronicles of Conan and many others. The Marvel-published Essential Conan trade paperback is no longer available on their list of Essential black-and-white "phone book" reprint editions and gets about $50 when copies can be found.

The Hellboy, Punisher and Alien vs. Predator movies did little to increase sales at area stores in southern West Virginia and eastern Kentucky. A bump in sales was felt when Spider-Man 2 was released, as back issues sold briskly. After the movie left the screens, copies of Spider-Man back issues remained on comic shop walls.

Back issue sales for Transformers and G.I. Joe all seemed to cool off as the 1980s nostalgia market died down considerably. Collectors in our area seemingly couldn't care less about back issues of the new versions of G.I. Joe, Transformers, Micronauts, Thundercats and Ghostbusters, as copies could be found in quarter bins not long after their release. Marvel's Conan the Barbarian was a good seller after the Dark Horse series debuted. The new Conan #1 by Dark Horse was a strong seller at $10 and one dealer had the 25 cent #0 on the back issue wall for $25. It was gone by the time I paid my next visit.

Nearly all of the Marvel Tsunami titles were hot at one time or another, but all cooled off quickly when they started getting cancelled. The Marvel Age titles suffered the same fate, although they weren't being cancelled as quickly. Mary Jane was the first to fall and only time will tell which Marvel Age comic will be next.

On the flipside, the Marvel Age digest-sized trade paperbacks sold fairly well here. Miracleman's later issues climbed in value, also. Issues #23 and 24 are both tougher to find in NM than #15 and collectors finally started realizing that fact. The 2D version of Miracleman 3D is the hardest-to-find book in the collection, as only a couple hundred are believed to exist. One collector was offering $500 for a copy of the 2D edition, which was published for color-blind readers who could not see the 3D effects of the regular edition. Just about any issue of Miracleman sells immediately when shops get them. Demand was high here for the last two issues of the regular series and many Miracleman collectors were looking for the Gold and Blue #1s and the 2D, 3D edition.

Archie and Harvey comics, when dealers can find them, sell well here. Whitman pre-pack issues get hotter every year. Several low grade copies of Whitman pre-pack comics were found in a collection here in southern West Virginia, but those were purchased by a private collector and have not reached the back issue market.

John Chruscinski (Tropic Comics)

It has been a big year for us. We are selling a lot of higher-dollar books and we also made a big move from South Florida to Lyndora, Pennsylvania. It was tough, but it was well worth it, if not just for the extra space to better serve our web customers. Our web sales have been strong this year except for our three months downtime during our move. We are now back up and running with major plans and changes for our website (www.tropiccomics.com) in 2005.

Golden Age: Books are tough to get at a reasonable price, but easy to sell, especially in high grade. Some titles that sold well for us this year were: Superman, Action, Adventure, Flash, Green Lantern, All American, Captain America, All Winners, All Star, Marvel Mystery, and Detective Comics. Wonder Woman and Sensations still sell strong at over Guide in lower grades. We sold more restored Golden Age keys this year than in the last two years combined, proving that the stigma on restoration may be loosening up a bit.

There are three factors in determining a price on restored issues. First: What was done to the book? Second: How does it look (amateurish or professional)? Third: Who did the work? If you have the correct combination to these questions, a restored book may bring you more than you expected it to.

Collectors are seeing deals being had for CGC books with restored labels and filling up holes on their want list with slightly restored books that are very reasonably priced.

Some sales we had this year were: Sensation Comics #1 CGC 9.4 (rest.) $5,000; Sensation Comics #1 CGC 8.0 $3,000; Sub-Mariner #1 CGC 6.0 (SP rest.) $4,000; Batman #1 G/VG (rest.) $4,000; All Star #3 VG (rest.) trimmed $3,000; All Star #8 VF/NM (rest.) $3,000; Detective Comics #31 VF (rest.) $4,000; Green Lantern #1 VF/NM (rest.) $5,000; Captain America #10 VF/NM (cover cleaned) $1,500; Human Torch #1 G/VG (rest.) $1,900

Atom Age: Mixed sales and demand varied on title and condition. Avons, horror, and crime books lead the way for want lists we received. Dells and Gold Keys sell moderately with Four Colors and duck titles most requested. We cannot keep Atlas in stock. Horror, western, and Romance sell over Guide in the lower grades. ECs are starting to pick up again in the mid-grades as collectors are realizing they can be had at bargain prices.

Silver Age: The heartbeat of the comic market. Marvels out-sell all other companies combined. Graded CGCs of 9.4 or better still sell at multiples of Guide with Spider-Man and X-Men leading the way. Low grade sell fairly fast at adjusted prices. We cannot keep high grade CGC-certified DCs in stock. Again, 9.4 or higher seem to be the grades most requested. We anticipate that after more time, collectors will begin to tire while waiting to find DCs in CGC 9.4 and higher and start buying CGC 9.0s and higher, perhaps even CGC 8.0 and higher on some harder-to-find books. Low and mid-grade issues still sell slower than their Marvel counterparts, even at adjusted prices. Gold Key TV photo covers sell well, with high grade being the most sought after.

Bronze Age: Hot! The 1970s seem to be the new playing field for the CGC investor. With Hulk #181 being the “Holy Grail,” other ‘70s like Marvel Spotlight #5 and Amazing Spider-Man #129 are selling for multiples of Guide. Magazines have gone from 0 to 60 in sales for us when CGC started grading magazines – Creepy, Eerie, Vampirella, Savage Sword of Conan, and Savage Tales to name a few. With high grade copies of ‘70s keys bringing jaw-dropping prices, I believe this is a good investment area for years to come. Look for a lot of minor key issues to become bigger players in the future. Price variants sell well with 35¢ variants being the hottest of all. High prices are being paid in this underestimated part of the market, so take notice.

Modern Age: CGC graded books dominate this market. 9.8 is the starting point on most issues for the grade collector. Early 1980s independents like Albedo, Cerebus, Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles, Grendel, and Elfquest are all rising from the dead to sell for unheard of prices in high grade. Even Valiants are making a comeback with pre-Unity and gold issues being some of our most requested titles. Printing errors are now being recognized; as in coins, these errors are now starting to sell for more than their counterparts. Before they weren’t saleable to most consumers and sent to the distributor to be destroyed. Now have they are widely sought after.

There is a third group of collectors – those that want to buy nice and inexpensive (read: lower grade) oldies for their collections. It’s amazing what Silver Age you can acquire for $2-5 a book, for instance. You can quickly develop a huge collection for the price of a few paychecks or less.

Golden Age: I’ve been lucky this year in getting a decent amount of Golden Age, including about 20 different All Stars, Wonder Woman #1, Young Allies #1, More Fun #17 in F/NF, Batman #9-11 in nice shape, early Sensation Comics, Human Torch #8, Captain Midnight #1, Walt Disney Comics & Stories #31 with a missing centerfold, and much more.

The better Golden Age still moves out extremely well—Timely, DC, MLJ, early Fiction House, Centaur, etc. However, with some of the miscellaneous early ‘40s books, I’ve been meeting with some surprising resistance here and there. How could someone not buy Uncle Sam #1? I’ve even got one in my collection – it’s a great book.

I’ll still buy them as they are true treasures, but I must admit that the better Silver Age – early ‘60s AMZ and FF, early Showcase and Brave & the Bold – now seem to sell to more briskly than some of the miscellaneous Golden Age. Of course Timelys, followed by ‘30s-‘40s DCs, are still the kings of all collectibles. I’m always happy to pay 50-80% of Guide for these, as they sell in all grades. Wonderworld comics sell well as do Master Comics, particularly below #50. Mary Marvel, which is an inexpensive but not always available title, moves well, as do most issues of Wow Comics with Mary Marvel. Folks rightfully dig the very early Capt. Marvel Jr. Capt. Marvel sells OK. Whiz Comics below #30 move quite solidly, especially the first 10 issues.

Fiction House: Planet Comics remains the best and a consistent seller. Airboys, and Capt. Midnights have slowed down somewhat. Don Winslows sell somewhat slowly. Late ‘40s Daredevil and Boy comics aren’t what one would call prime movers, although the early ‘40s DDs and to some extent the early Boy comics are desired.

Lev Gleason: The best are Silver Streak #6-7 with those awesome (DD Vs. Claw) covers. Also popular is #1 (‘41) of Daredevil, in which he battles Hitler.

MLJ: The best sellers are Hangman Comics plus, of course, the early issues of Archie Comics and Archie’s first two appearances in Pep #22 and Jackpot #4.

Restored: I’m finding more collections of ‘40s comics with amateur restoration on many of the books. Depending on the extent of the ‘resto,’ plus if the job is particularly ugly and unnatural-looking or not bad, I can get between 2/3 and 100% of Good Guide for these. Even professionally restored comics only go for so much. I have a beautiful-looking All- in all, I see a strong and healthy market in the next year and most of it due to the trust that CGC has brought back to this great hobby. As for us, we have many big plans in our new home in Pennsylvania, so please check in on us every now and then to see what’s going on at www.tropiccomics.com.

Golden Age, like early Fiction House, moves extremely well. (Planet Comics #3 shown)

Gary Dolgoff (Gary Dolgoff Comics)

2004 was a year that, due to the six prices now in the Guide plus other factors, saw an increase in hopeful sellers vastly over-grading and overvaluing their collections. Sales were very solid for a variety of grades. Some prefer high grade for invest-

Star #4 that has some innocuous-looking, relatively minor restoration. I offered it to folks for less than G/VG Guide, and despite its overall nice appearance, no one bought it! I happily buy restored books as long as I can sell them at a reasonable price.

1950s Superhero: Most 1950s superhero are DC, and they sell quite well, especially pre-Code across the board, #1s, and early Showcase Flash. In general, all early Showcase as well as Brave & the Bold #1-27 can be counted on to move out, particularly in Good or better shape. Early Flash #105-120 sell quite well.

Non-Superhero '50s DCs: Sci-fi and mystery (House of Mystery, Mystery In Space, Strange Adventures) sell very solidly. A small yet enthusiastic clientele seeks Dean Martin as well as Jerry Lewis comics. Later '50s DCs are also solid sellers. The pre-Code ones in general are just somewhat less around and sell faster. I never turn down a collection containing 1950s and earlier DCs!

Horror: These continue to sell great, especially if they have decapitated heads, tongues on cover, etc. EC horror sells the best. I've gotten in some EC collections in the last year, kept a few for my private collection, and sold the rest.

Sci-Fi: These sell well. I got in some EC Gaines File copies this year. I was happy to pay over Guide for these; they CGCed at 9.4 and 9.6 mostly! I sold three and kept one. Now I'm hoping for a big collection of high grade ECs to come my way. Lower grade sells decently as well.

Crime: These sell solidly but not brilliantly. Probably one of the best sellers here is EC's very own Crime Suspense Stories.

Western: These sell OK but can't be counted on in general to move out quickly. Among these, Red Ryder is a leading seller, especially those early issues. I kept a #7 for myself – a great cover. The best western sellers are '50s Marvel westerns.

Romance: They sell well, especially the DC romance (10¢ cover) comics, followed by the Marvel romance books like Millie and Patsy. As with many '50s genres, the pre-Code comics sell more quickly and reliably than their post-Code counterparts.

War: Atlas war sells well with those gritty non-P.C. covers. Other war comics from the '50s sell decently. If the covers are crazy and violent, they'll sell better.

Classics: First printings below #44 sell best, although Classics in general are slow. Among the best sellers are #8 (Arabian Nights), #33 (Sherlock Holmes), and #43 (Great Expectations). Cheap Classics sell decently, especially at better comic book shows.

Archie: I have trouble keeping '50s Archies in stock. They sell well, although '40s issues sell better still, especially Archies below #20. Katy Keenes seem tougher to get and must be checked for completeness – they cut out those dresses in the '50s. I myself enjoy Archie comics and humor. Just don't try to sell them in England; the Brits just aren't into it where Archies are concerned.

Dells: Funny animal 1950s Dells are quite slow. It seems like everyone bought them and kept them. Many of them can be had quite cheaply, however, at $3-5 a book.

TV/Movie: I Love Lucy comics sell the best of these. In general, this genre sells OK.

Little Lulu: This is a '50s Dell exception. They are cool comics and well-drawn, many of them by John Stanley. I can't keep #1-10 and the Lulu Four Colors in stock. The covers of these early Lulus have some nice eye appeal.

Exotic '50s: They sell great. Reform School Girl, Mask Of Dr. Fu Manchu, Blood Is The Harvest – these late '40s/early '50s one-shots have fantastic covers and are truly a pleasure to own.

Famous Monsters: The early issues #1-30 sell quite well, especially #1-6.

Playboy: I don't have a great deal of experience with these, but I'm quite confident that #1-10 particularly are smart sellers, especially #1 and the rare #2.

MADs: They sell OK but not thrilling.

1960s DCs: The best '60s DC seller over all is Batman. I recently sold a new complete Batman #126-254 run. Detective, Superman family titles, JLA, Flash, and Green Lantern are all solid titles, as is Brave & Bold. The secondary JLA characters sell somewhat slower – Aquaman, Hawkman, Atom – as do the HOM "Dial H" and John J'onzz issues. I have sold, however, batches of these titles as an across-the-board deal for 20% off Guide. 1960s romance DCs always seem to find a new home. With war issues, though, it depends on the title. Our Army at War with Kubert's great art sells OK. 1960s Our Fighting Forces, however, are considerably slower. I do well on my occasional 1960s-'71 – 12 and 15¢ cover – blow-outs at $3 each or less.

1960s Marvel: These are the kings of the Silver Age. For over three decades, they continue to fuel the fires of comic collecting. The higher grades – strict VG/F or better – sell really strongly, especially AMZ, FF, and X-Men. Marvels 1964 and earlier do especially well in higher grade as they are tougher to get in nice shape. In the old days, nice warehouse copies would surface from time to time, sometimes hundreds of an issue. I myself have bought huge warehouse deals over the years and continue to do so as they are offered to me. 1964 and before Marvels, in general, sell extra well, as they are around less than their 1965 and later counterparts. AMZ #1-50; Avengers #1-4; DD #1-7; FF #1-30; JIM (Thor) #83-110, 112; Hulk #1-6; Sgt. Fury #1; TOS (Iron Man) #39-50; TTA #27, 35; and X-Men #1-6 are some of the best sellers of the '60s Marvels. I love getting them in and re-reading many of them as I grade them. It's still an unmitigated pleasure. 1965-1971 Marvels also sell solidly for the most part, especially AMZ, FF, Avengers after #50, X-Men #50-66, Silver Surfer #1, 4, plus the first issues of Iron Man, and Conan. I find that it helps to sell Strange Tales, Tales of Suspense, Tales To Astonish, Thor, Sgt. Fury, and some others at discount if I want to sell them pretty well. By the way: '60s-'70s Marvels with a UK price are still originals and printed at the same time as their American counterparts. 1960s pre-superhero Marvels sell almost instantly in almost any grade. They're great reads!

1960s Other: '60s Charltons seem to be selling somewhat better in higher grades, especially Ghost and Mystery titles. I recently got in a small warehouse lot, and I've already sold five each across-the-board in VG/F or better to two different fellow dealers. Romance and war Charltons move slowly. The miscellaneous '60s stuff sells slower to moderate – Flyman, Jaguar, etc. Magnus, Robot Fighter sells OK, as does Boris Karloff and other mystery/horror stuff. 1960s romance DCs sell well. A couple years ago I had runs of many of these, but they're just about all gone. Marvel romance from the '60s aren't as brisk as the DCs, but at discount I move them OK.

1970s General: Early 1970s (20¢ cover) and 'giant size' (52 pgs, 100 pgs, etc.) sell better than later '70s books.

1970s DC: 100-pg. giants sell moderately to well. Batman in general – especially VG/F and better – move out pretty well. Neal Adams Batman and Detective sell very well, as do the early '70s horror comics like House Of Mystery, and House Of Secrets. Many of them are loaded with good artists. In general, there aren't as many '70s DCs around as there are '70s Marvels. Some miscellaneous hero DCs move slowly: Claw, Arak, and Rima come to mind, and this despite the beautiful Nester Redondo art in Rima, the Jungle Girl.

1970s Marvel: 20¢ cover price and some other Marvels of the more popular titles are very popular and sell pretty briskly for the most part, especially AMZ #100-150; DD #61-100, 158-181; FF #100-150; Hulk #144-182; Avengers #93-140; Iron Fist #14, 15; G.S. X-Men #1; X-Men #94-142; and some of the early '70s #1s like Ghost Rider, Tomb Of Dracula, and Werewolf by Night. Many later '70s Marvels are more available in the marketplace, especially the discontinued titles like Luke Cage, Marvel Team-Up, Marvel Two-In-One, Marvel Premiere, and Defenders, etc. They sell slower, so I've taken to blowing them out at 50-75¢ each in larger batches. Sometimes the price makes the book more worthwhile. Tomb Of Dracula is a solid title and a great read throughout the run.

1970s Other: Miscellaneous early '70s Charlton, etc., seem to sell pretty well. Atlas-Seaboard are still pretty slow.

1980s-2000s: I like to blow these out, many at 50¢-$1 per book, with the more expensive '80s/'90s at 25%-1/3 of Near Mint Guide. Since there are tons of most of these around, I try to tempt folks by price. For instance, typical X-Men issues between #185-275 sell pretty well at $1-1.50 each in nice shape. I find that X-Men #266 (1st Gambit) is in some demand, and that the McFarlane AMZs are decent sellers, with #298 and especially #300, selling very well. Swamp Thing #20-40 sell quite briskly to a smaller but no less enthusiastic clientele – they don't seem to show up nearly as much as many '80s/'90s do. '96-present comics sell much better in general than their earlier counterparts. I find that keeping these books within the sets I wholesale seems to help the entire set sell better. In the beginning of the 1990s, every other person would invest in these hyped, mass-produced, over-saturated comics. A few years later, most 'in' comics did the opposite, which resulted in a relative shortage of late '90s/early 2000s comics.

CGC: In general, I find the philosophy of encapsulating comics annoying as I generally believe that the essence of collecting is being able to open up the comic and read it, look at the art, and even – in the case of the '30s-'50s books – smell them! That being said, I must admit that CGC helps to preserve and recognize the value of super-high grade comics 9.4 and higher, and even 8.5, 9.0, and 9.2, with regards to '30s thru early '60s comics. Also, it helps buyers to trust the grading better when buying off relatively unknown sellers or those sellers that are normally known for looser grading.

I have found much to my surprise that I can typically get Guide or close to it for CGC-graded mainline Golden Age and better Silver Age. That's why I'm willing to pay 50-70%+ of Guide plus pay for encapsulation on more expensive oldies. I still think it's silly for someone to pay goodly sums for high grade CGC late '80s-2000s comic books. There exist many high-grade non-CGCed Spawn #1s, for instance.

Marvel Magazines: The 1970s horror mags sell pretty well. The superhero mags move slower, though they may pick up in sales.

Pulps: Generally I love them. They often have great covers, interestingly written titles on the spine, and a rich history. Shadow, Spider, G-8 & his Battle Birds, Operator 5, Weird Tales, Strange Tales, Dime Mystery, Horror Stories, Terror Tales, Wu Fang, Yen Sin, Zeppelin Stories. Whenever they're offered to me, I must try and buy them all.

Original Art: A great market; I love getting in almost any original art, especially '70s and back. 1960s art seems to sell the best, with Kirby and Ditko Marvel art leading the way, as well as DC and Marvel covers from the 1970s and back.

Website Sales/Catalogue: At long last website sales have started to pick up, aided no doubt by my first catalogue since 1997. Websites are good as they can be constantly updated; plus, one can always adjust their homepage as we did to also offer sets and discounted package deals. But remember folks: It's the grading more than the discounting that determines whether or not the comics for sale are worth it.

D'Arcy Farrell (Pendragon Comics)

What an amazing summer of 2004, or should I say, Amazing Spider-Man summer. Another blockbuster movie by Marvel has attracted new collectors and readers. Only the first Spider-Man and Batman have had a greater effect. I can predict Batman's upcoming movie will draw even more fans out of the woodwork. All these great, well-made movies support everyone in the comic book industry, and it goes round and round. To the writers and artists, to the dealers/stores and the fans, everyone gains. Combined with the successful Free Comic Book Day that Diamond and publishers commit to every year just before school gets out – the best time, not in the midst of summer – we have a two-fold way of increasing our customer base as well as encouraging children to read.

Conventions: I do a few in Canada, and I'm glad to say they are on the rise. One show in particular stands out among all the rest – the Canadian National Expo held in Toronto at the end of August. The organizer, Aman, has really accomplished something here. Every year the gate climbs to new records. The 2004 show had over 26,000 attendees. The main reason? A crossover of various collectibles and medias. Comics are just one aspect. It also has anime/manga, SE, gaming, TV and Hollywood. This is a smart way to introduce yet more non-comic fans to comics they would not normally be privy to. I always gain a few new comic collectors every year due to this show's success.

Golden Age: Anything superhero does well. Most in demand, as always, are Timely and DC; nothing else comes close. Marvel Mystery, Human Torch, and Captain America lead the way for Timely, and DC always has Batman, Detective, Action, and Superman. Other titles abound from these publishers that sell very well. I've begun noticing far less Comic Cavalcades, and my collectors have mentioned the same. We are now 60+ years from the end of popular WWII issues. These are amazing books in low supply with paper quality getting poorer every year. In a few more years, these comics with Schomburg (et al) covers will most likely be in many collectors' bank vaults never to be seen by conventioners again. Some will surface here and there, but at insane premiums. Not much happens fast in the non-superhero area. I notice high grade ECs do move well, and excellent westerns such as Lone Ranger, Autry, and Red Ryder. Anything Barks does well for Dells, but not much else. Crime is a bit better this year, but not great.

Silver Age: I cannot get enough Amazing Spider-Man, X-Men and Neal Adams anything. These items will sell forever and never lessen in popularity/demand. Fantastic Four, Daredevil, TOS, TTA, Hulk, Batman, Detective, and Flash sell best after AMZ and X-Men. I have noticed many collectors of superheroine issues are getting more and more rabid for issues such as Action #252 (first Supergirl), and Detective #359 (Batgirl).

Bronze Age: Jonah Hex and affiliated titles are selling fast, as are other DC oddball items like Weird War Tales, Witching Hour, and Phantom Stranger. Many of DC's non-mainstream titles, especially in the horror, war and western genres, have such great art and stories and are still so undervalued and under-appreciated that I suggest many investors should not ignore this area. Marvel has its own low print titles that are not on many investors' radar. Werewolf By Night and Tomb Of Dracula are the best examples.

Copper Age: Miller Daredevils are particularly hotter than normal. All the lower print runs of DC from the early 1980s are in greater demand, especially GL and Flash. This is a future hotbed of investment; I give it less than five years to really explode.

Modern Age: Jim Lee went from Batman to Superman. It wasn't as successful, but it's still doing well. Identity Crisis and Superman are the best sellers for DC in 2004. Marvel has done shockingly well with Secret Wars and the Avengers storyline. The Avengers finale and new #1, along with DC's Green Lantern Rebirth #1, pre-dates this review, but I expect huge quantities of issues to be sold. Image still sells badly all around whereas TokyoPop manga titles still increase in sales every year. Dark Horse is doing somewhat better, especially since the Hellboy movie was well done and attracted new fans as well.

eBay and Internet Auctions: Everyone wants to be a dealer it seems. Buying is risky enough, but far too many unrealistic collectors who sell on eBay hurt this marketplace. Buyers be wary of bright fuzzy pictures or the lack thereof. Bright digital pictures hide dirt, soiling, mold and tanning. Only a close-up or 1:1 scans seem accurate enough to tell. But even then, with various art/digital programs, a picture/scan may still be manipulated. Buy from proven dealers or test others with some small articles first. Their service, speed and grading will determine if you spend the bigger money. Even then you are always at risk when buying something that you cannot see, touch, investigate – restored, touch up and so on – hold in your own two hands, and then buy on the spot. This can be done in a local store or convention, but never online.

Conclusion: Another banner year for our industry. Sales are still climbing in new and vintage books. I expect 2005-2006 to continue this trend. I also expect values to flatten for a year or two on these high-rising Marvels, bouncing the increase and demand towards DC and others, coinciding with the new Batman movie. Marvel has raised too far too fast, leaving others behind. It doesn't mean a decrease is expected, but the trend will go towards DC's flagship titles for a year or so. Marvel will always be in high demand as well; that will most likely never lessen.

Stephen H. Gentner

As a comic book collector, I find that this is one of the best and strongest markets ever. Collections which were put together five to ten years ago have seen very nice gains, and in some instances astounding appreciation. Marvel Silver Age material, particularly in high grade, defies description in its growth and stability. DC Silver Age has enjoyed good growth and appreciation as well, albeit not quite as pronounced as Marvel. Lower grades of the popular titles for both publishers seem to sell quite well when priced fairly at Guide or Guide plus a premium for keys. Golden Age material by and large has plateaued, and the savvy collector may be able to find some favorites more reasonably priced. Bronze Age material has had excellent growth, and the hot titles and keys are becoming more well known by collectors. The window to catch these rising stars is closing quickly, and the collector and investor both should review their want lists to lock in.

As the market becomes more sophisticated, the availability, scarcity, and demand for key material plays out on eBay daily. Many of the sellers use CGC-graded material and census figures to justify high reserves. As time has passed and the CGC census figures stabilize, trends can be determined as to scarcity in given grades.

I have been focusing on favorite artists more than individual titles of late. Tracking down nice copies of work by Neal Adams, Alex Schomburg, Matt Baker, Carmine Infantino, Joe Kubert, Russ Heath, and Murphy Anderson et al targets my dollars to keys and icons rather than long runs at the altar of completism. However, some artists make titles their own, which demands more attention from me, such as Russ Manning in Magnus Robot Fighter, Barry Smith and the first 23 Conans, Jack Kirby and Joe Simon in The Fighting American, Steve Ditko in Strange Tales, etc. The point is that artists rather than titles are influencing my sleuthing.

The last few years, the same trends seem to be holding my interest. I search for secret trends and confirm my findings and positions all the time. My reports may seem similar to previous efforts, but to me that only makes me more convinced how healthy the hobby is. Ho-hum, yawn – another banner year. Good hunting!

Going Up: Schomburg airbrush and war covers; ‘Good Girl’ art in standard Nedor; Black Terror #1; Fox ‘Good Girl;’ and ‘Good Girl’ post-WWII until 1949-50, which is scarce and cool.

Going Down: Golden Age DC post-WWII, particularly in lower grades; Fawcett, MLJ, Dell generally are flat; the same can be said for Quality, Centaur, Classics Illustrated, and Disney.

Daniel Greenhalgh (Showcase New England)

Most people familiar with my opinion of the market as an investment tool have known me to be decidedly bearish with respect to collecting comics, including Marvels, over the past decade. Three major events have occurred in the past five years to change this trend which had been spiraling downward and which, frankly, for a time I thought was irreversible. The first event was the introduction of Internet and online trading; the second event was the introduction of third party grading in comics. The third and most influential change, in my opinion, was the introduction and success of the Marvel movies. The impact these movies have had on expanding the collector base for comics cannot be emphasized sufficiently. The combination of these three events has created a change in the overall trend and a real opportunity for investors seeking alternative vehicles to make money. That doesn’t mean you can just go out and buy anything; as an investor you still have to pick your spots.

Golden Age: Stable – that’s the best word I can come up with to describe the mainstream Golden Age market. As a general rule you won’t get the pop you might get with a high grade Marvel, but at least you are investing in a book in a relatively mature market. I would stay with the major DC and Timely titles where the books are more actively traded and prices can be more readily ascertained. I would avoid books from non-mainstream publishers like Fantastic Comics 3, for example, because values are not easily identified other than by a dealers representation...or misrepresentation. To sum up, stay with the books where values are more easily determined and avoid books that are thinly traded.

Silver Age: The theme hasn’t changed in over a decade. Marvels have led the market, continue to lead the market and, unlike prior years, have accelerated in growth. Silver Age Marvels are the backbone of the market. This year has seen continued growth in CGC prices as well as a real strengthening in the price of raw, early Marvels. Investors should focus on buying high grade CGC marvels, particularly Amazing

Spider-Man and Fantastic Four, but almost all the major titles will fit the bill.

Apparent this year is just how difficult it is to find Silver Age DCs in 9.4. Many of the major runs have issues that lack any 9.4s. DCs from major runs, particularly Showcase, Batman and Superman prior to 1966 are also worthwhile investments. Unlike the early Marvels however, these books need to be certified to qualify as investment grade in most cases.

Bronze Age: Marvels and DCs from the major titles are also good investment vehicles as long as they are certified. However, anyone paying multiples of Guide – I don't care what it is – for anything published after 1980 will likely lose money on his or her books. As a rule of thumb, the higher the multiple, the more substantial you can expect your loss to be. Further, factoring the time value of money into the equation, the longer you keep these books, the greater your losses will be. In most cases, losses will be real regardless of when you sell your books.

CGC: Overall I think CGC does a pretty good job. It was not easy to come up with a system that would be widely accepted and that could quantify defects in comics, yet that is pretty much what CGC has done. That they have been an overwhelming success is reflected in the widespread acceptance of CGC by the community, as well as in the high prices CGC books command. I use CGC services extensively, and while I don't completely agree with their grading criteria –who does for that matter – I have come to accept them as an important member in the community.

John Hauser

Golden Age: Sells very well in any grade. Almost any popular title is a sure sale. Original owner collections of Golden Age are a thing of the past. Most of this material was stored at the parents' house. If you were buying comics for your kids in the '40s, there is a good chance you aren't storing their comics any longer. I expect this end of the market to strengthen over time as supplies dwindle.

Silver Age: Extremely strong in grade. Average copies still seem to be going down in value as they are plentiful and easy to get. People selling their collections of '60s comics will have to get used to the idea that the Guide is just a guide when you are selling average common material.

Bronze Age: Strong and growing stronger. These seem to sell in almost any grade. People trying to recapture their childhood are now after the comics of the '70s. It is a real surprise to me how nostalgic we are for those '70s comics. Marvel Team-Up is now one of my best-selling titles.

Modern Age: There seem to be lots of younger collectors after these comics. It's good to see new people coming into our hobby. Valiant comics are showing a comeback in the marketplace. These are coming out of the quarter boxes and are now worth real dollars.

CGC: Strong sales continue on any comic in grade and graded by a third party grader. This end of the market shows no sign of slowing down. They sell as fast as CGC can grade them.

Conventions: Attendance seemed down this year. More and more people are saving on gas and shopping on eBay. There is still a core group that likes to purchase their comics in person. Do yourself a favor and attend a convention this year. There are a lot of great items available at fair prices. The best part is that you don't have to spend anything on postage, leaving you more money for comics.

Greg Holland (ValiantComics.com)

The market for Valiant Comics has demonstrated some extreme prices in the past year. At one extreme, very high prices were paid for CGC 9.8 Bloodshot #0 Platinum Printing Error (no cover price) at $2,067, CGC 9.8 Chaos Effect Alpha Red Cover at $1,500, and CGC 9.8 Harbinger #1 at $969 in the first online auction for the book in nearly two years. In the other extreme, very low prices were common for nearly every 1993 Valiant book, with most auctions for the books ending under 25¢ per issue. Surprising sales have become a more frequent occurrence in the Valiant market, as some collectors appear to have no limit to the price they will pay for certain issues, while other Valiant books are destined to remain under $1 for decades to come. As usual, print runs are the key to determining demand. Books from 1993 were printed in such large quantities that they may sit unsold for another dozen years, while books from 1991-92 have mostly disappeared from back issue supplies.

Increase in demand for some Valiant books should not be interpreted as an increase in demand for all Valiant books. Over half of the eighty-million Valiant books in print were printed in 1993. As a result, issues from 1993 are nearly impossible to sell for more than a few cents each. Less than 10% of Valiant books in print sell consistently for even cover price. Fewer than 5% of the books are consistent sellers for $5 or more. While Valiant sales have demonstrated a very strong demand for particular issues, it is not enough to simply have the word 'Valiant' printed on the cover. Pre-Unity Valiant issues are among the most consistent sellers.

The term "Pre-Unity" has become standard for describing the earliest 1991-1992 Valiant books. Here's the list of the Pre-Unity issues: Archer & Armstrong #0, Harbinger #1-#7 (and #0 Pink cover), Magnus #0-#14, Rai #1-#5, Shadowman #1-#3, Solar #1-#11, Vintage Magnus #1-#4, and X-O Manowar #1-#6. These particular issues were printed before Valiant print runs skyrocketed in the early 1990s, though most would be among the top sellers if compared to today's sales figures. All are fantastic finds anywhere near cover price, and they are excellent examples of comics where the characters, art, story, and direction all come together nicely. To understand Valiant, one must know the Pre-Unity Valiant stories.

CGC grading popularity for Valiant issues has tripled in the twelve months prior to this writing, mainly because prices for CGC 9.8 copies of Valiant books have been strong, especially compared to other books printed in the 1990s. Harbinger #1 and Solar #10 have proven tougher to find in CGC 9.8 condition, though any significant increase in the number of CGC-graded copies available on the market would quickly have an effect on the prices being paid. Supplies do not have to be large to satisfy or outweigh the current demand for many of these books. While 2004 may have represented a peak in terms of prices paid for key Valiant issues, there are a number of Valiant collectors eager to buy the minute prices come back down.

Sales are far below cover price on 1993 regular issues, Turok #1, Magnus #25, and Deathmate. Issues that are cold – at or below cover price – include Armorines, HARDCorps, Geomancer, Ninjak, PSI-Lords, Second Life of Dr. Mirage, Secret Weapons, and Timewalker. Warming up are pre-Unity issues (1991-92), incentive variants, Valiant Validated Signature Series books (with certificate from Valiant, embossed seal on each book), and 1996 final issues. Hot issues include Chaos Effect Alpha Red cover, Harbinger #0 Pink cover, Harbinger #1 (with coupon), Magnus #0, Predator vs. Magnus 64-page TPB, Solar #0 Hardcover, Unity #0 Red cover, X-O Manowar #0 Gold, and X-O Manowar #1/2 Gold.

Nadia Mannarino (All Star Auctions)

For all prices realized for 2004 events and earlier, please visit our web site at allstarauc.com/asonline/realized.htm.

2004 was an exceptional year for comic character collectibles of all kinds. With Hollywood adapting comic books and their heroes for movies such as Spider-Man 2, there has been a heightened awareness of comic character collectibles in general. We ran thousands of eBay and Internet sales as well as catalogue sales throughout 2004 and we noticed the increased demand for CGC-graded comic books from the Silver and Bronze Ages. We also noticed that in the arena of comic and newspaper strip art, European buyers are certainly impacting prices once again, with their currency enjoying a healthy turn against the dollar. eBay continues to be a major force changing the landscape of our business. eBay is a convention a day – no matter what time or day one searches eBay, there is always something of interest, but with these opportunities, there are some serious consequences. In our opinion, there should be an 'eBay 101' course citing pluses and minuses. Frustrations abound, as do deals. 2005 promises to be another banner year as far as comic character-themed movies are concerned, with many movies scheduled for release.

We held our catalogue auction of 2004 on May 29-30. Results far exceeded expectations, with many lots surpassing pre-sale estimates. Following are some prices realized and highlights from 2004.

Golden Age: CGC-graded Golden Age comics in the 8.0-9.0 range continue their upward climb, with copies graded higher obviously realizing higher prices. It seems selling Golden Age comic books is not the problem but securing these individual books and collections is certainly the issue. Another category within Golden Age comics is the bound volume. These are copies bound by the publisher – File Copies – and in some instances by collectors. These bound volumes are a great resource and the books can be read and enjoyed and still maintain their condition. Dell, Harvey, and Timely bound volumes exist, and we are seeing an increased interest.

Silver Age: In 2004, we featured what is widely considered to be the finest square-bound collection of annuals, the Bill Howard collection. All were CGC-graded and over 80% realized a multiple of their Guide value. CGC-graded Silver Age comics in the 9.4 to 9.8 range continue to exceed expectations. The frenzy for high grade Silver Age books seems to have subsided a bit, but for the high grade 9.6-9.8 key Silver Age issues, demand is still strong.

Newspaper Strip Art: This uniquely American art form continues to gain in popularity. Europeans appreciate this art and continue their unabashed enthusiasm. The seminal artists: Raymond, Herriman, McCay, Foster, Frazetta, Caniff, Gould, Sickles, Capp, Schulz, and Kelly remain sought after and prices certainly reflect that. We are also seeing a rising trend in the newer comic strip artists: Jim Davis (Garfield), Russell Myers (Broom Hilda), Scott Adams (Dilbert), etc. While these artists have been toiling and producing their dailies and Sundays for years, we are now seeing more demand for their art.

Original Art: The DC Silver Age comic market has certainly been heating up, with prices steadily climbing as collectors realize how rare this art is and that in comparison to Marvel art – covers, splash pages and interior pages – DC art is under-priced. The mainstay artists are Kirby, Ditko, Steranko, Wood, and Infantino. Prices reflect that they are maintaining popularity. Covers and splash pages, whether DC or Marvel, continue to be items of interest for most collectors.

Animation Art: This market is enjoying resurgence, and with proper guidance and nurturing should once again become a dominant market in the 21st century. With the majority of studios going to computer generated animation, these hand-drawn examples by the masters should once again gain strength.

Toys and Premiums: Another area of comic character collectibles which seems to be enjoying a comeback. This is a great and educational way to link with the past while building a collection.

These are very exciting times to be in our business. Increased awareness along with integrity should be the focus in 2005.

Patrick Marchbanks (Golden Age Comics & Games)

Sales are up in all areas of the market, and as they usually do, Golden and Silver Age books lead the list. It has been amazing to see the prices that have been realized for high grade issues in both of these areas, and the fact that they have continuously risen over the last few years suggests there will be little downward motion to spending on Golden and Silver Age. It has also been refreshing to see many new and younger collectors getting into collecting and trying to put together entire runs of titles. Even the mass produced titles from the early 1990s have been selling much quicker than they ever have in the past. These sales covered all publishers, including Marvel, DC, Valiant, and Image.

CGC: It immensely aids the final selling price of a book if it is CGC encapsulated. With many individuals turning to the online world when searching for the next piece for their collection, CGC-graded books will almost always sell for a premium above a non-slabbed book. I am repeatedly told this is for the most part due to the restoration check that is performed on each book as it goes through the grading process.

For investment pieces I would lean my customers toward high grade Silver Age Marvel first editions, and you can never go wrong with pedigree Golden Age books. I welcome all to check out our website, www.GoldenAgeCollectibles.com, which includes updated market reports, online sales catalog and any interesting comic information that we can dig up that we feel may interest our customer base. We also look forward to your comic want lists and any information that you may have to share with us. Until next year we hope you continue to collect what you love and enjoy every page of every book you acquire.

Jon McClure

Rare and unusual comics are gaining ground fast. A 1977 35-cent variant of Kid Colt Outlaw #218 sold on eBay for $720 in VG, which is 180 times Guide! AMZ #169-173 sell for $500-1000 from VF 8.0 to NM- 9.2 on the rare occasion that one surfaces. X-Men #105-107 $115 in 9.2 and Star Wars #2-4 $75 in 9.2 range from $300-500 from VF 8.0 to NM- 9.2 when sold. This has been true for two years. All 1977 35-cent variants are much scarcer than their 1976 30-cent cousins and should be listed at least at eight times Guide for the least important copies.

DC horror is hot, with stupid money spent on late '60s to early '70s issues in 9.4 or higher. One recent example is Witching Hour #3 CGC 9.4 at $900. Golden Age Timelys, especially Captain America, come in at Guide or slightly higher, with the low grade selling quickly. AMZ #155-159 sell at $200-250 in NM- 9.2, which is 8-10 times Guide; they aren't common but infinitely harder to acquire than the #169-173 variants.

Going Up: All Marvel variants; AMZ #169-173; Iron Fist #14 (first Sabretooth), which recently sold for $1600 in VF 8.0.

Going Down: Dell Giants; common, over-printed Modern issues.

Todd McDevitt (New Dimension Comics)

2004/5 seems to be the year of extremes, from record-setting high grade pedigree Silver and Golden Age sales that seemed to prove there is no cap to the NM price of a rare treasure to the $1 bins at cons filled with 'readers' for the low-end collector. The trick is that this leaves a huge gap in the middle for mid-grade books that are tough sells. Take Hulk #181, for example. I can sell banged up copies – missing that darn Value Stamp – all the time for $25-40 to kids who just want to have one, or I could sell a sweet copy for $2000 or more. But a mid-range copy that would Guide at $300 will collect dust. Where are all the buyers for these types of books? They're not in Pennsylvania, where I have four locations to try and find them.

Modern Age: I have been buying and selling tons of books this year – lots of personal collections, store closeouts, even publisher warehouses. Selling online, I have seen premium prices for complete runs and sense that collectors do not want to mess around looking for missing issues but rather want to get the whole series in one gulp. All the blue chip titles are still sought after, like X-Men, Spider-Man, JLA, etc., but odd titles are ramping up as well. It seems that if you are the guy looking for a Grimjack #63, you don't have many options, and when you do, you don't mind spending a little extra for it. Classic supply and demand.

What's Hot: Yes, it's nice to say that comics are often hot again. DC has proven that 2+2=6 – that is, the whole is greater than the sum of its parts. Jim Lee Batman is hot. It's a trend we all like to see – top talent on top characters. On the value side, it's only a question of how well will they do that determines a quick rise in price or whether or not we will see them in quarter bins in the near future. Another classic supply and demand situation, but escalated by the heat factor.

Fred McSurley (Warehouse Auction Centers)

Quality material has no problem finding a home these days, and there's no bigger audience than on eBay. CGC remains the standard of the hobby and industry. If you're selling high-end material that is not CGC certified, you're selling your books short. If you're buying high-end material that is not CGC certified, well...be careful.

Sales of Bronze Age comics remain very strong as new record prices are realized on a consistent basis. Just a few short years ago, only a handful of '70s books could crack the hundred dollar mark; these days, it's not uncommon for high grade CGC-certified Bronze Age comics to realize four figures.

Hulk crossover appearances remain popular. Fantastic Fours are selling well across the board. Silver, Bronze, Copper, Modern – all FFs are in demand. Miller Daredevils and Wolverines have held up as staples, as have the rock-solid Byrne X-Men issues. Phoenix appearances are highly sought after right now. Tomb Of Dracula and Werewolf By Night sell frighteningly well.

Comics from the Modern Age are also faring well at auction, with new individual record prices being set almost daily. The term Copper Age is catching on. This area saw explosive growth throughout the year 2004, and this growth should continue for quite a while.

Of course, none of these tools replace an experienced collector sharing insight in person. These tools are sources for information and corroboration of actual facts that allow competent navigation of the field to enhance buying, collecting and selling your prized possessions.

Golden Age: Activity is strong across the board with many titles difficult to stock in any depth. Low grade and even incomplete copies are selling, and the high grade specimens always migrate to the east coast. It is important to note that among the usual want lists, we have seen an increase in interest in the following, with very few turning up for sale: Tiny Tot Comics nn (#1)-10, International Comics #1-5, Animal Fables #1-11, Dandy Comics #1-7, Picture Stories From Science #1, 2 (1947), Picture Stories From World History #1, 2 (1947), Picture Stories From the Bible #1-4 (1942/3 only), Land of Lost Comics

#1-9, and of course Shock Illustrated #1-3. Other EC comics move in any grade for popular horror.

Additionally, some other Golden Age titles of interest, due to the paper reduction act of 1944/5, have made the short list possible. As the entire Timely/Marvel catalogue is intrinsically desirable, we'll focus on DC titles: Action, Adventure, All American, Detective, Flash, More Fun, Sensation, Star Spangled, all Flash, All Star, Batman, Mutt & Jeff, Superman, Wonder Woman, all funny comics, Boy Commandos, Comic Cavalcade, Funny Stuff, Green Lantern, Leading, World's Finest.

Silver Age: These met some price resistance on peripheral issues, but of course keys sell well in any grade. A useful tool to move Silver Age books on eBay is the eBay Store feature. This allows fixing the inaugural price at your wish, then discounting or adjusting price as you need to liquidate. A lot of times, accurately graded and described lots will allow for their price to catch up, or enough people who view it will ask questions or allow formulation of a stronger fair market value.

Additionally, the strongest and clearly far and away most liquid book anywhere is Amazing Fantasy #15. Regardless of grade or degree of restoration, these will sell consistently. Many entering the comic book field with an investment agenda see this as a blue chip benchmark and starting point.

A new trend has developed in the collecting field as the heavy metal generation comes into power – June 1966 "Triple Six" cover dated comics. Scooped up in higher grades and slabbed, this might be in contention for the new black in 2005. There are 72 confirmed issues with 29 unconfirmed but possible.

"Triple Six" confirmed: Action Comics #338, Adventure Comics #345, Adventures into the Unknown #164, Adventures of Bob Hope #99, Amazing Spider-Man #37, Aquaman #27, Atom #25, Avengers #29, Batman #181, Beverly Hillbillies #13, Bewitched #5, Big Valley #1, Blackhawk #221, Brave & Bold #66, Captain Marvel #2, Cave Kids #13, Challengers of the Unknown #50, Daredevil #17, Detective Comics #352, Doctor Solar #16, Doom Patrol #104, Fantastic Four #51, Fantasy Masterpieces #3, Flash #162, Flintstones #34, Forbidden Worlds #135, G.I. Combat #118, Ghostly Tales #56, Girls' Romances #121, Go-Go #1, Green Lantern #45, Hawkman #14, Heart Throbs #102, Herbie #18, Hogan's Heroes #1, House of Mystery #159, House of Secrets #78, Jetsons #21, Josie #19, Judo Master #87, Justice League of America #45, Kid Colt Outlaw #128, Korak #13, Marvel Collector's Item Classics #3, Marvel Tales #3, Metal Men #20, Metamorpho #6, Mickey Mouse #108, Millie the Model #139, Munsters #7, Mystery in Space #108, Our Army at War #168, Porky Pig #6, Sea Devils #29, Sgt. Fury #31, Showcase #62, Star Spangled War Stories #127, Strange Adventures #189, Strange Tales #145, Sugar & Spike #65, Superboy #130, Superman #187, Superman's Pal Jimmy Olsen #93, Tales of Suspense #78, Tales To Astonish #80, Teen Titans #3, Thor #129, Thunder Agents #5, Two-Gun Kid #81, Unknown Worlds #48, Walt Disney's Comics & Stories #309, Wild Wild West #1, World's Finest #158, X-Men #21.

"Triple Six" unconfirmed: All American Men of War, Captain Atom, Daniel Boone, Donald Duck, Flyman, Huckleberry Hound, Life With Archie, Little Dot's Uncles, Man From U.N.C.L.E., March of Comics, Marge's Little Lulu, Patsy & Hedy, Phantom, Richie Rich Success, Shadows From

Beyond, Space Adventures, Space Family Robinson, Summer Love, Superman's Girlfriend Lois Lane, Tarzan, Tippy Teen, Tomabawk, Turok, Uncle Scrooge, Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea, Wonder Woman, Zorro.

Within reason, there aren't the low print runs to contend with, and the key ratio is pretty limited. Quite a few people are building their own "Triple Six" collections, and we look forward to seeing the corroboration of information and new discoveries.

Bronze Age: Marvel sells well regardless of grade, and DC buyers are gravitating toward the high grade. The variant machines are still in full throttle with a few 30-cent Marvels slowing but still selling for multiples of Guide. Marvel 35-cent books are screaming hot. Our own Mighty Marvel Western #45 variant sold to a fellow advisor for $180 in VG; that's 45 times Guide! Whitman issues of former Gold Key titles are still insane, and the fan base is wider than for the Marvel variants. We have Doug Sulipa and Andrew Rathburn to thank for their extensive knowledge. DC Whitmans are still slow to catch with collectors at large; give it time. Window box Marvels are coming into play but to a lesser degree in the big picture.

Modern Age: A difficult animal to pen, foremost because of all the cool stories, innovative products and eye candy available. Museum editions as well as RRP books are still overpriced, like the Platinum Spider-Man #1 was in 1990. The retailer roundtable books are placing high in the CGC census while the museum editions won't be graded because of that nasty overhang, so authenticity becomes a factor trading there.

Astonishing X-Men, Superman/Batman, Teen Titans, 100 Bullets, Bite Club, Witches, and Supreme Power are cool reads with a few reaching benchmarks in the secondary market. Horror titles are doing well – Night of the Living Dead, King of the Dead, Freddy's Nightmare, Jason Goes to Hell, Jason Vs. Leatherface, Leatherface, Nightmare on Elm Street – with a range of prices but averaging about $6 an issue. The hardcover and softcover markets are also strong with lots of head and shoulder activity.

We weren't going to mention movies, but the announcement of Sin City at San Diego '04 raised the price of the first comic book appearance in Dark Horse Fifth Anniversary Special to double Guide with $19.99 confirmed sales. Batman Begins will spur international interest but it has lukewarm appeal on the domestic front. The same is true of Superman and its revolving cast/crew. Constantine, once bringing up Swamp Thing #37 and Hellblazer #1-10, 27, will falter due to producers changing John from the UK to LA. We probably won't even buy this on DVD. Blade: Trinity will rock as Wesley Snipes hangs up his fangs as the number one slayer – sorry, Buffy. Look for this film to raise the stakes for Tomb of Dracula, especially high grade magazines. Why don't movie theaters sell comics?

Steve Mortensen (Colossus Comics)

2004 has been quite a ride for comic book collectors interested in the CGC market. The continued acceptance and use of CGC as the industry's standard third-party grading service has brought with it a surge in popularity of graded back issues and graded new comics. We at Colossus Comics are striving to meet the needs of collectors who are interested in buying their new comics already graded and archived in CGC's tamper-evident holder. Our clients are both speculators – those looking to profit from high grade books that quickly rise in value, and completists – those interested in maintaining high grade continuous runs of whichever title(s) they collect. We believe that over the long term, CGCed comics will hold their value and will be the preferred method of collecting high grade new comics. To encourage a love of reading comics and not just collecting, we include ungraded reading copies for all of our ongoing subscribers.

We started our CGC 9.8+ subscription service in November of 2003. For $33/month, which includes shipping, a collector receives a guaranteed CGC 9.8 plus a reading copy of their chosen title. Subscribers also receive first dibs on 9.9/10.0s and they can use their $33 as credit towards trading up. As many of you are aware, it is impossible to offer a 9.9/10.0 subscription due to the fact that some comics never grade that high. The trade-up option allows subscribers to fill in their runs with 9.8s and occasionally trade up for coveted 9.9/10.0s. As one of the top four modern submitters to CGC, we end up with a good portion of the 9.9/10.0s that are graded. We have seen steady growth and look forward to a banner year in 2005 as collectors continue to flock to CGC.

Looking back at 2004, it's interesting to see how the average CGC 9.8 new comic seems to have topped out at about $40/issue and settled into a consistent price of about $25/issue before shipping. I think it's good for all CGC modern buyers and sellers to have passed through most of the initial fad stage and to be settling into the real market, which I expect to remain steady through 2005. Here are some market report highlights from 2004 (as they appeared in Overstreet's Comic Price Review):

January: The international market is hot. UK collectors in particular are willing to pay a premium for high grade comics plus extra for the international shipping. Of particular international interest are Valiant titles such as Solar Man of the Atom, X-O Manowar and Magnus Robot Fighter. These have been great sellers in 9.6/9.8 conditions, at times reaching $300 each, and are hard to keep in stock.

March: We sold a CGC 10.0 JLA/Avengers #1 on eBay for an amazing $535; at the same time, you could still buy an ungraded copy of the comic at cover price. It was the only CGC 10.0 copy of the JLA/Avengers #1 in existence, which naturally added to its value. This sale demonstrates the new market that CGC has created. Before CGC, there was only one price for a hot comic in Mint condition. The lone Gem Mint comic was hidden among the Near Mint comics, and the average Joe Collector couldn't determine the difference. CGC has separated the Near Mint comics from the Gem Mint, essentially creating a new product category for collectors.

April: The market for graded Moderns remains strong. Ordinary issues command a $30-40 price, with many people picking them up to extend their runs in their collections. We are also seeing appreciation among graded Moderns, which is a very good sign for the overall graded market. CGC 9.8 copies of Superman/Batman #1 have gone from $40 to $60 over the past few months. I expect prices for graded comics to follow a similar supply/demand model as most collectibles. I think the best bet for buying graded comics that will increase in value is to stick with the tried and true characters and titles that have stood the test of time. When I started collecting 20 years ago, Uncanny X-Men was the book to collect. I remember picking up my NM copies of the Byrne issues for $20 each as well as the new issues. In both cases, the comics have done more than hold their own. They have become the cornerstone of my personal collection.

May: Our monthly subscriptions are continuing to grow at a strong pace. Many collectors and now comic book professionals are coming on board to subscribe to their favorite title. Last month we had a letterer in the comic book industry subscribe to the title he's working on because he wants to archive his professional work and thought our service was a perfect way to do it. By continuing to offer reading copies along with the CGC 9.8 copies, subscribers are able to enjoy all the benefits of reading plus all the benefits of collecting and preserving their comics for the future.

10.0s are going for record multiples. We received 110 times Guide for a CGC 10.0 Spider-Man #1 Silver edition and 77 times Guide for a 10.0 Spider-Man #1 Green edition. Our CGC 10.0 Wolverine The End #1 set a new record for its sale price at $375. We also sold a few Secret War #1 CGC 9.9s in the $200 range, with 9.8s selling in the $45 range.

July: As some CGC-graded books are settling into more predictable, or at least a bit less erratic price categories, we can take a look at the best grades to submit to CGC or purchase for a collection or investment. We are seeing the end of books like a CGC 9.4 Batman #617, whose value is currently less than the cost of grading that comic. Even a 9.6 CGC grade on a Modern comic has lost its value with the relatively affordable cost of ordering a CGC 9.8 – about $33 with shipping – from pre-order/subscription services like the one we offer.

Our CGC subscription service relies heavily on pre-screening, where we pick out the best of the comics each month from our Diamond order to help ensure that we're only paying for the grading costs of those that grade 9.8 or higher. CGC offers pre-screening for a fee, though a collector has to evaluate whether it's worth the cost. If you send in five copies of the same Modern comic and have CGC pre-screen for 9.8, you might get one 9.8 and pay pre-screening fees for the other four comics that turned out to be 9.6 or worse. For current books, this is likely to be more cost and hassle than if you had just ordered the one 9.8 grade book you wanted from a service like ours. But if you are looking at older comics that are higher in value, CGC's pre-screening cost may be worth the potential payoff.

August: Our subscribers' interests are across the board. Individual pre-order buyers tend to buy what is hot at the moment: Avengers #500, Astonishing X-Men #1 (various covers), Michael Turner covers. Our ongoing subscribers tend to buy what they like and what they collect, which are not always the books with the most hype surrounding them. The Ultimate titles have consistently placed in the top tiers each month since our service first began last November.

September: The modern CGC market is beginning to settle down. The initial novelty has passed and the days of being able to sell almost any CGC Modern comic are gone. While this dampens some initial profits for sellers, what's left is a more serious, long-term marketplace of buyers that will continue buying CGC Moderns in high grades for some time to come.

I'm noticing two types of consistent buyers. The first is someone who only buys key CGC books – i.e. first issues, first appearances, special artists, etc. This buyer is the speculator. He/she is not interested in completing long runs, but rather is buying the Wanted #1s, Secret War #1s, Astonishing X-Men #1 variants, Wolverine The End #1s and anything by Michael Turner or Jim Lee. The demand is high for these books and many will make money on their purchases, especially those buying in the 9.9/10.0 category. This is the type of buyer that will pick up single issues through our eBay auctions or from our online store, or who will call me each month to see what new high grade books I have in from CGC.

The second type of buyer is the completist. This is the collector who enjoys maintaining high grade runs of a chosen title, and who is buying monthly CGC 9.8 or higher copies of Ultimate Spider-Man, Uncanny X-Men and/or Superman. This is the individual that is the perfect fit for our CGC 9.8+ monthly subscription service.

2005 Forecast: I think the modern CGC market will settle into a more predictable price pattern, more or less developing "cover prices" for graded books. I see the prices settling into the $25-40 range for most books. Over the long-term, just like some ungraded new comics eventually fall into the quarter bins, some graded comics will likely lose their value and may end up in a new type of $5-$10 bin for CGC comics. The CGC 9.8 grade is not a magic cloak that can turn an undesirable comic into something of value, though this may have been the case in the early 2004 fad stage of CGC 9.8 books. Modern CGC 9.8 buyers are susceptible to the same risk as ungraded modern buyers, but there's the potential for greater appreciation and return on CGC 9.8 comics for those who choose well. I continue to believe that sticking with tried and true titles and characters is the best bet for values that will stand the test of time.

I also think that current CGC-graded comics will see an upsurge after they have passed the 1-2 year mark. After they have been sold out of the shelves and bins in comic stores – when the majority of the books have been handled – they will be hard to find in CGC 9.8. Actually, the common books – the ones without the popular draw – will become harder to find than the popular ones because too few of them were graded when they first came out. It will be more difficult to find books to grade CGC 9.8+ to fill holes and form runs in collections. So buy them while you have the chance.

In all, we expect exciting times for the hobby in 2005 and look forward to many great reads and collectibles.

Josh Nathanson (ComicLink)

ComicLink (www.comiclink.com) is a full service, automated exchange for investment-quality Golden Age, Silver Age, Bronze Age and CGC Graded comic books and original comic book art. It is important to note that this is the market I am specifically commenting on in this report.

2004 has been yet another banner year for the vintage comic book industry. Sellers are realizing record-setting prices on ComicLink.com and buyers are seeing more vintage product available than ever before. ComicLink has many buyers waiting in the wings and willing to pay retail prices for key Golden, Silver and Bronze Age books. I attribute this to the extremely high traffic being generated by the ComicLink web site, increased strength of CGC, and superhero movies establishing themselves in the film industry. Superhero movie franchises such as Spider-Man and X-Men, and the recent addition of Daredevil, Hulk and the Punisher to the Marvel movie circuit, have helped further the upswing in prices of this comic book market.

The exciting thing is that this seems to be a self-reinforcing cycle with no end in sight. Though it had taken a hiatus until the first X-Men movie a few years back, the enthusiasm that began with Christopher Reeve's hallmark debut in the first Superman movie appears to be here to stay. Let me also take this moment to extend a belated thank you to Christopher Reeve for the first inspirational superhero movie and for his heroic advocacy for the disabled and stem cell research. You will be missed! Those interested in giving to this worthwhile cause forwarded by Mr. Reeve can find out more and make a donation at www.christopherreeve.org.

New collectors continue to enter the market at higher prices and existing collectors are feeling more comfortable about the stability of the vintage comic book market. With such high consumer confidence, it's no surprise that more high dollar books sold on ComicLink.com in 2004 than in any previous year. A number of Silver Age books listed on ComicLink.com exceeded the $100,000 mark – a nice benchmark to set and a figure that previously had been largely unheard of for Silver Age comic books.

Not only has Silver and Bronze Age continued to exhibit strength, but Golden Age has experienced a long awaited revival in 2004. The Silver and Bronze Age market is still hot and will remain so, but buyers are waking up to the fact that Golden Age looks like a bargain in comparison. I have seen more interest in vintage Golden Age within the last year than I have seen in awhile.

ComicLink's new auction section has been well received by bidders and sellers alike. During the summer, the highest graded run of Batman issues between #2 and #100 ever offered to the public was auctioned on ComicLink.com. The auction was a resounding success. Seventy of the 87 Batman books in the auction (between #2 and #100) met or exceeded the reserve price. Most if not all are record prices realized at auction for these books in the corresponding conditions. Most of the remaining issues that did not sell at auction sold after the auction for prices that were within 10% of the reserves.

Along with Batman #2 through 100, the collection above also contained the finest known Batman #1 in existence. Batman #1 is one of the most desirable comic books ever published and the fact that one can still exist in this grade from 1940 is remarkable. Not only is the structure of this CGC 9.0 impeccable, but the color is newsstand fresh and the page quality is a pristine off-white to white. This breathtaking copy is currently listed for sale on ComicLink.com.

Christopher Reeve's heroism on and off the screen will not be forgotten.
(All-New Collectors' Edition C-62 shown)

One other interesting development that has occurred in 2004 is that 1980s books have started to come of age. In the right grades, they are actually worth getting professionally graded. Interestingly enough, a lot of CGC-graded 1980s material has changed hands on ComicLink.com of late, and 9.4s and higher are moving better than expected. I never thought I would say this, but even a few Valiant issues have sold on ComicLink for a few hundred dollars (these came out in the 1990s).

What's ahead for 2005? High grade Silver and Bronze Age Marvel will lead the way in terms of dollar sales and will continue to set record prices. Popular Golden Age DC and Timely titles will continue to increase in price, and will look like bargains next to Silver Age. The highest grade 1980s material will continue to come into its own. Lastly, even more new collector-investors will enter the exciting vintage comic book market.

Terry O'Neill (Terry's Comics)

The best year ever! The end of 2003 and most of 2004 has been the best I have ever seen for comic sales. High grade Bronze and Silver Age comics are the most requested; this is especially true for early Marvel comics. High grade Warren magazines were also in very high demand.

Golden Age: Sales have been constant for Golden Age books. The exception would be odd titles and publishers that most collectors don't know even exist, like esoteric comics. I think a small adjustment downward on these may get collectors interested in them again. Timely comics are still steady sellers but they no longer command the over Guide prices they once did in lower grades. World War II covers by Schomburg are still the best sellers from this era. Some of the weakest selling books at most conventions were the lower grade Golden Age above $50. Some of the better selling titles were Captain America, Spy Smasher, early Detective and Action Comics, which I was able to sell above Guide. We picked up some Centaur titles like Funny Pages, Funny Picture Stories and Amazing Man. It's been a while since I had these titles, and I really enjoyed their fantastic artwork and content. I find it amazing that such a quality company could not survive through the Golden Age. I believe that overall Golden Age sales have not greatly increased because fewer collectors are entering this market. I hope this trend will reverse based on price corrections and building dealers' inventories with quality selections. With so much great artwork, stories and characters, it's no wonder these books are called Golden Age comics.

Atom Age: This group is my best seller in terms of material acquired to volume sold. Humor titles are doing quite well, with titles like Dennis the Menace, Popeye and Felix the Cat leading the way. Also MAD comic knock-offs like Bugbouse are in high demand. Pre-Code horror has been cool, but classic covers still go fast if priced right. I think that the more common pre-Code horror books should have slight downward price corrections. An exception to this would be Atlas pre-Code horror in Fine or better condition; these books are very scarce and in high demand. ECs are doing quite well and are getting hard to acquire. Crime titles have remained steady, with the better titles like Perfect Crime, with good cover and graphic violence, selling best. Western comics have been doing well for the past few years; most of the Atlas western titles have been in greater demand and Dell westerns always seem to move at a steady pace. Some great westerns are the Avon titles with Kinstler covers, and Magazine Enterprise titles with Frazetta and Ayers covers. War comics are all constant sellers with a slight increase in DC titles like Our Army at War and G.I. Combat. All Atlas war titles like Combat Casey, with artwork by R.Q. Sale, sell very quickly at slightly above Guide. Science-fiction titles continue to sell well, with the highest demand for books with artists like Kirby, Ditko and Wood. Romance and teen comics are steady sellers with the most movement in the under $20 range. Many funny animal comics have slowed even when discounted; exceptions are Harvey titles in higher grade. Atom Age books are great bargains considering they are mostly more than 50 years old. If you don't already collect this era, then I recommend you check them out. I am sure that there are a few titles you will enjoy.

Silver Age: I believe that comic fandom as we know it today owes thanks to the great stories and art from this era. Once again Amazing Spider-Man leads the way as the top seller in price and demand. We had some nice early AMZs that we brought to the San Diego Comic Convention and sold almost all of them before the first day was over. There is very high demand for almost every Marvel title from the early sixties; these books sell quickly in almost any grade. Some specific issues that are always in high demand are Amazing Fantasy #15, Fantastic Four #1, Incredible Hulk #1 and Journey into Mystery #83. DC Silver Age has increased in demand once again, especially in higher grade. An exception to this are some of the DC Silver Age keys in lower to mid-grade, such as Brave and Bold #28-30 and Justice League #1, both of which are hard to sell at Guide, and Green Lantern #1 and the associated Showcase issues. Batman and Superman titles as well as DC war titles are selling very well, and the romance titles sell fast in lower grade. Charlton comics have started to move again, with titles like Phantom, Judo Master and Blue Beetle selling best. Charlton romance comics also sell well, but they usually Guide for only $2-3 each in lower grades. Tower comics have slowed since they have started to be reprinted. Dell and Gold Key TV/movie titles continue to sell at Guide or slightly above. Some of the better selling titles are Bewitched, Peanuts, Three Stooges and Twilight Zone. It also seemed to be a good year for Silver Age humor comics, with good sales of Herbie and Archies.

Bronze Age: Each year this era becomes a larger part of the collectibles market. Marvel comics sell best, but DC has been giving it a lot of competition. As usual, Hulk #181 is still the best seller, followed by Spider-Man #129. Conan #1 is making a comeback in popularity while the X-Men titles have slightly cooled. All the teams – Champions, Defenders, Avengers, Fantastic Four – from this era sell well at Guide. The DC mystery titles – House of Secrets, House of Mystery, Unexpected – are selling very well in high grade. Other good sellers in any grade are Batman, Superman, Action and Detective.

Magazines: Warren magazines are still top sellers in all grades, followed by Marvel titles and fanzines like Foom and Amazing World of DC. Some of the titles that were selling this year were Love & Rockets, Epic, Howard the Duck, Comics Journal and Spirit magazines. One title that is in very high demand is Blazing Combat by Warren. There are only four issues but the #1 issue is difficult to find in high grade.

Modern Age & Independents: Not a lot of change in this era. The supply of high grade books is still greater than the demand. X-Men, Spider-Man titles, Hulk and Wolverine are all steady sellers. There was a small bump in the Punisher and Dark Horse titles of Aliens and Predator; this was probably due to the movies associated with them. Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles are still being sought after, with a first print of #1 always going over Guide.

CGC: This service is a boon to our industry. It also provides a way to have quality material protected and confirmed for condition and restoration check. They have been more consistent in the last few years with grading and their turnaround time has greatly improved. I highly recommend this service for expensive high grade material protection. I have seen the product from one of the new competitors and was not overly impressed. CGC will continue to be the leader unless a competitor can achieve collector confidence.

Internet Sales: I was happy with my website traffic and sales this past year. eBay is still a way to move material that you do not mind risking a loss on; occasionally you may even do better than at a convention. I usually keep my auctions to a minimum and only do them when there are no conventions or when I need to raise money for an extremely large collection.

In summary, comic book sales this year have been better than last year. Comic fan attendance at most conventions appears to have been up, and my last catalog was again my most successful. In short, the comic market seems to be healthy, and in many areas, expanding.

John E. Petty and Lon Allen (Heritage Comics Auctions)

Despite wars, rumors of wars, the uncertainty of an election year and a rollercoaster-like economy, 2004 has shaped up to be a strong year, at least as far as comics and collectibles are concerned.

It should come as no surprise to anyone that the growth of this hobby and the rise to prominence of CGC has happened concurrently. CGC continues to bring more and more people into the hobby, as it provides higher and higher levels of consumer confidence. We've certainly seen the spike in prices realized caused by third party grading, especially on formerly uncollectible titles. We've had a great deal of success with high grade Harvey File copies, for example. Who would ever have thought that a nice copy of Richie Rich or Hot Stuff could bring 10-12 times Guide? When they're CGC graded 9.6 and 9.8, they do!

However, it must also be said that the "CGC Feeding Frenzy" only applies to very high grade copies or to truly scarce books. Bronze Age titles, for example, CGC graded less than 9.4 just don't sell, as collectors are unwilling to pay a slabbing premium for books in lower grade. The threshold for Golden Age titles or for key books tends to be a bit lower, but it's still a strategy decision when it comes to what to grade and what to offer raw.

The CGC Registry is starting to make its presence known, with collectors competing for the highest graded copies of books so they can increase their registry scores. Look for this to become a much bigger part of our hobby over the next few years as CGC adds more sets to the registry and collectors become familiar with the service. As we have seen in the coin market, there can be a feeding frenzy for a relatively common book in extremely high grade that someone needs to complete their run. Even a fairly common run of late 1960s comics can be very difficult to complete in a specific grade. It can take a lot of searching, so when one comes up for sale, you'd better grab it now or you may not have a chance later.

Another area that's been surprising this year is the increased interest in high grade Silver Age DCs. Perhaps driven by the amazing scarcity of such Schwartz-era titles as Superman, Batman, The Flash, Justice League of America, etc., when these books do show up in 9.0 or above, they consistently bring record prices. A great example is the Flash #123 in CGC NM 9.4 with white pages that we sold in June 2004 for an amazing $23,000 – a whopping 11.5 times Guide! Likewise the copy of Brave and the Bold #28 we sold in April 2004 in CGC NM 9.4 with off-white pages for a record $60,375, or 8.1 time Guide! Clearly, these books are at the top of many collectors' want lists. The Pacific Coast pedigree copies, probably the nicest examples of these books on today's market, are particularly desirable.

Speaking of pedigrees, with a few notable exceptions, they don't seem to mean as much as they did in years past. Certainly, names like Mile High, Allentown, San Francisco and Larson still carry quite a bit of weight, but the second and third tier pedigrees seem to be leveling off in terms of desirability. Perhaps there are too many pedigrees for collectors to keep track of, or perhaps condition has become such a major issue that pedigree has become less important. Whatever the cause, we're seeing less of a spike in price due solely to provenance. Collectors are generally looking directly at the CGC number, and possibly the page quality, much more than any pedigree designation. Now may be an extremely good time to add some of these pedigrees to your collection as we have seen many Bethlehems, White Mountains and Bostons selling at Guide or a slight premium above Guide. After all of these books have been absorbed into the market, they could again be perceived as rare and a good long-term investment.

What this means more and more is that high grade, collectible books are harder and harder to come by as they find homes in permanent collections. Collectors of high grade books know what they want and they're willing to pay for it. The competition for the really nice books is becoming fierce, especially for key issues. Even as the census numbers continue to steadily increase for popular books like Silver Age Marvels, the demand continues to outweigh any supply. There has been no drop-off of interest in Spider-Man at all; we continue to sell mid-grade copies of Amazing Spider-Man #1 and Amazing Fantasy #15 for above Guide on an almost weekly basis.

All mainstream keys continue to perform very well in our auctions. We continue to receive literally dozens of requests for all Marvel keys, especially Journey Into Mystery #83, Tales of Suspense #39 and X-Men #1. The Silver Age DC keys are even rarer in grade, including, but not limited to Action #242 (first Brainiac), Action #252 (first Supergirl), Adventure #210 (first Krypto), Adventure #247 (first Legion), Brave & the Bold #28 (first JLA), Detective #225 (first Martian Manhunter), etc. If you have these books in VF or better condition, you can practically name your own price. At auction, it is difficult to estimate what these might go for. Three times Guide? Four? Five? We have had high grade DC keys sell for as much as 12 times Guide in 9.4!

Magazines have become more popular, especially now that CGC has started to certify them. Again, these are books that were considered junk not too long ago. Now collectors are starting to take magazines seriously, as we start to find out just how few of these oversized collectibles exist in grade. Early MADs and MAD Specials (particularly the Gaines File Copies), most monster titles, and the Marvel titles from the 1970s lead the pack in bringing over-Guide prices, but this is still a very young field and definitely bears close watching. Again, condition here is the key element. When people think of Warren magazines, they should always realize that there were tons of warehouse copies of these books, but they have still proven to be very difficult to find in truly high grade. Most of these warehouse copies have been moved from location to location, shipped across the country, and ended up on dealer's tables in stacks. Because of this, 99% of them have acquired enough small bumps and rubs to keep them out of the 9.0 or better range. A 9.4 or better Warren magazine is a rare bird indeed, and we have been seeing the crazy multiples of Guide that other 1970s books were getting 3-4 years ago.

Overall, superhero books still rule the roost, although we're seeing strong interest in pre-hero Marvel titles like Tales of Suspense and Strange Tales. Unfortunately, other pre-Code horror titles continue to languish as do westerns for the most part. One area that is surprisingly hot right now (at least to some) are the mainstream Disney books. The market is very solid for Walt Disney's Comics and Stories, Donald Duck (Four Color), and other early Four Colors. To find these books in Fine or better condition is very rare. All pre-1945 Comics and Stories sell for Guide or above even in VG, and VF or better copies bring several multiples of Guide.

Early Archie Comics are as tough as ever. It would be a major accomplishment to put together a run of the first 50 issues, not even taking condition into consideration. Even the early cover appearance of Archie in Pep Comics rarely turns up for sale, and is snapped up quickly, or bid up to multiples of Guide when it's offered at auction.

Original art is as strong a category as ever. Major pieces continue to come out of the woodwork as record prices are set, with new treasures surfacing almost daily. Silver Age art is king here, eclipsing Golden Age art in popularity by a wide margin. Bronze Age art continues a steady climb as new collectors, driven by feelings of nostalgia, enter the hobby. We're starting to see Kirby originals, torpedoed by the sudden market glut after the sale of the Christopher collection several years ago, starting to rebound. As much of Christopher's material, which included great Kirby art from many early Marvel titles, finds good homes in permanent collections, the real prime material is becoming harder and harder to obtain once again. Other artists to watch include Steve Ditko, John Romita, Sr., Travis Charest, and John Buscema.

We're happy to report that interest in comic strip art, which seemed to have hit an all-time low several years ago, is definitely experiencing an upswing. Our sale of the Seashore Collection of newspaper strip art early in 2004 was an unqualified success, with many pieces in the collection setting record prices. Herriman, McCay, Raymond and Schulz are at the top of collectors' lists in terms of desirability, but even the more obscure artists and titles are realizing strong prices these days. It's ironic that at the same time comic strips are struggling to stay alive in the pages of our nation's newspapers, interest in collecting originals is on the rise.

An interesting aspect of original art collecting, and one to watch over the next few years, is the advent of original art restoration. This is becoming more and more prevalent in this hobby, and it will be interesting to see how it affects prices down the road. Will it follow the model of comics and negatively impact prices, or will collectors realize that original art is one-of-a-kind and accept restoration as conservation as many other hobbies have? Only time will tell.

Going Up: Early Harvey comics, especially in VF and above are almost impossible to find, and typically bring a premium when offered. Bronze Age keys, especially in high grade, seem for the most part to be undervalued right now. Carl Barks books are hot, as are John Stanley Little Lulus, Dell Giants, and 1960s cartoon and TV-related comics.

Going Down: For us, westerns are always a hard sell, as is virtually anything from 1980 and later. Non-Timely Golden Age titles typically sell at 20-60% of Guide routinely and have for years. Even 9.4 pedigreed books sell at only 80-125% of Guide.

Jim Pitts (Surf City Comix)

Comics ran very strong through the convention season ending last fall, but sales were soft through both last Christmas and winter, not really picking up until about March. This can most likely be attributed to the continuing war overseas and rising unemployment at the time. After March though, comics came back like gangbusters, making the 2004 conventions season exciting and busy. This is a continuing trend that we see running into 2005.

Nobody can deny that Marvel Silver Age is one of the most collected areas in comics right now. During the last year, there continued to be very strong interest in Amazing Spider-Man. From the Ditko part of the run, issues are sellable in almost any grade, with high grade being the most desirable. As the release date of Spidey 2 loomed closer, we were able to sell copies of Amazing Spider-Man #1 in G- ($800), G+ ($1100), and VG ($1750). A Fine copy of AMZ #3 went for $700, and a Fine copy of AMZ #4 sold for $650.

Issues of Incredible Hulk have been on fire. Hulk #2 in Good- sold for $250, Hulk #3 in Good+ sold for $200, and a couple copies of Hulk #6 in Good sold for $200 each. We also got $300 for a Very Fine copy of Journey into Mystery #89 (origin Thor).

Following Marvel Silver is the widely popular DC Silver Age titles. Chief amongst these are the first appearance titles – Showcase, Brave and the Bold, etc. People are also showing strong interest once again in Adventure Comics, The Spectre, Hawkman, The Atom, and others. Some sales of note in this category include Adventure Comics #210 (1st Krypto) in Fine for $1000, #214 (2nd Krypto) in Very Good for $125, #247 (1st Legion) in Good for $400, and #300 (Legion series begins) in Very Fine for $300. Brave and the

Adventure Comics #210, the first appearance of TV's newest canine cartoon star, is heating up.

Bold #30 (JLA) in Fine sold for $500, #34 (1st Hawkman) in Fine fetched $600, and #52 (early Sgt. Rock) in Very Fine sold for $150.

Fawcett Golden Age remains popular. Copies in any condition are quick sellers. The most popular titles appear to be Captain Midnight, Captain Marvel Adventures, Whiz Comics, Master Comics, Mary Marvel, Hoppy the Marvel Bunny, and Ibis, just to name a few. Sales from here include Captain Marvel Adventures #9 Good + $180; #10 Very Good $250; #16 Very Good $250; #150 Very Fine $300; Ibis #1 Very Good $425; #3 Fine $225; Marvel Family #9 Fine $225; #14 Very Good $100.

ECs, as always, remain at the top of most collectors lists. Everybody seems to be collecting the main horror, war and sci-fi titles. The first 23 issues of MAD have been especially asked for lately, selling in almost any condition. Sales in this area include Tales from the Crypt #45 (last issue) Very Good $100; MAD #4 Fair $80; #5 Fine $500; #7 Very Good $150.

Other Golden Age sales of note include Superman #2 Fair $900; World's Finest #8 Good+ $250; Wonder Woman #34 (robot cover) Very Good $150; All Flash #8 Good+ (slight A) $200; Christmas in Disneyland #1 (Dell Giant) Very Fine $160; Four Color #178 (1st Uncle Scrooge) Fine $325; Jackie Robinson NN Very Fine $700; Larry Doby (Baseball Hero) G+ $110.

MADs are my strongest sellers in the magazine department. More Trash from MAD #3 in FN/VF was a quick sell at $130. Undergrounds are a fast growing segment on the collecting horizon as more and more people discover the genius of Robert Crumb, Spain Rodriguez, Joel Beck, Rick Griffin, S. Clay Wilson, Gilbert Shelton, and others. In my dual role of both retailer and underground comix advisor to Heritage Auctions, it's exciting to see this segment of the market start to get the attention it so richly deserves. My sales in this area included Zap Comix #1 (Plymell) VG- $1000; #1 (Donahue) NM- $350; #1 (Donahue) NM $300; #1 (3rd) NM $100; Zap #3 (1st) NM $120; Freak Brothers #1 (1st) VF $90; Tales From The Tube (1st) NM $225; Dr. Atomic #4 (1st) NM $75; Air Pirates #1 NM $125, #2 NM $125; Cherry Poptart #1 (1st) NM $150.

There is no reason not to believe that if the economy continues to grow, and hopefully the war overseas concludes, that we will continue to see very steady growth in almost all areas of the hobby.

Ron Pussell (Redbeard's Book Den)

Led by a large increase in the Silver Age, prices continued to climb during the past year in the comic book marketplace. However, price increases varied within the marketplace. Golden Age prices were of a slower, more stable nature, whereas the Silver Age continued its torrid pace of increases.

Golden Age

1930s Titles: Slower sales as current prices continue to meet some resistance in the marketplace. DC titles remain the most requested. Renewed interest in early Dell titles continues.

1938-1945: Superhero titles are still leading the way. Timely is now the hottest seller. We remain very bullish in this area as Silver Age prices continue to skyrocket.

DC: Record prices for almost all books in 9.2 or higher. Sales on lower grade issues for most titles are still meeting resistance at current price levels. Key cover issues are still commanding above Guide prices in all grades. Action, Superman, Wonder Woman, Detective, Flash and Doctor Fate/Spectre More Fun cover issues sold well at above Guide prices in all grades. Batman and All Star in lesser grade have met some resistance due to current price levels. Slower sales for earlier issues of Leading, Comic Cavalcade and Star Spangled. Most other major superhero titles sold very well at or above current Guide levels. Offbeat titles sales were slower than superhero titles.

Timely: Captain America, Marvel Mystery, Sub-Mariner and Human Torch sold very quickly at prices well over Guide with record prices for 9.0 or higher. This is currently the hottest area in Golden Age comic books. Other superhero titles had good sales above current Guide levels. Slower sales for offbeat titles.

Fawcett: Good sales throughout. Best selling title is still Captain Marvel and his related titles. Good sales for Wow, Master and Captain Marvel Jr. Key covers brought higher prices on all titles. The Crowley collection has provided collectors with an opportunity to purchase many titles or issues that were previously unavailable. Many record prices for books from this collection.

Centaur: Sales are still slower for this publisher. Record prices continued for 9.4 or higher books. Key covers are still in demand at higher prices. Slower sales for their non-superhero titles.

Fox: Good sales at current Guide levels for most superhero titles. Lou Fine issues still the most demanded with 9.4 copies or higher bringing record prices. Offbeat titles sales slower.

Gleason: Slower sales overall continue for this publisher. Good sales on Silver Streak and earlier issues of Daredevil, but slower sales on earlier issues of Boy. Offbeat title sales slowed.

Fiction House: Planet sales remain strong at above Guide levels. Slight pickup in sales overall for the main titles the past year. Good girl art still helping this publisher's sales. Slow sales on offbeat titles.

Quality: Lou Fine titles are still the most popular. Slight pickup in sales for this publisher.

MLJ: Sales are still slower for this publisher. Record prices for 9.4 or better copies. Key covers are still in strong demand.

Nedor: Good sales as Schomburg covers remain very popular, including his work on offbeat titles.

Classic Comics: Slower sales continue for this publisher.

Funny Animal: Most requested publisher is still Dell with good sales at or above current Guide levels. Record prices for 9.2 or higher early Dells. Record prices for early high grade Comics & Stories. Timely and DC are also popular. Overall slow sales continue for this genre.

Misc. Publishers: Keys and first issues of superhero titles are still the most requested. Key covers are very important in determining demand. Slow sales overall continue for most publishers.

1946-1956: Mixed sales continue throughout. Demand varied as to titles or particular issues versus across the board as in previous years. Still, sales remained somewhat better than misc. Golden Age books.

Dell/Gold Key: Still looking for those high grade Duck one-shot file copies from yesteryear. 9.2 or better Duck one-shots bring record prices at auction. Barks remains very popular. Good sales continue in low grade. Still slow sales in mid-grade above Fine. 9.2 or higher copies continue to bring record prices.

Atlas: Mixed sales continue for this publisher. Record prices for 9.2 or higher copies. Key covers are very important. Good sales for crime, romance, war, western and horror/SF titles. Lesser demand for offbeat titles.

DC: This publisher has also had mixed sales. Most popular areas are still war and western titles followed by horror/SF titles.

TV/Movie: Lesser condition sales are still very good at current Guide levels. Medium grade titles remain slower. Photo covers are the most popular.

EC: Horror and SF titles are very good. Gaines File Copies continue to bring record prices, but not at the hefty multiples of Guide as in previous years. Good sales for MAD comic books. Very good sales for Sbook SS, Crime SS, Frontline and Two-Fisted. Picto-Fiction magazine titles sell very well in all grades well above current Guide levels. Slower sales for MAD magazines.

Westerns: Good sales led by the photo cover issues. Key covers and issues very important in determining demand. Large pickup in demand for this area may force higher prices in the future.

Dell Giants: In lower grade, sales are good. Record prices for 9.4 or higher copies. Mid-grade sales in Fine and above remain slow.

Romance: Good sales continue across the board for most titles in this genre. Key covers bring record prices. 9.2 or higher copies are selling for record prices.

Humor/Funny Animal/Teenage/Strip Reprints: Slow sales at current Guide levels.

'Good Girl' Art: Solid demand continues for this genre in all grades. Phantom Lady is still very popular. Overall, Fox 'Good Girl' art titles had strong sales over current Guide. Key covers sell very well over current Guide levels. Record prices for Phantom Lady #17 and Blue Beetle #54.

Avon: Horror, science fiction, romance and crime titles continue to sell well. Good sales for western and war titles for this publisher. Offbeat titles sales slower.

Horror/SF: Good sales continue for this genre. Record prices for books in 9.2 or higher. Very strong sales for Weird Mysteries, Weird Chills, Weird Tales of the Future, Weird Terror, Weird Horrors, all Superior titles, Mysterious Adventure, Thing, Horrific, Dark Mysteries, Beware, Voodoo, Mister Mystery and Chilling Tales. Key covers range from strong demand to hot. Interior content also important in determining a titles demand.

Sports: Slower sales continue. Fawcett one-shots still sell well over current Guide levels.

Art Titles: Record prices for 9.2 or higher copies. Strong demand continues for Baker, with good sales over current Guide led by Phantom Lady. Good demand for LB Cole books, led by Blue Bolt. Strong sales for all Wolverton horror/science fiction titles, led by Weird Tales of the Future #2-3. Ditko and Kirby books still sell very well above current Guide. Frazetta is still very popular and continues to sell very well. Kubert, Krigstein, Toth and Williamson are still requested at a slower rate than those previously mentioned. Katz and Torres demand small in comparison to others.

Silver Age: How about those Silver Age DCs in 9.0 or higher? Staggering record prices at every auction. To say that this area is hot is still an understatement. Sales throughout the Silver Age has lead the comic book marketplace for two years. Top Marvel titles sell extremely well. Record prices for high grade copies. Good sales in all grades. Early Spidey, FF, X-Men and Hulk continue with very strong sales.

Bronze Age: Record prices are still being realized for very high-grade copies of mid-'70s books. Sales of better condition books from this period are strong at both conventions and Internet websites. The most popular are still new X-Men titles.

Dave Robie (www.bigscoreproductions.com/toys)

The Big Little Book market is growing. BLB and crossover collectors buying BLBs range from 20-year-olds to those in their later years who had BLBs as children. Many antique dealers complain about not being able to sell BLBs, but I've found them to be highly sought after when collectors have a reliable source with lots of inventory.

Condition: 50% of collectors seek VG and Fine books, 40% seek VF, and 10% are willing to pay a premium for NM and File copies. We're seeing under $50 for average books in VG to Fine condition. From here prices can go as high as $1500 and more.

Sought After Formats: BLBs with the "Flip-It" feature, 3-color variant softcovers, rarities like the Big Little Mother Goose books, Big Little Paint books, etc. BLB-related premiums are on the rise but haven't yet reached the demand level of high end BLBs. Big Big Books are in average demand among BLB collectors although they appear to be in greater demand among comic book collectors. Whitman books are clearly in the greatest demand, but a select number of rarer Saalfeld books are also highly sought after, like Popeye, Krazy Kat, and Katzenjammer Kids.

Israel Rodriguez (Midgard Comic Den)

Sales are even higher this year than last. I have not seen this kind of interest in our industry since the '90s book. More and more investors are recognizing comic books as potential investment opportunities, and with blockbuster movies like Spider-Man 2, it's not hard to understand why.

Silver Age: Superheroes are led by Spider-Man with AMZ issues below #60, followed by X-Men below #15, Avengers below #50 with the exceptions of #53, 57, 58, 71 and 87 selling well. TOS #39, 46, 49, 52, 53, 57-65 are hot. Brave & the Bold #28-30, 34, 54, and 60 are hot in any grade. Silver Age war is led by Our Army at War and G.I. Combat.

Bronze Age: These are really picking up, with horror and war books leading the way. Tomb of Dracula, Werewolf By Night, Swamp Thing, Man-Thing, Savage Tales, Adventures into Fear, and anything with Blade move quickly. Surprisingly, Doctor Strange is gaining heat with heavy interest in issues #58-62. G.I. Combat leads the war books with the #201-259 "$1 size" stories, especially #201-202 with the Neal Adams covers. The runner-up in this category is Weird War Tales, which appeals to both horror and war collectors. Issue #1, 8, 64, 68, and 93 sell above Guide.

In superheroes, AMZ #101, 102, 120-122, 124, 127, 129, 134-136, 149 and 194 are on fire, with 129, 134, 124 and 101 the hottest. X-Men #94 and GS #1 are losing a little steam, but #101 is climbing. Superman and Batman are getting a little warm but nothing great. When the new movies come out, all of that will change. Wonder Woman books are getting more popular and easy to move. Of all the books that I can really sell, I would have to say that Teen Titans are number one, with the first appearance of Deathstroke the Terminator in New Teen Titans #2 selling at three times Guide.

Going Up: Iron Man #1, 55, Avengers #1-10, Tomb of Dracula #1, 10, 24, Savage Tales #1, Werewolf By Night all issues, Jonny the Homicidal Maniac, Squee, Lenore, Superman/Batman, Teen Titans, Outsiders, Walking Dead, Valiant comics like Magnus Robot Fighter, Harbinger, and X-O Manowar, What If?

Going Down: Jim Lee Batman #608-619, Quasar, Guardians of the Galaxy, New Warriors.

Marnin Rosenberg (ComicCollectors.net)

I've been in this hobby for so long, that I'm not even sure, but I think this is my 37th year of success in the comic book field. I'm grateful to all of you in that I've been able to do something I really enjoy for so long with this kind of success. Still very much the collector as well, I've continued to add some spectacular books to my own collection, some of which will be auctioned on ComicCollectors.net throughout 2005-2006.

It's become more and more difficult to find ultra-high grade investment books as each year flies by and comic book collecting has become big business with more and more collectors coming into the field, but I have been very lucky to continue to find these gems, and it's been a pleasure to bring these books to the hobby and into the hands of the true collectors.

I'm also very proud of the fact that most of my inventory is raw, and continues to go out the door as fast as it ever has. In 2005, it was my pleasure to have marketed two ultra-high grade runs of White Mountain Strange Adventures and Mystery In Space, most of which sold for record multiples. In addition, when you know how to consistently grade comic books, you get very few returns. In fact, thus far in 2004 – this is being written Sept. 28th – I have actually not had one returned book as yet.

2005 will be the year to remember at ComicCollectors.net. I can't reveal what I'm referring to now, but stay tuned, as I guarantee all of you will hear a great deal from us by the end of this year.

Matt Schiffman

Once again, the market beat and surpassed any expectations placed upon it, even when it was red hot in 2004. It certainly had no problems pushing past a lousy economy, those believing it had peaked, and a real lack of available material in the hottest segments of the market.

Heritage Auctions brought some stellar collections to the market as well as discoveries such as the Lost Valley Collection, the Vancouver Collection, and those found by Terry's Comics, Dave Alexander, and Ronnie Murry. One of the reasons why I believe that our hobby has done so well and persevered over time is the sheer diversity and continued expansion associated with it. Leading the way with a new horizon are the Bronze Age books and their continued growth and ability to pull in comic collectors previously not into this era, as well as new collectors that have hit the 25/30-year collecting factor. The interest in this segment has allowed a spark to be lit in the late '70s and early to mid-'80s books as well. The Silver Age continues to make headlines, news columns and sets records at each sale. Platinum Age comics and Big Little Books have solidified over the past few years and have found a renewed interest both inside the core group and with those new to the genre.

Big Little Books: There was a noticeable leap taken by the superhero tie-in characters, especially the Shadow, Green Hornet and the Phantom. It will be interesting to see how the market continues to shake up now that there is a continuing reference guide for this detailed segment of the hobby.

Golden Age: Just when there were those ready to claim all the great Golden Age books had been discovered, there was a record year for great, high grade books available on the marketplace. Many of them were new to the market and that drove prices to record levels. There still seems to be a softness in the VG-VF range for a good deal of the non-key Golden Age and that doesn't show any signs of really improving over the next year or so. It seems as if more Mile High pedigree issues were available to the overall marketplace than ever before, where previously most of these books would have traded privately.

Atom Age: The interest in this area of the hobby continues to grow and redefine itself with each passing year. High grade Matt Baker and horror continue to lead the way and no real signs of letting up. Out of the entire hobby, the Atom Age spreads are much, much closer than any other segment. With scarcity seemingly prevalent in a vast array of the titles and given issues, prices remain strong in almost all grades. Even many of the oddball and low-run funny animal books show signs of growth after years of disinterest. Westerns and TV/movie comics continue to find a welcome home outside of comics and those Peanuts comics set price records each year that they show up at BeagleFest.

Silver Age: Is there anything novel to say about Silver Age? The reports basically read the same, except by adding in a few much higher and higher phrases in front of high grade Marvel and DC. The DC books in high grade did make higher percentage gains last year than their Marvel counterparts, but that isn't saying much when we saw multiple Silver Age keys selling in the high five figures and even a few into six figures. There are a few titles that seem to break that trend and show strength in almost all grades – Journey into Mystery #83-120, Amazing Spider-Man #1-50, TOS #39-60, X-Men #1-25, and FF #1-50. The DC titles in lower grade continue to slide and have yet to show that stability in any of their titles, and the overall Silver in lower grade non-keys have shown no signs of slowing that disturbing trend.

Bronze Age: An interesting trend is occurring here and we see it starting in the Silver Age but crossing over to Bronze and magnifying in intensity. Price levels for Marvel and Silver in 9.2 or better sets records on such a constant basis that it seems as if it is just a given that it will continue forever. But, the caveat is that those books in the lowest grades are difficult to sell for even minor fractions of their high grade counterparts. Tomb of Dracula #1 reportedly sold in CGC 9.8 for $4,000; an ungraded GD copy passed on eBay for $9.99 in the same three month window. We see this repeating itself across the board with these huge spreads. If history proves out, this will change over the years, but when we start so low, we have a long way to go to get back to historic normal spreads.

Modern Age: Just as everyone said over the years, it's those black and white small press independent books that are leading the market, and by a long, long way. Interestingly enough, the most desirable books have a quality story coupled with their high prices, a trend not seen too often anymore. Grendel, Cerebus, TMNT, Mage and Love and Rockets set the pace for the Modern Age. The low print run Valiants of the '90s in high grade are lighting up the record books and discussion boards. Getting a handle on these mid- to late '80s B&W independents is a true challenge, as there are so many hidden gems buried in their somewhere. They've been ignored and undocumented for so long that few understand the sheer depth of this area.

Al Stoltz (Basement Comics)

I would have to say that 2004 was a year that was not full of surprises for me; the same old items seemed to sell just like last year. High grade was the most asked-for item at the booth at every single show, and rare esoteric comics, keys and comics that are always on lists were demanded just like last year.

High grade comics just seem to have a limitless demand and the prices that people are willing to pay for the "best known copy" or "highest graded to date" have not peaked just yet. CGC-graded comics are so accepted that buyers pay for the comic based on that large grade number on the left and never really even look at the comic to confirm it themselves. The census is filling in nicely and a picture of what is rare and what is not is so easily illustrated now that picking and choosing those hard-to-get Marvel and DC issues to speculate on is very easy to do.

I still believe that just like in the stock market, insane prices for slabbed material will even out and the boom days of the last few years may become just the stuff of legend. High grade will always be high grade and in demand, but is some of the stuff I have seen sell from the late '60s or '70s really worth far more than early Batmans or Supermans?

Raw or unslabbed material sells uncontested at multiples of Guide now at shows or online. True high grade material that we have been buying this year easily sells for two to three times Guide or more at shows as fast as I can slide it in a Mylar. I have tried to buy as much high grade as I can these days and build an inventory of it for the bigger shows, but it seems to only last a few hours and is depleted. However, as grading is in the eye of whoever seems to own the comic, material listed as high grade at shows or online many times seems to fall well short of what CGC or picky collectors call high grade; it sits at shows with large price tags and no takers.

Rare esoteric comics are also forever on lists of new and old collectors. Teenage Dope Slaves, Reform School Girl, and Black Cat #50 can be sold endlessly if you had a box of each. We sold three copies of Teenage Dope Slaves this year in all grades – a FN- sold for $600 and a V-GV sold for $345. We sold a CGC-graded 4.5 copy of Reform School Girl from the "Momma" collection for $2500 at San Diego this summer Naughty books like Reform School Girl are bringing nice prices.

– that’s over eight times Guide. We also sold a GD-GD+ copy of Black Cat #50 for $350 with zero resistance from the customer. A set of Babe by Boody Rogers was bought out of our inventory at record speed at a show as well. Spirit sections also sold steadily throughout the entire year and it seemed I was able to replenish my inventory of them at a few lucky intervals during the year. Giveaway and oddball comics, something I have a fondness for, were also bought at a steady pace if presented to customers and it was explained how rare some of these items actually are. A copy of Stories of Christmas, a Walt Kelly giveaway graded 9.2 by CGC, was sold for $700. A serious price correction needs to be made for comics like Teenage Dope Slaves and Reform School Girl in the Guide. Recorded sales of these items on eBay alone offer evidence of their demand and prices that will be paid to own them.

Key issues and first editions are always going to sell and in any grade that you have them in. I honestly feel that Good Guide and even VG Guide prices are too low on many of the Marvel keys and dealers cannot buy them back at those prices to replace what has sold out of their inventories. Demand is so great for the first appearances of Marvel heroes that it has become a constant struggle to buy and offer them for sale at major conventions. Even the secondary keys like Iron Fist #14, Iron Man #55, AMZ #129, and Giant Size X-Men #1 just keep selling out and are always on my buy list. We sold a VG+ copy of TMNT #1 for $550 this year and struggled to find another to offer for sale. Marvel early issues such as AMZ, FF, and Avengers always seem to sell in lower grades when priced correctly out of our show boxes as well. Those who cannot play the big CGC graded game are always happy just to add books to their want lists and fill in with decent-looking G-VG copies.

Comics I see as needing serious price bumps due to rarity in high grade or just heavy demand are the following: Blazing Combat #1, Albedo #2, TMNT #1 first print, Green Lantern #76, Strange Ads. #205, Hero For Hire #1, Reform School Girl, Teenage Dope Slaves, Sugar and Spike #1, Pussy Cat Magazine #1, Batman #232, and Charlton Bullseye Portfolio just to name a few. Blazing Combat #1 has been sold by us when we have them in their typical VG condition for $250 each and we sell every copy we get. Albedo #2, the first appearance of Usagi Yojimbo with a print run of 2000, has been selling for well above $600 in any grade if you can find them. TMNT #1 first prints have been selling on eBay and at shows for heavy multiples of current Guide. Green Lantern #76 just seems to never show up in high grade, and even FN-VF copies bring a premium above Guide when found. Strange Ads. #205 seems impossible to find in grade due to its dark edges and cover and also sells for heavy multiples if located. Hero For Hire #1 is super-tough to find, also due to a dark cover and black edges. I just sold unslabbed copies that were FN-VF for four times Guide without a problem. Pussy Cat Magazine, a scarce Marvel mag with Bill Ward art, sells in all grades far above listed Guide prices and I can never keep one around for more than a month or so. Charlton Bullseye Portfolio is an unlisted item in the Guide, offered as a mail-in purchase item by Charlton. It had a print run of 500 and has a Steve Ditko Blue Beetle story inside it. I always sell this comic/fanzine at around $50-75 when I can find one. Batman #232 is exploding at the moment due to the upcoming movie; I just sold a VF+ copy for $350 at the Baltimore con and sales later for this comic in high grade may run higher.

eBay: This has been a steady source of income and I find it is a great place to weed out those books that just refuse to sell at shows after a few tries. Most of the better inventory seems to sell at 60-70% of sticker on eBay; that is well accepted on some items after never seeming to find interest in them from in person customers. While the cost of doing business on eBay has gone up, along with non-paying bidders, it still turns a decent profit for me and during those long winter months seems to be a great way to make a few extra dollars. Buying on eBay has been steady and some bargains happen now and then. Rare or undervalued books seem to be followed by everyone and they seldom sell at a steal; lots of last second activity runs up selling prices beyond retail at times.

Fanzines: These also seem to constantly sell for me since I try to keep a nice fresh supply of them with me at major shows. Interest in these early comic collecting items seems to be growing and I hope they end up in the Guide just like FOOM or Amazing World of DC or even Charlton Bullseye. I personally paid $6000 for a run of Rocket's Blast Comic Collector #1-20 this summer. Only four to five known copies were made of the first few issues and how many of them survive today? The desire to own these early publications that helped launch the comic market as it is may finally be gaining the recognition they deserve.

CGC: Graded comics are always a major part of my sales for the year. A few examples of what has sold this year would be: Detective #8 7.5 and #9 8.5 Lost Valley copies for $17,600, Classic Comics #1 Lost Valley 7.0 $2300, Flash Comics #17 Lost Valley 8.5 $1850, DC Special #1 9.4 $270, Star Spangled War Stories #151 9.8 $2100, Detective #400 9.4 $750, Spooky Spooktown #1 9.6 $1000, Wendy #2 9.6 $750, Our Army at War #269 9.6 $200, Marvel Super-Heroes #20 9.6 $250.

I think the market in general is far stronger than just a few years ago after 9/11. Collectibles have enjoyed a strong period of investment and it seems a new generation of buyers is coming on board looking for books from their childhood, such as TMNT and Valiants. Collections also seem to be on the market more often due to old-time collectors finally selling off. Tools such as eBay make it easier for the amateur to just put up their wares for sale and achieve a respectable sale price. 2005 will begin soon with me trying to hunt down all the same keys and grades that were easy to sell in 2004.

Doug Sulipa (Doug Sulipa's Comic World)

ACG: All the horror/mystery – Adv. into Unknown, Forbidden Worlds, Unknown Worlds – titles from all years were way up in demand, with VG to FN+ copies selling fastest at 110-120% Guide. Our pre-Code issues in low affordable grades have sold out. Requests have doubled for Gasp, Herbie, and Magic Agent Midnight Mystery, bringing 120-135% Guide; there was resistance to the VF and better copies. We had some FA/G thru VG/FN nice runs of the humor titles Cookie, Funny Films, Giggle, Ha Ha, and Kilroys, and sold about 90% of our stock at 120-150% Guide. The demand was not huge, but the collectors trying to complete their sets jumped at the opportunity to get large groups in one place. The 1960s superhero titles are in moderate steady demand and were the most requested in VF or better. The romance titles sold steadily, especially those priced at under $15 each. This year, as I identified them, the Herbie one-page original material – all different? – comic strips and cartoon ads were red hot – Forbidden Worlds #125, 126, Unknown Worlds #20, 31-39, etc. – at 120-135% Guide.

Alternative Comics: Many consider the alternative comics of 1975-1990 the unexplored "Last Frontier" in scarce comics. Small print runs under 10,000 abound, with hidden treasures everywhere. No one is sure what will be the hot titles in 5-10 years, but some are buying up some of the better known and popular titles. With many of the scarcer titles, you cannot be fussy about condition and should just grab them when you see them if they're reasonably priced. Record prices were set throughout the year for Cerebus #1 and TMNT #1 as investors see them as the best known and safest independents. That's understandable, but it might turn out to be a better buy to grab the many scarce issues that are still available at much smaller multiples of Guide. Albedo Anthropomorphics #2 – first Usagi Yojimbo – is still hot and very hard to find even in middle grades. An unread set of the very rare Elflord #1-15 (Nightwind Productions, Barry Blair, 6/1980-1982) surfaced this year, but is not yet for sale. #1 is easily worth $200 in VF, with others at $50 and up. Barry Blair has a strong fan following and many underestimate the long term potential. Blair also did the popular Leather & Lace series. Blood of Dracula #4, 16-19 with Wrightson are red hot and hard to keep in stock. Popular titles to consider include Adventurers (Aircel), Albedo #1-10 (hot), Alien Encounters, Aliens (1988 mini), Alien Worlds, all Alan Moore titles, Armour, Army of Darkness (red hot), Authority, Berni Wrightson Master of Macabre, Big Apple, Black Kiss, Blackthorne 3-D Series (especially G.I. Joe, Star Wars, Transformers), Blood of Dracula (hot), Blazing Combat (Apple), Bone, Boris the Bear (Transformers and many other parodies), Caliber Presents #1, Captain Alcobol (scarce), Cerebus #1-30, Cody Starbuck, many 1980s Continuity Comics (Adams etc.), Cobalt Blue (1977), Crow #1-3, Critters #1-5, 41-50 (48-50 are scarce), Crow (first series), Crusaders #1 (Southern Knights), Dark Horse Insider, Deadworld, Dick Tracy #91-99 (Blackthorne), Dick Tracy Ruben Award series, Dirty Pair, Echo of Futurepast, Eddie Campbell's Bacchus, Eightball, Elflord #1-15 (Nightwind, 1980/82), Elfquest (first prints) #1-10 in VFNM or better, Fantasy Quarterly #1, Faust and all other Tim Vigil titles, Femforce, Fish Police, Flaming Carrot #1-16, Galaxia, Gasm, Gobbledygook (1984), Gore

Shreik, Green Hornet V2 #31-40 (Now, low print), Grendel, Groo, Hate, Hobbit, Hot Stuf (Sal Q), How to Draw series (especially Transformers and G.I. Joe), H.P. Lovecraft titles, Imagine (Star Reach), John Byrne's Next Men #21, Judge Dredd, Justice Machine #1-3 & Annual #1 (Noble), Leather & Lace, Love & Rockets #1-20, Macross #1 (1984), Mage #1-7 (1984), Mangazine #1-4, Mechanics, Megalith, Megaton, Mr. A series (Ditko), Miracleman #11-24 (red hot), Mr. Monster, Mr. X, Ms. Mystic, Nexus #1-3 (Capital), Ninja High School (1986/87), Nucleus, Oktoberfest, Omaha Cat Dancer, Omen (Vigil), ORB, all Paragon Pub. pre-1982 titles, Femzine, Phantacea, Planet of the Apes (Adventure), Poison Elves, Power Comics (1970s), Primer (Comico), Pudge the Girl Blimp, Quadrant, Quack (Star Reach), Red Fox, Robert E. Howard titles, Rock Comics (Adams-a), Samuree, Sherlock Holmes titles, Skateman, Spicy Tales, Star Reach, Tales of Terror, Tank Girl, Tick, Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles (first prints) #1-10, Thund'ra tales, Tick, Toyboy, Transit, Twisted Tales, Untamed Love, Uncensored Mouse, Usagi Yojimbo, Valiant titles, Vietnam Journal and other Apple Pub. war titles, Voltron (Modern, 1985), Vortex, Wally Wood's Thunder Agents, Weird Romance, World of Wood, World's Worst Comic Awards, Xenozoic Tales, Yummy Fur, Zen (1987), Zero Patrol, Zot, etc.

Archie: All in all, 2004 was our best year ever for old Archies; we sold 700 pre-1971 issues to one retail customer alone. Many dealers think Archies do not sell, but our 30,000 copy selection is the key to drawing many buyers. All issues of Archie's Girls Betty & Veronica remained our best sellers through the entire year, with #1-30 and #300-up remaining very elusive. Betty & Veronica #1 is very undervalued and could easily rise 50% in the Guide. All identified 1982-1993 appearances of Cheryl Blossom pre-"Love Showdown" remain in big demand and are not very difficult to keep in stock. Everything with Dan DeCarlo sells well, with some completionists even now collecting the original material DeCarlo covers on the 1980s and '90s digests. All 1941-1950 Archies are in big demand, mainly because so few different issues exist, thus causing excess demand. Typically the FA to VG copies sold best, but this year we had many request for VF or better copies that we could not supply. Demand for Archie #1, Jackpot #4 and Pep #22 is huge, among the hottest of all GA, commanding 150%+ Guide if you can find them in any grade. Even the 1950s issues where not numerous, thus demand often exceeded supply. The Laugh and Pep issues in particular were hard to find. The 1950s issues sell extremely well in FA, GD and VG because the current price/condition spreads make the low grade copies far too cheap. Ordinary non-key, non-hot titles from the 1950s in VF or better had resistance, but the hot '50s titles sold very well in FN/VF to VF+.

In 1982-1984, there was an Archie implosion, with titles cancelled and others dropping from monthly to bimonthly and quarterly. Many of these issues are in short supply, especially Cheryl Blossom and last issues. This is likely the era when the digests started to sell as well and even better than the regular comics. Since 1990, the standard comics must have mainly been produced as a future source of material for their best-selling digests, as the comics have low print runs and short supply. A complete set of 1990-2004 Archies would probably be more difficult to complete than a 1950-1960 set. Archie Giant Series #26 and #32 – for the DeCarlo pinups – plus the circa 1960 Archie titles with the SF/horror covers were red hot at 125-150% Guide. Josie and Sabrina remain in demand, with the last ten issues of each in very low supply. The 1960s MLJ revival superhero appearances in Laugh and Pep are in very high demand at 150% Guide if you can find them at all. The regular 1960s non-teen superhero issues – Mighty Comics, Fly, Jaguar – were slower but we had some demand for VF or better copies. The Red Circle and Archie adventure titles on the other hand sold quite well. The horror issues – Sorcery, Madhouse – were hot, especially in higher grades. The superhero issues sold well with the later Archie adventure issues in short supply. Many are just now realizing there are issues with art by Steranko, Morrow, Wood, Toth, Kaluta, Wrightson, Chaykin, etc. The Archie Gang as superheroes, while not hot, were good and steady sellers. Some of the later TMNT titles are quite scarce.

Best sellers bringing 120-150% Guide included all 1980 and newer low print Spire titles, Archie #1-30, 61-127, Archie & Me #1-10, Archie at Riverdale #1-5, 89-113, Archie Giant Series #1-35, 136-200, 600-up, Archie's Girls Betty & Veronica #1-347, Archie's Madhouse #1-30, 95-97, Archie's Pal Jughead #1-20, 77-101, Archie's Pals N Gals #1-54, 224, Archie's TV Laughout #1-23, 91-106, Betty & Me #1-16, Cosmo #1-6, Ginger #1-10, Josie #1-20, 45-75, 100-106, Laugh #20-144, 381-400, Life with Archie #1-66, Little Archie #1-60, Chilling Adv./Red Circle Sorcery #1-11, Sabrina #1-17, 71-77, Scooby Doo #1-21, Sonic #1-40, That Wilkin Boy #1-26, 50-52, Veronica #1-20, Wilbur #1-10, 71-90.

Atlas/Marvel: The pre-hero horror/SF issues slowed this year, but we did sell most of our lowest graded reader copies. Strange Tales #97 is cheap at double current Guide and very hard to locate. The teenager titles were the best-selling this time around: Cindy, Frankie, Georgie, Hedy, Jeannie, Millie the Model, Miss America, My Friend Irma, Nellie, Patsy, Rusty, Wendy Parker and all others were in solid demand, especially anything with Dan DeCarlo, paper dolls and pinups. Romance, war and western titles sold steadily. Crime, sports, spy, and funny animal titles were still slower. Kid Colt, Rawhide Kid, Ringo Kid and Two-Gun Kid were the good sellers. Humor and parody titles were in short supply and sold fast. Most remain quite affordable in lower grades, especially when compared to the more common early 1960s Marvel hero comics.

Atlas/Seaboard: Never hot, but always solid and very affordable sellers. Many buyers want a set of all issues but Gothic

Romances #1 remains rare with VF copies easily bringing $200+. Vicki #3 and #4 are the next scarcest, bringing around 200% Guide or more. Devilina, Movie Monsters, Thrilling Adventure, and Weird Tales of the Macabre sold better than usual, with #1s being more common but not in VF or better. All the Mag #2s are around in less than half the supply of #1s. This was the first year that we got a lot of requests for investment quality VF/NM or better copies of the regular color comic issues. Collectors are realizing they are about to reach 30 years old and are a real bargain in true high grades. There are low quantities of CGC copies in 9.4 or better. Those issues with art by Neal Adams, Chaykin, Ditko, Toth, Wood, and Wrightson are due for large price increases to high grade examples in the next few years.

Big Little Books: I managed to pick up two small collections of pre-1960 BLBs in G-FN average. We had a few requests for pre-1960 issues in VF or better, but could not supply them. The new listing in the Guide has raised awareness and we sold about double what we do in a normal year. The most requested was Smokey Stover; we sold out swiftly. The well known characters brought 125-150% Guide while the less popular character issues sold for 100-120% Guide. The 1977 Modern Promotion Pub. BLBs – four Flintstones titles, Huckleberry Hound, Yogi Bear, etc. – had smaller print runs and are scarcer. We sold a bunch in the VG $10 each range. The Whitman 2000 hardcover series books from #2001-2036 were our best sellers, with our minimum prices set at G $6, VG $10, FN $16, VF $24, with better titles at 25-50%. The best selling 2000 hardcover series books were Aquaman, Batman, Dick Tracy, Fantastic Four, Frankenstein Jr., Lone Ranger, Tarzan, Hanna-Barbera's Shazzan and Space Ghost.

The 1972-1980 softcover BLB 5700 series were decent sellers due to lower prices, with our minimum prices set at G $2, VG $4, FN $6, VF $9, with better titles about 1/3 higher.

The best selling 5700s were Batman, Donald Duck, Fantastic Four, Grimm's Ghost, Pink Panther, Popeye, and Spider-Man. Merrigold Press has several scarce new material issues – Superman, Hulk, etc. – which bring 50% more than 5700 series issues. Most of the Merrigold Press are reprint titles, scarcer than the earlier printings, but they simply bring the same as the 5700 series editions. We sold several of the 1958 larger size TV 1600 series books in the G $12, VG $18, FN $26 range.

There are at least 20 titles in the Golden Star Library BLB 1965 hardcover 6000 series of 1966-1970, and they are not yet listed in the Guide. Golden Star Library BLBs are scarcer, especially in high grades, selling in the G $8, VG $12, FN $18 range. Better titles include Fairy Tales by Hans Christian Andersen, Let's Go to the Moon, Peter Pan (Disney), Pinocchio (Disney), Richard Scarry's Mother Goose, Robinson Crusoe, Sleeping Beauty and Cinderella (Disney),

The softcover Illustrated Classics Editions 4500 series by Moby Books, #4501-4536 (1977/83) sold well in the VF $14, FN $10, VG $7, G $5 range, especially to Classics Illustrated collectors. Best sellers included Wizard of Oz, Sherlock Holmes, Tales of Mystery and Terror by Poe, War of the Worlds, Time Machine, Ben-Hur, Journey to the Center of the Earth, Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde and Great Expectations.

British/UK Items: Two of the all-time most important original material UK titles are Warrior and 2000 AD. Warrior (1982/85) includes Bolland, Bolton, Alan Davis, Dillon, Dave Gibbons and Alan Moore script in #1-26, Grant Morrison, Parkhouse scripts, Marvelman (later Miracleman) by Alan Moore, Laser Eraser and Pressbutton, Madman by Paul Neary, and more, most in the $10-$20 range. 2000 AD spawned most of the top UK talent and is probably their most important title, with #2 (1977) introducing Judge Dredd. #2 typically sells in the $100-$200 range, but high grade copies with the rare vionic stickers bonus have sold for in excess of $1000 at auction. 2000 AD also contains Grant, Wagner, Dan Dare, Gibbons, Bolland, Robo-Hunter, Strontium Dog, Stainless Steel Rat, Leach, McMahon, Alan Moore, Dillon, Alan Davis, Bryan Talbot, Nemesis, Rogue Trooper, Slaine, Fabry, Bisley, Ridgway, and much more. Most issues from #100-1000 sell for $3-$6 each.

We have a bigger selection of UK comics than most British dealers, thus UK collectors are now ordering from us. Marvel UK editions are the most collected, ranging from early 1960s-present, with the bulk of the vintage material being from 1968-1983. They appear in different formats from weekly or monthly comics, magazines, digests, B&W, color, oblong, thick and thin, to the great hardcover annuals. US collectors like the reprints of their favorite characters and their favorite artists like Adams, Miller, Byrne, Kirby, Perez, Smith and others. There are even 1960s unidentified early new material covers by Barry Windsor-Smith. There are also early 1970s unidentified covers and art by Starlin. Hidden treasures include original UK comic stories of Hulk, Spider-Man, Ant-Man, Captain Britain, Nightraven and others. There are Alan Moore stories in Doctor Who and other issues. There are lots of new front and back cover and pinup art by UK artists as well as new art and pinups by US artists like Terry Austin. Most of the 1974-1985 issues go for $3-$6. We sold some nice larger runs, sets and near sets to several US buyers who enjoy odd-ball items and to UK completionists.

The horror issues of Alan Class, Miller and other B&W square bound giant 60-100 page reprints sold better than usual, with Alan Class (1950s-'80s) in the $7-$12 price range and early issues selling for higher. While Miller Pub issues (1960s) sold for $12-$30 as they had less titles/issues, they are scarcer and had more pre-Code reprints. They are a great way to buy cheaper reprints of many issues not reprinted in the US. They are loaded with '50s and '60s US horror and SF titles from Atlas/Marvel, Archie, ACG, DC, Charlton, and others.

The original material UK war comic digests – Battle Picture Library, Commando, War Picture Library – are in demand and still rising in value. Most 1970-'80s issues sell for $2-$6, with 1950s-'60s issues for $6-$20. War comics fans try them and find great stories and good art, virtually all never seen in the US. War fans like them as they contain many realistic stories of various wars, battles, campaigns, regiments, etc.

The UK hardcover annuals of the '50s-'90s were typically published in December and meant as Christmas gifts. Most saw little or no US distribution. They are packed with great covers, comics, art, text stories, photos, puzzles and games, much of which is new material not seen in the US. Most sold for $12-$25, with 1950-'60s at $20-$50. This year's best sellers included Avengers (TV), Avengers (Marvel), Batman, Battlestar Galactica, Bionic Woman, Charlie's Angels, Cheyenne, Doctor Who, Dukes of Hazzard, Fantastic Four, Flintstones, Funky Phantom, Huckleberry Hound, Incredible Hulk, Laurel and Hardy, Lone Ranger, Marvel Annuals, Mighty World of Marvel, Planet of the Apes, Pow, Roy Rogers, Scooby Doo, Six Million Dollar Man, Space 1999, Spider-Man, Star Trek, Star Wars, Superadventure (DC characters), Superman & Batman, Tarzan, Thundercats, Transformers, 2000 A.D., Wagon Train, X-Men and Yogi Bear. UK annual beginners should buy the price guide by Paul Green and Laura Taylor. Many of these beautiful annuals sell for less than similar vintage 36-page comics.

Canadian Comics: Golden Age "Canadian Whites" were still hot, but very difficult to restock this year; many less appeared on eBay. Demand is probably about 400% bigger than supply, thus the high current prices levels for low grade copies. Many have settled into permanent collections. The pre-1947 Canadian Whites of Fawcett hero titles with US comics redrawn by Canadian artists sold very well, but the most sought was the original material Canadian story and art titles. FA-VG sold for $35-$100 each, while FN-VF copies were very scarce, bringing $75-$250 each. Humor titles brought less than hero titles. The better #1s, key issues and one-shots brought $300-$1000 each in VG-FN/VF. The Canadian editions that are vintage variants of US comics are bringing 60-100% of their US equivalents depending on page count, rarity and condition. These GA Canadian variants survive in quantities of 1-20 copies each and are generally 10-50 times scarcer than the US editions. Canadian variants included issues from Archie, Atlas, Avon, Classics, DC, Dell, EC, Fawcett, Fiction House, Lev Gleason, Quality, Timely, Toby, and others. The Timely issues tend to bring higher percentages; the EC reprints bring lower percentages as they had the worst printing quality. The exception is Weird SuspenStories, with a nice mid-grade set of #1-3 in the $6000 range.

Our Canadian French language comics of Archie, DC and Marvel from the late 1960s-1990, again sold well to completionist collectors who like something different. These had very small print runs for newsstand comics, probably in the 2000-10,000 each range, with small survival rates of perhaps only 10-35% still existing on pre-1980 issues. There was perhaps 10 times the output of Marvel as opposed to DC, thus the Marvel issues always sell best as there are more to choose from. One buyer bought over 200 different reading copy DC issues. Most exist in G-FN, selling in the $3-$7 each range. Pre-1974 and key issues sell a bit higher. The new material French language comic digests from the '50s-'70s with western, war, adventure, jungle, and love themes brought $3-$7+ each.

We sold still more Canadian cover price newsstand edition variants to completionists and variant collectors at 150%+ of US copy prices. Spider-Man was most popular, but we also had buyers for Avengers, Batman, Conan, Daredevil, Incredible Hulk, JLA, Jonah Hex, Vampirella, X-Men, etc. For the record, known Canadian cover price variants eras include Archie Comics digests (1/1984-12/1997), Charlton (2/1983-8/1984), DC (10/1982-9/1988), Dell (random 1960-1962), Gold Key (5-8/1968 and 4/72-4/73), MAD (some 1964 and 7/1978-7/1979), Marvel (all newsstand comics, magazines and digests 10/1982-8/1986), Warren (3/1977-3/1983), and Whitman (4/1980-1984). The Canadian Archives has some original art for Golden Age Canadian comics, otherwise art is very rare on the market. In mid-2004 from the estate of one of the creators, about 30+ pages appeared that will be sold on the market. This includes some splash pages and covers. As there is no yardstick for prices, it will be interesting to see what these sell for.

Captain Canuck: Unholy War was released and sold out fast in most Canadian cities. They had a small print run, under 5000 copies each. February/2004 saw the release of The New Original Captain Canuck Limited Edition #1-A and #1-B, each limited to only 30 signed and serially numbered ashcan copies. A and B feature two different endings in the story and feature the return of Thomas Evans, the original Captain Canuck. But our single hottest comic of the entire year was Captain Canuck #15 (8/2004), finally printing the legendary complete unpublished issue #15, originally due to be published back in 1981 with art by Freeman and St. Aubin, story by Comely. It will be a limited edition of 150 signed and serially numbered copies, of which we bought and sold 50% of the print run in a two-month period. The original series #1-14 and Special #1 (1975-1981) remain rather plentiful, very affordable and among the cheapest of all mid- to Late '70s superhero comics. #1 is among the oldest comics to carry a CGC 10.0 grade, with the owner asking a lofty $5,000. Captain Canuck is about to become 30 years old and is now very nostalgic for many Canadian fans. These new limited editions, along with the first printing of the original oversized #4 (2/1977), should make good long-term investments. According to Richard Comely, Captain Canuck Re-Born (1993/1994) had these print runs for the English editions; #0 – 100,000 copies, #1 – 60,000, #2 – 30,000, #3 – 8,000, with much smaller print runs in French. Thus #3s are hard to keep in stock at US $10 each. We have stocked up on all of these, plus many related scarcer material such as memorabilia, portfolios, kid's books by Comely, t-shirts, promo items, autographs, the Canuck issue of

Time, and original artwork items. This was our best year for Captain Canuck sales in over two decades. All the cover and story original art to #1-14 and Special #1 (1975-1981) was donated to the Canadian Archives. Small quantities of the non-Canuck pages, ad pages, etc. remain on the market, but in general, almost no pre-1982 art is available to the market. Comely has done paintings and sketches, and will do commissions, but these are all of the 1983-2004 era. George Freeman went on to do Marvel, DC, First, Pacific and comics for other publishers, with Marvel Fanfare #7 & the Jack of Hearts mini as his first non-Comely titles.

Cartoon and Comic Paperbacks: The mass market paperback format ceased to exist for cartoon and comic paperbacks in the early 1990s, now replaced by the higher-priced trade paperback, especially the oblong type as the new format of choice. Most were sold to the general public and not collectors, thus many are scarce in even FN or better. Luckily, most buyers want affordable reading copies. On most characters with over 10 titles, once you get 1/2 the set, the remaining titles – especially the newer/last titles, most with just one printing – often get scarcer to rare. The once fairly common 1966-1985 Marvel and DC paperbacks are now out of stock from most dealers, and given that many were bought by collectors, you would think they would be easier to find in higher grades. But as they were read, not bagged and handled too often, most are only in the VG-FN range. VF/NM or better Marvel and DC paperbacks will likely become a hot commodity one day, but the most collected titles remain the newspaper strip reprint titles. The ultra-popular long-lasting titles like Peanuts, Dennis the Menace, and MAD tend to have lower values in the $2-$5 range, scarcer at $7-$15+, as more common. The popular but less common titles like Beetle Bailey, Broom Hilda, Hagar, and Tumbleweeds are bringing in the $4-$9 range, scarcer at $10-$25+. Older titles tend to have more multiple printings thus more common and lower values. Short-lived newspaper strips and characters with only 1-5 titles can often be quite scarce and can command $10-$25+ prices. We sold a few complete and near-complete runs, saving these buyers months to years of hunting.

Charlton: This was our best year ever for Charlton, with most titles selling quite well in all grades but mostly in G-FN, as not a lot of high grades are normally available. We did manage to locate a few nicer collections of horror/SF issues due to persistent customer demand. I thought we sold a lot of Charlton horror/SF titles comics in 2003, but we more than doubled those sales in 2004. Horror/SF titles were selling in all grades, but the demand for VF or better copies has almost tripled, especially for VF/NM or better copies. We got in a lot of nice copies in the Manitoba collection and found many anxious buyers paying 120-200% or more for 9.0 to 9.4 and higher copies. While the 1950-1965 titles had decent sales, the real demand has been for the issues from 1966-1986. The 1966-1972 issues are hard to find in even in strict FN/VF or better; these issues had huge demand at 130-175% Guide in all grades, but especially for strict FN-VF/NM examples: Ghostly Tales #55-120, Ghostly Haunts #20-40, Ghost

Manor #1-19 (1968/71) and #1-40 (1971/84), Haunted #1-30, Many Ghosts of Dr. Graves #1-50. Also hot at 115-135% Guide were all remaining issues of above titles, Creepy Things, Doomsday+1, Fantastic Giants #24, Gorgo, Haunted Love, Konga, Midnight Tales, Monster Hunters, Out of This World, Outer Space, Professor Coffin, Reptisaurus, Scary Tales, Space Adventures, Space War, and Strange Suspense Stories.

The 1984-1986 Charltons all had small print runs, which is the main reason buyers go beyond the 1980 mark. The late Silver and all Bronze issues are fast gaining demand. Especially popular are issues with Ditko, Sutton, Newton, Zeck, and Wayne Howard. Also popular are Aparo, Boyette, Giordano, Sanho Kim, Larson, Lopez, Morisi, Staton, etc. Haunted #21-up – the Baron Weirwolf issues – are fast growing in demand. Haunted #37 is the “Fiendish Females” issue, a cool oddball item. The all-Ditko specials are top sellers. One of the most under-appreciated artists in comics is Tom Sutton, and he did much of his best work in Bronze Age Charltons. As buyers gather Charltons, more are appreciating Sutton. Charlton Bullseye, the color comics series, had unpublished new material scheduled for #11-up that ended up being published in Scary Tales #37-up. Many Ghosts of Dr. Graves #54 has a early Byrne cover from 12/1975 and is one of his scarcest early issues. Popular and still undervalued titles which brought 120-130% Guide included pre-1970 war and western titles, Abbott & Costello, Beetle Bailey, Bionic Woman, Blondie, Blue Beetle, Bobby Sherman, Bugaloos, Capt. Atom, Charlton Bullseye (mag), Cheyenne Kid, David Cassidy, Dudley Do-Right, E-Man, Emergency, Flash Gordon, Go-Go, Great Gazoo, Gunfighters, Hanna-Barbera Parade, Hercules, Hong Kong Phooey, Jetsons, Judo Master, Jungle Jim, Jungle Tales of Tarzan, Kid Montana, Mysterious Suspense, Outlaws of the West, Partridge Family, Phantom, Ponytail, Popeye, Ronald McDonald, Sarge Steel, Scooby Doo, Six Million Dollar Man, soap opera love/romances, Space: 1999, Speed Buggy, Static, Thane, Thunderbolt, Underdog, Wheelie & the Chopper Bunch.

Christian and Religious: These continue to be good sellers. Spire is the most collected series. The toughest issues to keep in stock, at 150-200% Guide, include Barney Bear Out of the Woods, Barney Bear Swamp Gang, Barney Bear Toyland, Hansi, Hello I'm Johnny Cash, In his Steps, Live it Up, Noah's Ark, On the Road with Andre Crouch, Prodigal Son, Tom Landy & Dallas Cowboys, Archie, ...and Big Ethyl, ...and Mr. Weatherbee, Circus, Date Book, Festival, Roller Coaster, Sports Scene, and Christmas with Archie. There was a warehouse find on God's Heroes in America, thus they sell near Guide; otherwise all other Catechetical Guild titles are scarce and bring 125-150% Guide. We sold over 50% of Sunday Pix (David C. Cook) stock, with 1957-63 issues in the $4-12 range. We almost sold out of Dennis the Menace and the Bible Kids #1-6 at G $4, VG $6, FN $9, and were unable to find any copies of the scarce #7-9 VF $50 range and rare issue #10 VF $100 range. All the Marvel and DC Christian titles sold steady. The best sellers were Francis, Limited Collectors Edition C-36 (Bible), Mother Theresa and Pope Paul. We sold a lot of Crusaders – over-the-top ‘fire and brimstone’ comics by Jack Chick – at VF $8 each. These are actually well drawn and well worth collecting. We sold a good amount of the other assorted publisher religious comics, but are finding them more difficult to restock. We bought a few collections and now have a huge inventory of Treasure Chest comics, most in G-FN. This title had about 450+ issues, making it one of the biggest-ever series of the Golden to Silver Age. One day, the contents need to be better listed. Our current large selection has made this one of our best-ever years for sales on this title, as many buyers happily filled in their runs.

Classics Illustrated: For most of the last decade G and VG copies were the best sellers, but for two years now, we have had more requests for FN or better copies. Also, we typically sell 10 times the number of reprints as opposed to originals. This year, we had a great increase in demand for originals and actually sold several 100 of them. Also, demand for line-drawn covers and earlier reprint issues is up. In other words, there is a current wave of collectors, rather than just the usual readers, buying these little gems up. I think in part this is because the Golden Age issues are relatively cheap when compared to other desirable comics of the same vintage. The first appearance of new art or first new cover issues are a new type of original and also in big demand, with many harder to collect than originals due to modest prices. Classics collectors now want to have the line-drawn and painted cover versions, as both usually have different interior story/art as well. Those with only 1-2 printings of certain cover or art variations are getting to be in shorter supply; this may result in future price increases on those issues. Many buyers now have their cheaper copy painted cover sets and now need the earlier versions. As usual, these scarcer issues had endless demand at 120-135% Guide) – #8, 14, 20, 21, 33, 40, 43, 44, 53, 66, 71, 73, 74, 84, 110, 113-118, 129, 161-169. Canadian variant edition Classics exist on most issues #1-74; most are quite scarce and contain illustrated text stories on the inside cover not seen in any USA editions. Thus demand is good and we sold most of our selection.

Classic Juniors were strong sellers. Most buyers did not care about which printing and instead had preferred condition ranges. We did have a few buyers that did want better originals. About 20 of the 77 issues are common, especially due to the plentiful HRN #576 printings; about another 24 issues are uncommon. There are about 33 issues that had fewer printings and/or no HRN #576 printings, thus these are in very short supply. Some of the toughest Juniors include #506, 514, 525-529, 532-534, 537, 540, 542, 543, 547, 553, 555, 556, 558-565, 568, 571-573, 575-577, selling at FA-VG at 200-300% Guide and FN-VF at 150-200% Guide.

World Around Us and Classics Special Series were consistent sellers as per usual. We sold a bunch of miscellaneous Classics-related items, including Berkeley/First, UK/British, Moby Books-Big Little Books, Famous Authors, Golden Picture Classics, King Classics, Marvel Classics, Marcel-UK

Classic Digests, Pendulum, Pocket Classics, Power Records, and others. Once sold, many are difficult to restock.

Comic Digests: Gold Key digests were solid sellers but are getting much harder to restock once gone. Golden, Mystery and Walt Disney Comics digests, along with the Story digest, brought 135-150% Guide for G-FN copies with 120-135% Guide for FN/VF to VF/NM copies. Normally these digest collections are rarely found in better than FN, but we located some 9.4 range copies and sold them in the 200% Guide range. All Harvey digests sold well with all issues scarce in high grades. The 1977-1985 digest brought 115-125% Guide. The Harvey digests from the 1986-1993 era had low print runs, especially the highest numbers, which are often found only in lower grades. The low numbers sell at 120-135% Guide, the high numbers at 150-200% Guide.

Dennis the Menace Pocket Full of Fun #1-50, and Dennis & His Friends #38-46 digests are disappearing from the market in all grades, with the early issues especially scarce. VF or better copies are nearly impossible to locate. Pocket Full of Fun #1 is from 1969 and would be a bargain at double current Guide if you can find it at all in any grade. The 1976 Archie digests are fast disappearing from the market and are difficult to replace. Archie Comics Digest #1-20 and Jughead With Archie #1-10 bring 150% to 200%

Guide and are usually only found in FA/G to VG+ grades. Pre-1980 issues in even nice FN or better are getting scarcer, with VF/NM or better copies nearly non-existent. We now have 10,000 Archie digests in stock and sell many mid-grade issues to those who just want to complete their runs. We do get fairly frequent request for assorted #1-10 issues, usually wanting FN or better copies. Katy Keene, Jokebook and Madhouse Comics digests are getting difficult to restock. Be sure to count the pages on Katy Keene digests, as they are loaded with pinups that were often cut out of used copies.

Rare comic digests published by Charlton, and also variously by Xerox, Now Age Books, Ottenheimer and Pendulum Pub., but obviously all related and in the same format with 60 to 75 cent original cover prices, are now known to exist. They are Barney & Betty, Bugs Bunny (1971), Flintstones, Jetsons (1973), Pebbles and Bamm-Bamm (Teenage, Charlton, 1973), Road Runner #63-2970 (1971), Scooby Doo (1976), Woody Woodpecker #63-3020 (1971), and Yogi Bear. They are mostly around 100 pages in B&W and contain short one-page gag comics; all appear to be new material. They are scarce to rare with most having eluded Guide listing all these years. I have been selling G to FN/VF copies in the $15 to $50 range as I am able to locate them.

All DC digests sold extremely well this year, most in the VG to VF ranges, at 120-135% Guide. The set includes Adventure #491-503, Best of DC #1-71, with #41-71 low print, DC Special Blue Ribbon #20-24, DC Special Series #18, 19, 23, 24, Jonah Hex and Other Western Tales #1-3, and Tarzan

Digest #1. It is still possible to get higher grade copies in the VF/NM range, but getting more difficult. These should be good long term item if you can locate investment grade copies. They are like small trade paperbacks, most with 100 pages and 6-10 stories each. This is a great way to get Golden and Silver Age classic reprints at affordable prices. Low grade copies of all titles by all publishers sold well, as many buyers just want to read them. Most digests sold to the general public and not to collectors, so strict VF or better pre-1980 issues are scarce, with strict NM copies being rare.

CGC and Condition: Most collectors and dealers still grade by 1980s and early 1990s standards. When CGC came along, this changed. Comics are now graded by the current much stricter standards. Prices in the Guide are based on the new standards, thus even 20-40 year veteran collectors are often misinformed about the grades of items they hold in their collections. Many people buy off eBay and assume the low standards are the current standards as bad grading is so widespread on eBay. The best way to get a grasp of the current strict standards is to dabble in a least a few CGC-graded books, examine them closely and compare them to books in your collection. Even well-meaning dealers are often mistaken about the current Overstreet and CGC standards, many getting an unwelcome surprise when they submit their first few items to CGC. Many buyers are paying 9.2 prices for over-graded VFs as they just do not know better. Every time someone asks for NM to NM/MT copies, I have to explain that 9.4-9.8 copies carry huge premiums. After explaining, we have found that many of them actually just wanted nice strictly graded VF books that are much more reasonably priced than actual 9.2 copies. Many have lowered their expectations to the strictly graded and beautiful VF copies, and this was our best year for selling unslabbed VF to VF/NM comics in over a decade.

All year long, I ran into collectors with their original owner collection copies, many assuming they automatically held NM to NM/MT copies. Most collectors who bought comics new from 1970-1985 and read them once then bagged and stored them have in their possession comics in VF to VF/NM average. The main reasons for this include: 1) It was assumed that reading once would not lower the grade of the comic. Each comic was not treated as if it were a NM Action #1; 2) Strong and very stiff white backing boards were not in common use until the 1990s, while the thinner gray backing boards that only supplied minimal support and often stained the book and bags were used by perhaps under 25% of dealers and collectors in the 1980s; 3) Most collectors did not hand pick the absolute best copy available on the day of release before handling by too many others. Many stores held the new copies for their customers for them to pick up at a later date. Thus they received random copies often handled several times before they even bought them; 4) Even if one did manage to hand pick their own copies on the day of release, they usually did not have enough copies to select from, thus one often had for example 10 copies in VF thru NM- to pick from. Sometimes none of the 10 copies were above VF when new at the location where the collectors bought them; and 5) In the 1970s and 1980s the fussy collectors avoided factory flaws if possible, plus many selected copies that were as aligned as best possible at the spine. Copies with no factory flaws were considered the highest graded copies. This selection often meant picking copies with corner dings, hairline stress marks in the spine, and copies without razor sharp corners. Unfortunately the opposite is now true in the current high grade market. Factory flawed copies with no stress and razor sharp corners are now much more prized and valuable than copies with minor stress but no factory flaws.

We sold a large number of high grade raw – non-CGC graded – comics, magazines and treasuries from the Manitoba collection. Most of these were from 1975-1984 and had book values under $20, thus most were not worth slabbing. But there is a large group of collectors that want these comics in true strict high grade 9.0-9.6 or better while they are still affordable, and we sold most at 125-200% or more of Guide. The biggest difference between the CGC and raw market is that CGC buyers mostly prefer mainstream Marvel superheroes while the raw high grade market likes the same but especially all the other genres not commonly found in CGC copies, particularly horror. Selling comics raw cuts the cost per book by $15-$25 or more, saving CGC costs and leaving it up to the buyers if they want them graded. We sold a lot of high grade Charlton, Warren, Gold Key, Skywald, superhero Marvel/DC and non-superhero Marvel/DC. Most of the pre-1974 high grade Manitoba copies are sold, but the ones we still had did well. Many buyers are trying to complete large 50-100 book or more (especially 1975-1985) runs in 9.2 or better grades, like Avengers, Conan, Hulk, Jonah Hex, Weird War, etc. CGC magazine grading has so far been quite a success, with many amazing record prices. It can already be seen that in general, less copies of magazines exist in top grades than the same vintage standard comics. A lot of magazines remain very undervalued.

DC: All the superhero, SF, horror and good artist comics were in demand, with Bronze Age selling best followed by Silver Age, especially 1960s. This was the first year in over a decade that VF or better copies were the most requested. Collectors now realize that putting together a large runs of 9.0 to 9.4 and better copies is an near impossible task. Thus those who like high grade and actually want to finish runs bought VF 8.0 through VF/NM 9.0 copies along with any better we could find at a fast and furious pace. Low grade reading copies of all DCs sold well throughout the year, but higher grades sold best for the first time in quite some time.

Because we came across the Manitoba collection, we got in a lot of 9.0-9.8 DCs of 1975-1984. The late Bronze issues are now 20-25 years old and still have very low $2-$10 Guide values; they sold especially well in raw high grades. Contrary to popular belief, these issues are quite uncommon in strict 9.0 or better and are copies that would stand the test of CGC grading. Because of the low Guide values, not many CGC-graded copies are on the market, but high grade collectors still want these books. The Manitoba collection contains 1000s of these high grade books and many found very happy homes at good multiples of Guide for raw examples. This even included digests and treasuries that are rarely found in 9.0 or better. Currently my most requested high grade books of 1980-1985 include Action, Adventure #467-503, All-Star Squadron #1-67, Batman, Brave & Bold, DC Comics Presents, Detective, Flash #300-350, G.I. Combat #200-220, Green Lantern #116-150, all DC horror, Jonah Hex #81-92, Justice League of America #180-261, Legion of Super-Heroes, New Teen Titans #1-20, Sgt. Rock #302-320, Superman #400-423, Swamp Thing #20-64 (Alan Moore), Weird Western, Wonder Woman #290-329, and World's Finest #300-323.

For most of 2004, I saw the highest demand for DC horror comics from 1968-1983 ever. For the last ten years, they have always sold steadily in the normal G thru FN ranges, but not in the hot category. This year they reached the status as the single hottest group of comics for us. The biggest change is that the investors are buying them up in higher grades. There are not many found in CGC graded copies and there is a very short supply of strict high grade copies. Thus buyers have are not getting all they can before the expected big price increases of 1968-1972 in VF or better, 1973-1976 in VF+ or better, and 1977-1983 in VF/NM or better. I have bought and sold a lot of nice copies in these ranges this year and find them extremely difficult to restock in grade.

Some of the 1968-1972 issues might explode in price by late 2005. House of Secrets #81 and House of Mystery #174 are now viewed as major key issues, yet list at less than 1/3 the price of Weird War #1. All these DC horror issues are quite scarce in strict high grades and will not surface on the market at current low Guide values. Due for big price increases of 150% or more are Ghosts #1-10, House of Mystery #175-200, House of Secrets #82-100, Phantom Stranger #1-30, Unexpected #105-136, Weird War #5-20, 64, 68, 93-124, Witching Hour #1-20, especially those with covers and art by Adams, Wrightson, Toth and others. All the DC horror from any year with Wrightson covers, stories and even single splash pages, as well as Adams cover or art, are by far the most requested issues.

Very unusual is the sudden huge demand for 1977-1983 issues in the very difficult to find VF/NM or better copies. Many buyers have told me their local shops do not even have mid-grade copies of 1977-1983 issues any more as they are too low in the Guide. Anything in VF/NM or better in the $8-$12 range flies out the door by the stack. Last issues, giant issues, #1-10, 100s and any key issues are hottest, which tells us investors are buying these books. We sold literally many 100s of raw books at good multiples of 120-200% or more of Guide. Most earlier horror issues in CGC 9.4 would bring 300-600% Guide if you could find them. All issues from all DC horror titles are hot, including the later issues of the above and also including Black Magic, Doorway to Nightmare, Forbidden Tales of Dark Mansion, From Beyond the Unknown, Madame Xanadu, Secrets of Haunted House, Secrets of Sinister House, Strange Adventures #217-244, Tales of Ghost Castle, Time Warp, Weird Mystery, and Witching Hour. Ghosts #97-99 have a Spectre story in each and are very fast sellers. Weird War has been the fastest growing in demand on the later issues, especially these issues, which can now be considered hot and are still very undervalued: #64 (Frank Miller's first work at DC), 68 (second Frank Miller), 93 (first app. and origin Creature Commandos), 94 (first return of "War that Time Forgot"-c/s with dinosaurs) 100 (Creature Commandos invade the War that Time Forgot), 101 (first app. and origin G.I. Robot-c/s by Kanigher), 124 (last issue; 6/1983).

Many collectors are trying to complete their DC special series sets as they like the odd combination of giants, digests and treasuries. All oddball material sold well to those filling in runs, usually in G-FN grades, with most at 120-135% Guide, including Amazing World of DC, cartoon, digests, fanzines, Fireside books, funny animal, giveaways, humor, magazines, paperbacks, parody, romance, teenage, treasuries, TV, war, and western. These still sell well and we filled in many runs for buyers. After horror and superhero, DC's big five war titles sold a strong third in all grades, with Sgt. Rock issues of Our Army at War by far the strongest in demand. The DC "Dollar" comic giants of 1979-1980 are round-bound rather than square-bound, causing excess stress at staples, thus many are now getting scarcer in strict VF/NM or better. Demand for Fox & Crow and Real Screen was strong this year and I sold 90% of our stock in all grades.

All pre-1975 Adams and Wrightson cover and/or art were in big demand. Many now have their interior art issue sets and now look to buy up the cover and splash pages issues they still lack. For example, we have a hard time keeping the Adams cover Tomahawks in stock in any grade, much less in the often asked for high grades. All 1960s appearances of Batgirl, Catwoman and Supergirl showed very strong demand, with even Black Canary and Zatanna appearances showing life. The 1960s Batgirl issues are especially hot and due for a 50% price increase. Minor key issues plus issues with popular villains sold 50%-100% better than regular issues in many titles. The hot Silver and Bronze issues that we got asked for all year long and are due for price increases include Action #347, 360, 373 (giants), 377-392 (Legion), Adventure #381, 397-400, all New Collectors Edition C-54-56, 58, All Star Comics #58-74, Aquaman #50-52, Batman #155, 164, 169, 171, 179, 181, 183, 189, 190, 197, 203, 210, 217, 219-222, 224-227, 229, 230, 232, 234, 236-241, 243-246, 251, 255, Batman Family #11-20, Beautiful Stories For Ugly Children #21-30, Brave & Bold #51-100 (especially Adams), Challengers #74, DC Special #2-4, 6, 11, 28, 29, DC Special Series #1-16, Detective #355, 359, 363, 364, 369-372, 385, 387, 389, 391, 392, 394-422, Fox & Crow, Freedom Fighters, G.I. Combat #66-68, 83, 87-138, Girls Love, Girls Romances, Green Lantern #76-89, Heart Throbs, Hot Wheels, Justice League of America #91-117, 183-185,

Limited Collectors Edition C#23-25, 32-34, 37, 39, 41, 43-46, 48-52, 57, Men of War (especially Enemy Ace issues), Our Army at War #83-301, Our Fighting Forces #123-162, Plop #1-5 in VF/NM or better, Secret Society of Super Villains, Shazam #8, 12-17, 25, 27-35, Showcase #55, 57, 60, 61, 64, 70, 79-81, 83, 84, Spectre #1-5, 9, Strange Adv. #205-216, Star Spangled War #84-163, Superboy #197-220, Super DC Giant #S-13-26, Super Friends #1-10, Supergirl (1972) #1-10, Superman #233-300, Tarzan #207-258, Tarzan Family, Wonder Woman #51-200, World's Finest #169, 173-177. The most requested DC CGC issues bringing 200% 9.2 Guide in 9.0, 500+% in 9.4, and sky high prices in 9.6, were Batman #232, Detective #400, and Green Lantern #76. All could double in raw grades in the Guide and still be a bit undervalued.

Dell: We sold a lot of ordinary G-FN range comics to 100s of buyers, most just attempting to complete their sets. Lowest available grade and cheapest copies were the most popular quantity-wise this year, but we also sold a lot of nice clean VG to FN/VF range books. There was resistance to the VF range copies we did have. We did not have the 9.4 copies that several buyers wanted. I found most will not pay the premiums needed to locate them in 9.4. Mostly only tough key issues are requested. Four Color comics continue to be in higher demand. Western comics were the bestsellers, with Lone Ranger and Red Ryder the most requested. The Red Ryder comics below #70 are getting harder to locate. The Harman #118-down issues far outsell the later painted cover issues. Lone Ranger #1-30 and 112-up were the best-sellers. Smokey Stover was impossible to keep in stock. Tarzan #1-30, 80-131 were top sellers and are still undervalued.

The best sellers at 115-135% Guide for FR-FN copies included: Air War, Alvin, Andy Griffith, Beetle Bailey, Ben Bowie, Beverly Hillbillies, Bewitched, Big Valley, Brain Boy, Bugs Bunny (especially FCs), Cheyenne, Chilly Willy, Cisco Kid, Colt 45, Combat, Creature, Dracula, Felix the Cat, Flintstones, Flying Nun, Flying Saucers, Frankenstein, Fritzi Ritz (with Peanuts), F-Troop, Gene Autry, Get Smart, Ghost Stories, Have Gun Will Travel, Howdy Doody, Huckleberry Hound, Indian Chief, Jetsons, John Wayne, Jungle Jim, King of Royal Mounted, Kona, Little Beaver, Little Lulu, Lone Ranger, Looney Tunes, Maverick, Melvin Monster, Monkees, Mummy, Neutro, Nukla, Our Gang, Peanuts, Ponytail, Popeye, Rat Patrol, Rawhide, Red Ryder, Rifleman, Roy Rogers, Sgt. Preston, Smokey Stover, Tarzan, Thirteen, Toka, Tonto, Turok, Twilight Zone, Voyage to Bottom of Sea, Western Roundup, Yak Yak, Yogi Bear, Zane Grey and Zorro.

Fanzines & Miscellaneous Comic Magazines: The pre-1970 ditto/mimeograph early fanzines had print runs of 100-500 copies or less, with perhaps 50-75% of those copies destroyed over the years, leaving tiny survival rates. These ditto 'zines are garnering a lot of interest of late, with most fetching $15-$50 each and some at up to $100 or more. Some of the better issues include Biljo White, Raymond Miller, SFCA publications, RBCC, Bill Black, Stalin (and Gemini pseudonym), Marvel and DC parodies, famous creator art and interviews, Saunders, Foss, Seuling, Love, Overstreet, Gene Klein (Gene Simmons of Kiss), Fagan, Newton, Fantucchio, and many more. Now that CGC is grading magazines, it will be interesting to see how many of the older magazines and fanzines surface in high grades. Typically, most older comics magazines are found in mid- to lower grades. There is no definitive price guide, although Jerry Weist made a good attempt at one, thus the market is quite erratic. Many 1960s and 1970s fanzines had small print runs of 100-2000 copies and contain early, obscure and scarce works of most of the greatest creators of the period.

Many Fanzines from the 1960s-'90s are loaded with great articles and art. Many are great sellers at $5-$20 each, with scarcer issues selling for $25-75. Titles to watch and some better selling titles include assorted Neal Adams fanzines, Alan Moore (Big Numbers, Shocking Futures, Twisted Times, Warrior, and anything else), Ariel book of fantasy (Frazetta, Jones, Smith, Corben, etc.), Alter Ego, Amazing Heroes, Apple Pie, Art of Neal Adams, Asterix, Bananas, Barbarella, Basically Strange, Batfink & Rubin, Berford Seaman's Flabby Thighs & Butter, Blast, Buried Treasure, Capt. George's Comic World, CFA-APA limited fanzines (Steranko, Byrne, Perez, etc.), Collector's Dream (Olshevski), Comic Book Artist, Comic Book Marketplace, Comics Buyer's Guide, assorted comics calendars, Comics Feature, Comics Interview, Comics Journal, Comics Revue, Comic Reader, Comic Shop News, Comixscene, convention programs (Seuling NY, Creation, etc.), CPL, Cracked, Crazy, Diamond Previews, Doctor Weird (Starlin), Dragon Lady Press magazines, Dynamite, Electric Company (Spider-Man comic strips in most), ERBdom, assorted Frazetta fanzines, Flashback (Alan Light), Fuddle Duddle, Fun Comics (Paragon), Golden Age, Graphic Story, Harpoon (Adams, Chaykin, Stalin, Simonson, etc.), Hot Dog, Hot Stuff (Sal Q.), Humbug, International Insanity (Adams, Heath, etc.), Kosber Comics, Laugh-In, Le Beaver, Look-In, Lucky Luke, MAD, Masters of Universe, Mediascene, Menomonee Falls Gazette & Guardian, Monster Times, Myth Adventures, Neat Stuff, NEMO, Nostalgia Journal (#32-up becomes Comics Journal), Omniverse, Overstreet Advanced Collector (combines with CBM at #22), Peterson's Mags (CARTOONS, CYCLEtoons, SURFtoons, etc.), Phantacea, RBCC, Sick, Sojourn (1977), Spa Fon, Squa Tront, Star Studded Comics (Starlin, etc.), Steve Canyon, Taboo, Tandra, Think, Tintin, Trump, Wacko, Weirdo, Witzend, Wizard, assorted Wrightson fanzines, Zany, Zippy.

Gold Key: The horror titles have started to sell quite well, mostly in G-FN, including Boris Karloff, Grimm's Ghost, Occult Files of Dr. Spector, Ripley's Believe it or Not, Spine Tingling Tales, and Twilight Zone. We got in some nice high grade VF/NM up copies and most sold in short order. We could sell more if we could find them. Black Hole (Disney) #4 is a scarce and undervalued pre-pack only low print run Whitman. Twilight Zone #83-84 are 52-page giants, with lower print run and high demand. All the 52-page giants in the late '70s had low print runs and are getting a lot scarcer as more buyers try to complete their sets. Twilight Zone #84 is the first Frank Miller pro work in comics and is ready to explode in price. It currently brings 300% Guide, while #85 is very overlooked as the second pro Miller art.

The key titles from Gold Key in the 1960s were very strong this year, especially in strict FN or better: Boris Karloff, Dark Shadows, Dr. Solar, Magnus Robot Fighter, Mars Patrol, Mighty Samson, Phantom, Ripley's Believe it or Not, Scooby Doo, Space Family Robinson, Tarzan, Turok and Twilight Zone. These are cheap when compared to similar vintage Marvel and DC counterparts. Very few CGC 9.2 or better issues of these titles ever hit the market. Most well known, long-running established characters seemed safe to buyers and enjoyed increased demand. Whitman Variant Editions are possible for all Gold Key comics and digests published from 11/1971-3/1980, but only exist on about 50% of all titles, with many of these variants being quite rare. These are 1968

Canadian newsstand variant cover price issues that are still selling to completionists and variant collectors at small premiums.

Other top-selling titles at 120-135% Guide included Addams Family, Amazing Chan, Avengers (TV), Banana Splits, Battle of the Planets, Beetle Bailey #39-53, Beneath the Planet of Apes, Bugs Bunny #86-120, Bullwinkle, Dagar, Doc Savage, Fat Albert, Flash Gordon, Fun-In, Funky Phantom, Gomer Pyle, Green Hornet, Happy Days, Inspector, Jetsons, Korak, Krofft Supershow, Lancelot Link, Land of Giants, Little Monsters, Lone Ranger, Looney Tunes, Magnus, Mighty Mouse #156-172 (especially Mighty Heroes issues), Munsters, Nancy & Sluggo (for the Peanuts strip), Peanuts, Phantom, Pink Panther, Popeye #66-80, Space Ghost, Star Trek #1-9, Super TV Heroes, Three Stooges, UFO Flying Saucers, Underdog, Wacky Races, Wacky Witch, Wild Wild West and Zody the Mod Rob.

Harvey: We had difficulty in restocking many titles, especially the hot titles and key issues. We still managed to get a few small collections and enjoyed great sales of Harvey comics again this year. Much of our stock is depleted, yet we still have one of the biggest selections around anywhere. Selection is what makes them sell. I noted that high grade pre-1960 key issues were in very short supply, and those that did appear got

Space Family Robinson is among the many strong Gold Key titles from the 1960s. (#6 shown)

CGC graded and auctioned at high multiples, even on some under 9.0. By far the most requested included Devil Kids, Harvey Hits key issues, Hot Stuff #1-100, Richie Rich Poor Little Rich Boy #1-50, Wendy, most pre-1975 #1-10, and key issues and giants. Others in big demand included Baby Huey, Harvey Hits, Little Dot, Playful Little Audrey, Richie Rich Millions & Success, 1970s Richie Rich titles, Sad Sack (all), Spooky, and Stumbo. The low print run comics and digests of 1988-1993, plus the Alfred Harvey titles circa 1990, are all consistent sellers at 150% Guide, with only the #1s being relatively common. Less requested but still good sellers include Blondie, Bunny, Casper, Dagwood, Dick Tracy, Felix the Cat, Hanna-Barbera titles, Joe Palooka, Li'l Abner, Little Max, Mutt & Jeff, and Scooby Doo.

This year we had many requests for VF or better copies from many who wish to avoid the high CGC multiples, but we were only able to find a few. Most of what we sold were for buyers filling gaps in sets who would take any grade available, with mid-grades the most popular. We cleared out a lot of our lowest grade reading copies.

The standard size Harveys should be 36 pages including covers, but many copies on the market are missing the ad page centerfolds. The 1970s Harvey #1s are a bit more findable and most of the sets that began in the 1970s can be completed with some legwork, thus this is attracting some new buyers. We have managed to find and sell some nice VF issues from these titles. The most popular of these 1970s titles are Casper (& Ghostly Trio) #1-10, In Space, Space Ship, & Spooky, Strange Ghost Stories, Wendy, Harvey Collector's Comics #1-16, Hot Stuff Creepy Caves #1-7, Jackie Jokers, Richie Rich (& Casper, & Gloria, RR Bank Book, RR Cash, RR Diamonds, RR Fortunes, RR Gems, RR Inventions, RR Money World, RR Profits #1-47, RR Vault of Mystery, RR Zillionz), Sad Sack (Navy Gods 'n' Gals, With Sarge & Sadie, U.S.A.), Spooky Haunted House, Super Richie #1-18. Finally, some of the near forgotten Harvey-related titles have shown some signs of life, including Dotty Dripple, Flat-Top, Horace and Dotty Dripple, Mazie, Mortie, Nutty Comics, Rags Rabbit, & Stevie, plus the assorted 1950s war and romance titles too.

IW & Super Reprints: These are undervalued as they are 40-50 years old and still have issues listed under $20 in Guide in high grade, with most under $10 in middle grades. We sell quite a few of these, and my minimum price is now set at G $4, VG $7, FN $10, VF $18. There are quite a number of completionists. About 20% of the 250-300 different issues are scarce to rare and if identified can easily bring 200% Guide. They published without the Code and many contain pre-Code reprints. Some of the better selling titles included Avenger, Black Knight, Blazing Six-Guns, Brain (hot for the DeCarlo-a), Daring Adv., Dogface Dooley, Dream of Love, Dr. Fu Manchu, Fantastic Adv., Firebair (GGA), Foxhole, Jungle Adv., Malu, Master Detective, Meet Merton, Red Mask, Sheena, Strange Planets, US Paratroops, and Westerner.

Marvel: This is the first year in which high grade Marvel magazines outsold low grade. There are still many readers buying them up, but investors are now getting in on a good thing. We had some top grade 9.0-9.6 copies from the Manitoba collection, with Marvel comics, treasuries and magazines in VF/NM selling briskly at 125-200% Guide or more. Tales of the Zombie #1 had only one copy in CGC 9.2 or better at the time of writing; Vampire Tales #1 and Dracula Lives had only two each in CGC 9.2 or better; Rampaging Hulk #1 had 10 in CGC 9.2 or better; Spectacular Spider-Man magazine #2 had 108 copies in CGC 9.2 or better; Savage Sword of Conan #1 registered 50 copies in 9.2 or better, with CGC 9.6 copies selling at $500+ and 9.8 copies at $1000+. All CGC 9.2-up copies brought good premiums. The horror titles remain quite undervalued in Guide, especially in higher 9.0 or better grades. Magazines selling well in the 120-150% Guide range are Bizarre Adv. #25-28, 31, Deadly Hands of Kung Fu #1, 14, 17, 28, Doc Savage #1 and 8, Dracula Lives #1-13 and Annual, Epic #31-34, Foom #1-11, 22, Haunt of Horror #1-5, digest #1, 2, Hulk #10-18, Marvel Preview #3, 7, 8, 12, Marvel Treasury #1-20, Monsters Unleashed #1-11, Planet of the Apes #1, 21-29, Rampaging Hulk #1-9, Tales of the Zombie #1-10 and Annual, Unknown Worlds of SF #1-6 and Annual, Vampire Tales #1-11 and Annual. Pussycat #1 remains very scarce and sells instantly at 150%+ Guide. Savage Tales #1 is in high demand, especially in VF or better. Gothic Tales of Love #1-3 – yes, there is a #3 – are by far the scarcest Marvels with raw over-graded VF copies always selling at $200+ on eBay. CGC 9.4 copies would easily sell over $1000 each.

The Marvel adult cartoon magazines and digests – Cartoons & Gags, Cartoon Capers/Laughs/Parade – sell fast, especially with the “Pussycat” strip or Bill Ward art. It is not common knowledge, but Magazine Management (Marvel) and its many imprints produced hundreds of men's adventure adult magazines like Action for Men, For Men Only, Ken for Men, Male, Men, Stag, True Action. Most have nice to superb painted covers plus many illustrations and photos inside. Many of these magazines have interior art by comic artists. Many have great exploitative painted covers with Nazis, torture, whipping, ‘Good Girl’ art, etc. Early James Bama art appears in circa 1960 issues. Later issues turned into skin mags with more photos and less illustrations.

For the most of the year, all Conan and Robert E. Howard comics have had increased demand, probably due to the new Dark Horse series. In biggest demand are Conan the Barbarian #25-100, 250-275, all Conan graphic novels, Creatures on the Loose #10, Kull #1-5, Kull & the Barbarians #1-3, Monsters on the Prowl #16, Savage Sword of Conan #1-50, 200-235, Conan Saga #80-97, Conan the King #50-55, Marvel Comics Super Special #2, 9, Marvel Feature and the Red Sonja titles, Savage Tales #1-5, and the 1994-1998 Conan revival titles. Savage Sword #200-235 all had small print runs, especially #231-235, which are near impossible to keep in stock at 200-300% Guide. Many collections quit at #100, many more quit at #200, with few staying until #235. Savage Sword #235s in VF/NM bring $30+ each, and CGC 9.4s over $100. Although there are the high grade investors, they are not the main buyers; those who seek them out are mainly fans trying to complete their sets. Here are a few high grade collectors beginning to look for the Howard titles before the prices start to rise. Many fans never got to the earlier issues just as many quit and never finished their sets. Most did not wander into the related Howard titles.

We had many high grade copies from 1975-1983 from the Manitoba collection. There was growing demand and we sold a lot of late Bronze (1981-pre-Secret Wars) and beyond in strict grade 9.0-9.6 copies at 120-200% and more of Guide, including Amazing Spider-Man #190-252, Avengers #180-230, Capt. America #230-282, Conan the Barbarian, Daredevil #182-233, Defenders #91-152, Fantastic Four #181-232, Incredible Hulk #201-300, Iron Man #118-200, Man-Thing (second series, 1979-1981) #1-11, Red Sonja, Spectacular Spider-Man #50-90, Thor #300-350, Uncanny X-Men #143-200. The 1981-1985 comics, now 20-25 years old, list on average at 25-35% of 1975-1977 comics, thus they are quite a bargain. They are much tougher in strict 9.0 and better than one would think.

The Marvel Value Stamp Books (first series, 1974) and later second series have caused tens of thousands of Bronze Age comics to be incomplete as fans nationwide clipped the stamps out of the actual comics to complete the 100-stamp collections. Most completed books were sent in for apparently lame prizes. Completed books, even in lower grades, usually sell for $75 and up. This includes the notorious Stamp #54 – Shanna the She-Devil, which is scarce because you could only cut it out of Incredible Hulk #181. Most completed copies are badly warped with heavy waves through the book due to owners using too much glue. But even low grade copies are in high demand as many participated in the original stamp hunt and completed books are now scarce.

The most requested comics and those that bring high premiums for high grade copies include Amazing Adventures #11, Amazing Spider-Man #121, 122, 129, Daredevil #131, 158, 168, Defenders #1, 10, Fear, Ghost Rider #1-10, Hero For Hire #1-5, Incredible Hulk #122, 126, 140, 141, 161, 162, 180, 181, Iron Man #47-55, Marvel Spotlight #2, 5-11, Marvel Team-Up #1-4, Sub-Mariner #34, 35, Tomb of Dracula #1-10, Werewolf by Night #1-10, 32. These are red hot and even on eBay, unslabbed copies bring over Guide while CGC copies regularly bringing high multiples.

The Marvel horror magazines were hot. All the color comics in G-FN copies were selling excellent as per usual, but there was also a sharp rise in demand for any and all in VF or better, especially in 9.0 or better. These horror titles showed unusually strong demand: Beware, Chamber of Chills, Dead of Night, Frankenstein, all horror Giant Size titles, Journey into Mystery (1972), Man-Thing, Marvel Chills #3-7, Monsters on the Prowl, Supernatural Thrillers, Tomb of Dracula (comic and magazine), Uncanny Tales, Vault of Evil, War is Hell #9-15, Werewolf by Night, Where Creatures Roam and Where Monsters Dwell.

Oddball titles are still top sellers but are too difficult to find in high grades, thus investors steer clear. Most copies are found and sell in G-FN with not a lot of requests for high grade copies. These brought 120%-135% Guide: cartoon, digests, fanzines, giveaway/promo items, magazines, memorabilia, paperbacks, reprint titles, romance, teenage, treasuries, TV/movie, war, western. The mass market paperbacks saw increased demand, with the 1966/67 Lancers being scarce in FN or better and the 1977 color paperbacks through the '80s B&W paperbacks all scarce in VF+ or better. With all the upcoming Marvel movies, it may be too much of a good thing and prices may not jump as anticipated every time a new movie hits the theaters. Low grade reading copies were again in big demand for both readers and those on modest budgets who just love comics (gotta love those fans that like the comic itself more than condition). Due to small print runs, many Marvels from 1996-2000 sell well, with many titles from 2000-2004 being hot. Due to very few dealers stocking up on anything in the last few years, many issues are sold out by most sellers, with many issues selling at 200-400% and more of cover price. Many of these Modern comics have less existing copies than still existing copies of most Bronze Age Marvels.

All superhero titles were in large demand as everyone wanted to complete everything from 1961-1985 in all grades, but especially for strict 9.0 and higher graded copies. The 1961-1964 Marvels are again hard to restock and selling fast, likely in part due to all the Hollywood movies. All these issues were in heavy demand and bringing 110%-135% Guide: Amazing Adv. #1-17, Amazing Spider-Man #1-30, 39, 40, 50, 91-200, Astonishing Tales #1-10, Avengers #1-11, 50-200, Capt. America #109-113, 117, 121-200, Capt. Marvel #1, 14, 21, 25-35, Daredevil #1-7, 16-18, 43, 50-181, Defenders #1-20, Dr. Strange #1-5, 14, 58-62, 81, Fantastic Four #1-30, 51-60, 100-200, Fireside books, most Giant Size titles, G.I. Joe #1-27, 93-120, 141-155, Gunslinger #1-3, Hero For Hire, Human Torch (1974/75), Incredible Hulk #1-6, 111-250, Invaders #1-20, 31-33, Iron Fist, Iron Man #1, 31-100, Journey into Mystery #83-112, Jungle Action #1-10, Kid Colt #91-156, Marvel Feature (first series) #1-12, Marvel Fun & Games, Marvel Premiere #3-28, Marvel Tales #1-10, Marvel Superheroes #12-20, Marvel Team-Up #1-50, Marvel Two-in-One #1-30 and Annual #2, Masters of the Universe, Master of Kung Fu #15-50, Mighty Marvel Western #1-15, all Millie the Model, Ms. Marvel #1, 4, 16-18, My Love, Nick Fury #1-15, Night Nurse, Not Brand Echh, Night Rider #1, Nova #1, 12, Our Love Story, Powerman #17-20, 48-50, 57, 66, 78, Punisher (1986 mini), Rawhide Kid #1-50, Red Wolf, Savage She-Hulk #1, 6, 8, 25, Scooby Doo, Shanna, Silver Surfer #14, Spectacular Spider-Man #26-28, 64, 81-83, Spider-Woman #6, 19, 32, 50, Spidey Super Stories #1-20, Strange Tales #101-135, 150-167 and Annuals, Sub-Mariner #1, 8, 21-50, Tales of Suspense #39-60, Tales to Astonish #40-60, Thor #150-230, 332, 333, 337, Transformers #61-80, Western Gunfighters, Western Team-Up #1, What If (first series) #1-31, Wyatt Earp #30-34, X-Men #1-15, 50-66, 94-121 and GS #1.

year, with about 75% in G-FN but with now some growing demand for FN/VF to NM range copies. The regular pre-1980 copies issues are round-bound and have glossy stock covers, thus tending to split and fray easily, with many becoming detached at the staples. Thus examples in better than VF are getting tough to find. This is one of the most important titles in comics history, yet remains unlisted in the Guide, thus overlooked by most collectors. All were published with no Code. Artists include Adams, Bode, Frazetta, J. Jones, Kaluta, Morrow, Orlando, Rodrigues, Romita, A. Roth, Springer, Barry Windsor-Smith, G. Wilson, Wrightson, and more. Many nostalgic fans recall certain hilarious parodies, gags and stories, and want to get those issues back. They are loaded with great color comic strip parodies on many subjects. #1-10 bring $40-up, with #11-30 in the $10-$30 range and #31-100 and up at $4-$12 range. The 1986-1993 issues had low print runs and are difficult to restock, thus our minimum prices are now VF $9, FN $6, VG $4. The 1964 High School Yearbook parody has been reprinted, thus there is slow demand on the original. But collectors still want first printings. Many people are now collecting all the square-bound specials. Most were well read and typically show up in FA, G and VG, with FN copies being uncommon and VF or better being scarce. The stiff cardboard covers on the specials show creases easily, especially if read from cover to cover even once. Our minimum price on the specials is now G $5, VG $9, FN $14, VF $20.

Romance: Collectors like these as they are scarcer than most other genres, especially in higher grades, and they are filled with unintentionally funny stories. Many have great artwork and surprise, they are filled with girls, which appeal to a lot of guys. The pre-1960 assorted publisher issues are in low supply on the market, which means they have been selling. The better sellers at 115-135% Guide are titles by Atlas, Avon, Fox, Prize, St John's, Superior, and Ziff-Davis. The Matt Baker, Kirby, photo cover, minor key, 'Good Girl' art, and exploitation issues are in highest demand. We got in some nice collections of both DC and Marvel 1950s-'70s love comics, mostly in G-FN; we sold a lot of all titles. There are a lot of collectors that search all the major dealers trying to fill in holes in their collections. There are a surprising number of completionists for the DC and Marvel titles. Only a few have attempted to collect these in high grades as it is rather futile; high grade collectors mostly want just the key issues. Gothic Tales of Love #1-3 and Gothic Romances were impossible to find, often bringing 200-500% Guide on eBay on the rare occasions when they appeared. These would still be undervalued at double current Guide. Skywald's Tender Love and Warren's Teen Love Stories from 1969/70 sold well to completionists of those publishers. We sold a lot of Charlton love as well, with G-FN the most popular grades, and with resistance to VF or better copies.

Treasures: Treasury Edition oversized comics sold better than usual this year. We actually sold out most of our lowest graded copies under VG, as they are too cheap in Guide in those grades. This year we finally turned up some high grade 9.0 to 9.6 copies from the Manitoba collection, and these sold swiftly at 120-200%+ Guide. These are normally quite scarce in better than strict VF. The hottest issues, bringing 115%-135% Guide, are All-New Collectors Edition C#53-56, and 58, Annie (scarce), Captain America's Bicentennial Battles, Christmas with Archie (rare), DC Special Series #27, Famous First Edition F-4 to F-8, Fantastic World of Hanna-Barbera #1-3, G.I. Joe (scarce), Golden Picture Storybook #1-4 (rare), Jungle Book, King Kong, Limited Collectors Edition C#21, 23-25, 32-34, 37-39, 41-52, Marvel Special Edition (Spectacular Spider-Man) #1 (1975), Marvel Treasury #1-28, Superman vs. Spider-Man #1, and the Walt Disney Paint Book series. In addition, we sold several of the scarce unlisted Modern Promotions 1972 B&W issues with newspaper strip reprints – Beetle Bailey, Flash Gordon, Katzenjammer Kids, Mandrake the Magician, etc. – at G $9, VG $15, and FN $22.

Tower: This year we saw increased demand for most titles. All grades sold well, but we got more requests than usual for FN or better copies. Dynamo, Fight the Enemy, Noman, Thunder Agents, and Undersea Agents are loaded with great art by Wood, Ditko, Crandall and others, and these great titles are due for a price increase. We had one high grade run of Thunder Agents, and most sold swiftly at about 120% Guide. The Tippy Teen titles still sell well, but more to readers who prefer low grade cheaper copies.

Valiant/Acclaim: The Scarcer Valiant titles are still gaining momentum, especially the hard to find premium editions. The low print regular editions from 1991-1992 are getting scarcer in strict VF/NM or better. Many of the later and last issues already regularly sell well over Guide. Most variants we were not able to stock, but had multiple customer requests. I tried to win some, usually without success, and followed many eBay prices for VF/NM or better. The key issues to grab while you still can include most Valiant Gold editions at $20-35+ each, with CGC copies much higher, most Valiant Signature Series issues at $50-75+ each, with CGC copies much higher, Bloodshot #50, 51 ($10+), Chaos Effect Alpha (Red cover $200+), Harbinger #0 (pink send-away $70), #1 ($40+), #2-10 ($6-$15 each), #41 ($10+); Hard Corps #30 ($7); Magnus #0 (with card $50+), #1 ($12), #2-10 ($6-10), 12 ($25), 64 ($12), Ninjak #26 ($7), Predator vs. Magnus #1 (Platinum $12), Rai #0 ($12), #1-2 ($12 each), #3-4 ($24 each), 5 ($10), 33 ($10), Dr. Mirage #18 ($6), Shadowman #1 ($10), #43 ($12), Solar #1-9 ($8-12 each), #10 ($20+), #58-59 ($7 each), #60 ($14), Solar Alpha & Omega #0 (HC $60), Turok #47 ($15), Unity #0 (Red variant $90), Unity Trade Paperback (Diamond Distributors $120), Valiant Voice #11-19 ($10-$20 each and up), X-O Manowar #68 ($15). CGC copies can often bring much higher multiples if you can find them. We have a hard time keeping the regular issues in stock, much less the premium issues. Plus many of the Acclaim revival issues had even smaller print runs of 5000 or less and should also be watched.

Variants and Premium Editions: The Marvel 30- and 35-cent variants showed strong demand. I had a hard time stocking anything of note. The Guide prices are perhaps more off on these than almost anything. Spider-Man is still the most requested. The western, war, horror and reprint title issues turn out to be some of the scarcest, with mid-grade unslabbed copies sometimes selling at over $200 on eBay. The Marvel 30-cent price variants brought 300%-1000%+ regular issue prices in grade. Our minimum price on these 30-cent variants is G $10, VG $15, FN $22, VF $35, NM $50. Minimum for 35-cent variants begins at double these prices.

Canadian variants with higher cover prices were again popular but are often mistaken by Americans as rare variants. Newer variants like Gold,

Platinum, Signed and Numbered, cover variants, etc., are normally fast sellers when new and become slow later. The exception seems to be long-proven characters like Vampirella. The Valiant premium editions are now hot. As some of these premium editions get older, if the character remains popular, they can begin to rise again in price. It will be interesting to see what they sell for in 10-20 years. Early Direct Distribution copies were mistaken for Whitman editions all year.

Warren, Skywald, Eerie/Stanley and other Horror Comic Magazines: Horror magazines were top sellers again this year. We had some top grade 9.0-9.6 copies from the Manitoba collection, with Skywald and Warren in VF/NM-NM selling briskly at 125-200% Guide or more. We also have solid demand for low graded reader copies too, selling several large 100-300 copy lots to eager buyers. The magazines from Eerie, Modern Day and Stanley still sold better to readers but garnered a few higher grade collectors recently too, especially pre-1971 and the low print 1979-1982 issues. Creepy and Eerie have less than five CGC-graded copies for most issues above #10 and not a lot for those under #10 – there goes the theory that they are common in high grades. Most higher grade Warren and Skywald magazines only grade in VF-VF+, with a big shortage of strict VF/NM or better copies. Nightmare, Psycho and Scream exist in much smaller quantities than Warrens, while demand grows stronger each year. Thus Skywalds should on average and often do bring 150-200% the price of the average Warren. We sold almost every VF or better Skywald I could get my hands on and also sold out on many issues in any grade.

Eerie #17 and Blazing Combat #1 easily bring 200% of

Guide in any grade. Eerie #17 had a bad interior cutting factory flaw, thus the highest CGC-graded copy to date is a FN 6.0. If a CGC 9.4 Eerie #17 ever surfaces, it will bring $2000-$4000. We sold a good number of Dracula (magazine, New English Library Pub., 1971, full color, Estaban Maroto art) #1-12 at $5-$10 each in VG-VF+ as part of this run was reprinted to make the Dracula trade paperback for Warren. Help, Warren's classic Harvey Kurtzman humor magazine, badly needs to be listed in the Guide as one of the most important comics-related humor magazines in history. CGC is grading Famous Monsters, with the current highest grade at 9.0. If one ever surfaces in 9.4, it would likely break the $10,000 barrier. Most requested issues bringing 120-150% Guide or more include Blazing Combat #1, 2, and Anthology, Comix International #1, Creepy #9, 10, 14, 17-19, 29, 32, 50, 71, 76, 78, 113, 132-146, Eerie #5, 8, 17, 18, 23-25, 28, 38-40, 45, 60, 81, 94, 95, 98, 108, 125, 128, 130-139, Edgar Allan Poe's Fall of the House of Usher HC, Famous Monsters #1-32 and paperbacks, Ghoul Tales, Nightmare #1-10, 20-23, Odd World of Richard Corben, Psycho #1-10, 20-24, Scream #1-3, 8-11, Sbock, Spacemen (Warren), Spirit Special, Teen Love Stories #1-3, Terrors of Dracula, Vampirella #1-8, 12, 16, 19, 33, 36, 41, 45, 46, 48, 52, 61, 63, 64, 77, 78, 100-113, Annual #1, Special #1, UK magazines #1-4, paperbacks (UK and US) #1-6, Web of Horror #1-3, Weird Vampire Tales, Wildest Westerns/Favorite Westerns of Filmland #1-6.

Website/eBay: We did not sell much on eBay because prices were low on many unslabbed comics. But with large scans and being a known dealer, we did do some decent sales when we liquidated some Silver Age collections for clients. I did not buy much off eBay this year due to grading problems. I instead paid more but saved time and received properly graded comics by restocking from reliable well-known dealers. We ran into problems restocking many non-Marvel and non-DC items, especially Charlton, Harvey, Archie and 1966-1980 horror comics, as most dealers were sold out of the issues we required.

Our website – www.dougcomicworld.com – contains about 100 categories, many non-comic related, to choose from, with 10 to 150 pages of items listed in each category...and we have only listed 70% our inventory. If printed out, these listings would be about 5000 printed pages. Many of these categories have the biggest selection on the Internet. Many buyers do not like our website as they expect to see a shopping basket with everything graded and priced. They do not comprehend that we do not have a small 100,000 item inventory. We have perhaps 3 million items in stock, thus properly grading and pricing everything would take 10 or more years. By the time 25% were done, the first 10% would be obsolete. It has taken us four years to list the items currently listed on our website. We add 1000s of items each month to the lists. We make 1000s of updates each month for items sold, and all this on top of answering e-mails, phone calls and letters, as well as pulling, grading, pricing, processing, wrapping and shipping 100s of orders per month. All this is well under control by our current methods. Many buyers now prefer not to have to order single items one at a time in those annoying shopping baskets. A quick e-mail or phone call with most want lists is all that we need to go into action. The result – buyers often make orders for 50, 100, 300 and even 1000 items in a single order. I strongly feel that having most of my items catalogued for what is actually in stock is far better than having 10% of the items graded and priced in shopping baskets. We are extremely busy with returning customers, plus many new buyers that find those few things they need through search engines, with our third greatest customer source being referrals from happy buyers and even from other dealers. Some buyers expect us to compete with the lowest eBay prices, which we cannot do. Most of our buyers actually place a value on their time and appreciate our efforts to maintain our inventory levels with so many hard-to-find items. Most uncommon items under $10 are simply not worth the time, effort, expenses, aggravation and shipping charges to be worth bargain hunting. We excel at filling in gaps in collections at reasonable costs. Our customers prefer to buy many well-graded items all at once from one seller at reasonable market value prices over buying single items via auctions.

War and Western Misc. Pre-1960: There are many fans of both genres. Rather than collecting certain characters, these fans collect by genre. When they grow weary or jaded by Marvel, DC, Dell, Charlton, Fawcett and the other major publishers, they look for something different. The Fawcett westerns are rather high priced, thus some major resistance in grades above FN, but G and VG copies are affordable and selling well. There are a lot less war comics than western in the pre-1960 era, thus almost anything tends to sell well if in the $5-$35 price range. The EC war comics are beginning to sell again and remain some of the best comics ever. War comics from Ace, Farrell, Standard and Toby tend to sell faster than those by the more collectible publishers like Avon and Ziff-Davis, mainly because they are cheaper. The pre-Charlton St. John's are in double the demand, as Charlton collectors extend their sets back to the early issues. G.I. Joe and Joe Yank are extremely popular, especially those issues with Dan DeCarlo art. We sold a good number of Wings comics from Fiction House; they have exceptional art and good stories. In the oddball western comics, the 'Good Artist,' photo cover and known character issues sell first. The better selling publishers included Hillman, ME, St John's, and Toby. There was resistance to issues in better than FN and those priced over $50. Best selling titles were Billy the Kid, Black Diamond Western, Bobby Benson, Bulls-Eye, Dead-Eye Western, Indians, Jesse James, John Wayne, Masked Ranger, Prize, Red Mask, Straight Arrow, and Tom Holt.

Whitmans: The pre-pack only Whitman comics of August-December 1980 are still hot. After years of looking and through many collectors, we have determined that Porky Pig #99 was never printed and needs to be removed from the Guide. At least ten copies each exist of all the other 8-12/1980 Whitmans. This leaves Super Goof #61 as the rarest Whitman. eBay and other sales (not our sales) include Battle of the Planets #7 (CGC FN 6.0 $90), Daffy Duck #131 (CGC 6.5 $150), Daisy & Donald #47 (CGG 9.0 $122.50), Little Lulu #260 (CGC 9.2 $1535; CGC 3.0 $690; CGC 9.8 $1827), Super Goof #61 (rare; VG $399.04), Uncle Scrooge #179 (CGG 9.2 $800), Winnie the Pooh #22 (CGC 6.0 $400; CGC 7.5 $500), WDC&S #480 (CGC 9.2 $400).

Like it or not, the 8-12/1980 Whitmans have proven for over three years on eBay to be among the rarest comics of the last 50 years, and they continue to bring record prices, often for unslabbed copies. Super Goof #61 and Winnie the Pooh #22 are currently bringing $400 for mid-grade copies between a small number of buyers/sellers. These, along with Daisy #47, Mickey #208 and BOP #7, should all list at perhaps $120 each in the Guide. Once the rarity of 8-12/1980 Whitmans becomes more common knowledge and Guide price continue to rise, I expect more copies will surface and prices will settle into more realistic levels. Lulu #260 and Scrooge #179 remain the big two and should list in the $700+ range as those prices are now proven. Donald Duck #222 has cooled, but still needs to rise to $300+ in the Guide. WDC&S #480 should also list about 50% higher.

This rarity list was provided by top Whitman collector Andrew Rathburn. The rarest 8-12/1980 pre-pack only Whitmans, ranging from rarest to lesser scarcity issues, are as follows. With 10-50 copies of each issue currently known to exist: Super Goof #61, Little Lulu #260, Tom and Jerry #332, Looney Tunes #34, Daffy Duck #130, Winnie the Pooh #22, Looney Tunes #35, Popeye #158, Woody Woodpecker #190, 191, Yosemite Sam #70, Chip and Dale #69, Beep Beep Road Runner #93, Pink Panther #76, 77, Tweety and Sylvester #107, Beep Beep Road Runner #92, Daisy and Donald #47, Mickey Mouse #208, Walt Disney's Comics and Stories #480, Battle of the Planets #7, Donald Duck #222, and Uncle Scrooge #179. The rarest 1983-1984 no date, no date code issues ranging from rarest to lesser scarcity issues are as follows. With 50-200 copies of each issue currently known to exist: Tweety and Sylvester #118, Woody Woodpecker #199, 198, Tweety and Sylvester #117, Popeye #168, Tweety and Sylvester #119, Beep Beep Road Runner #103, 104, 102, Popeye #171, Winnie the Pooh #30, 31, 32, 29, 33. These 1983-1984 issues should guide for a minimum of $25, with top titles – Disney duck, Lulu, etc. – and rarest titles closer to $50 each.

Whitman variants of Gold Keys 11/1971-2/1980 are possible and they sell to completionists for 150-300% of GK issue values. Collector Byron Glass has followed these for years and has determined that about 50% of all the possible issues do in fact exist as Whitmans, with many of the variants being quite rare. There are now about 170 known DC Whitman variants in 16 titles; all are scarce in VF or better. Completionists and variant collectors regularly pay $6-$15 for VG-VF copies. The treasury variants C-56 and C-61 are especially scarce and sell at 200-300% the regular edition prices.

This year we saw many sellers trying to pass off Whitman variants of Marvel comics. Some assume incorrectly that the early direct variants with black diamonds and no UPC codes must be Whitman variants. Take note: distributors were able to buy empty Whitman plastic bags and could fill them with random leftover comics and then heat seal them. This does not make them Whitman editions, but rather regular editions in Whitman bags. They carry no premium value except when sold to uninformed buyers. True Whitman variants must have the Whitman logo printed on the comic itself.

Overview: As healthy as it has ever been. It has been a great year for me on eBay and at the few shows I attend nowadays. I deal mostly in books from the Golden Age in the $35-500 range, none slabbed, and they have been as good to me this year as I ever remember. All grades have done exceptionally well. Some genres have faded but others have made great advances. The proliferation of the auction houses has not even begun to affect business down here in the trenches. Actually, I have yet to see the proof that slabbing and auctioneering have really had that big an effect on the hobby as a whole. They have their little slice of the market and we down here have the big slice of the pie. For all the hype and PR given out by the Powers That Be, the steady real sales continue with vim and vigor down here.

eBay is still the defining entity of the market and has been for some time now. Very few people in this hobby actually care what a 9.4 copy of Action #16 brought slabbed and sold at your favorite auction house. The anal retentives of grading, the "junkies" who live and die by grade, are thankfully a small but loud factor in our hobby. eBay puts it out there daily for all to see. As far as I have been able to see, slabbing has done very little for the hobby.

Dell: The reason I start with Dell is that they are consistently the best selling titles on eBay and at shows, maybe not the highest in value but certainly excellent sales potential. I never get stuck long with their books. They have the best product in terms of materials used – no better photo covers were ever done – writers and artists, and their titles were some of the most famous characters of the day.

Best sellers remain Tarzan – try to find a Four Color Tarzan #134 and 161. I had to bid on three listings of #134 to finally get a decent one on eBay, and I bid above Guide on all of them. Issues #1-12 with illustrated covers are tough to get and sell well. Every kid out there must have collected and kept Roy Rogers and Gene Autry as they are prolific in supply. I once saw six copies of Roy Rogers #1 for sale the same week on eBay. Both titles sell well in all grades but not at Guide unless it is a Four Color. Little Lulu remains hot and will always bring Guide in all grades, as will any Walt Disney book with Barks. All the Four Colors are collectible as there are many collectors of that series alone. The early issues with classic comic strip reprints are very hot. The two most sought-after of the late Four Color series are the two Andy Griffith issues. There is demand here that far, far outstrips the supply. I am not sure what high grade issues of these two books would bring, but certainly way above Guide.

Fawcett: All Fawcett titles sell well but at lower than Guide in most cases. Captain Marvel, Whiz, Master, and all the westerns sell well and are in high demand but rarely bring Guide. They sit on walls at shows because everyone knows they can get Fawcetts much cheaper on the Internet. Westerns have slowed down and will continue to do so as the base that remembers the characters pass on. The superheroes are still used by DC nowadays, but the cowboys are a thing of the past. The Fawcett movie adaptations of Destination Moon, When Worlds Collide, and especially The Man From Planet X, are very much in demand and in high grade will bring big bucks always.

EC: Gaines File Copies will bring as much unslabbed as slabbed. I see it on the Internet, I see it at shows – why slab something with this kind of reputation? Unslabbed books from Good to Fine always bring Guide for this legendary line of books. The horror titles are most sought after, then MAD, then the science fiction titles. However, all titles will not remain in stock very long.

DC: The most popular and famous of the Golden Age publishers, and all books in any grade with their superheroes bring decent prices. Of all their titles, however, the consistent best sellers remain Action and Superman from the Golden Age to the Silver Age. I have tracked them on the Internet, and the two titles almost always bring Guide or better when offered for sale and always bring multiple bids – more than the auction houses seem to get, I might add. Batman would be next, then Detective and the rest. The late Golden Age books from 1947 on are really sought after. The early Silver Age books bring decent money but are not nearly as popular as the Marvel Silver Age titles.

Timely/Marvel: It's hard to really put a value on the Timely books as they are so much in demand but there is so little product for sale. Without doubt, the Timely books always go high in any grade when offered for sale. No Golden Age company is represented with so few items on the Internet or at shows as is Timely. This is probably because collectors are not willing to sell or the company did not have that big a sell-through when they were publishing. Captain America remains the most popular of the Timely titles, very closely followed by the rest; Marvel Mystery, Human Torch and Sub-Mariner.

Marvel Silver Age books sell well, but not on the Internet. Rarely does a Silver Age book even approach Guide on the Internet, and slabbing does not help unless it is AMZ #1, FF #1, AMZ Fantasy #15 – you get the idea. Slabbing a Silver Age non-key below 9.4 or 9.2 will not help you one bit; check it out on eBay. You have probably paid more for the slabbing than you got for the book.

Going Up: Any Donald Duck Four Color, Tarzan Four Color #134 and 161, and Tarzan #1; Roy Rogers Four Color #34; Action and Superman, entire runs; AMZ #1 and AMZ Fantasy #15.

Going Down: For us, all the Fawcett western titles – the market is dying out, and they won't sell near Guide now. The same is true with Dell westerns and any other company that had them. There are some keys, however, that should not be changed here: the Ghost Rider issues both of his own title and the Tim Holt issues he is in; the Durango Kid issues with Frazetta art; and all the Frazetta western covers are still in demand.

Michael Tierney

The biggest news of 2004 was the failure of CrossGen. Before the collapse, CrossGen had ascended to being my third best-selling publisher. Their bankruptcy left a void on my shelves. CrossGen was a reliable publisher who understood that 'all ages comics' meant a comic that can be read by all ages, not a comic that has lowered its reading level to a younger audience. To lose a publisher who consistently supplied a high-quality product on time month in and year out is a blow to the entire industry. It also illustrates the difficulties that new publishers face.

A surprise for 2004 was the lack of effect from all the comics-related movies. Sales on Hulk were brisk until the movie debuted, then they hit the wall and dropped. While Spider-Man 2 did increase awareness of comics, all the new customers it drew in were of grade school age. Once Marvel started making all ages material with the Marvel Age line, we had stuff to sell them, but before that, many parents were turned off by the PSR rating on all the other Marvel comics. Parents have been trained by the film industry to avoid exposing their children to anything with an 'R' in the rating.

The lack of new, older Spider-Man fans also reflects the problem in creating new Star Wars or Star Trek fans. For these heavily-saturated markets, new fans can't be made, they have to be born. If you're going to be a fan, it's likely that you already are.

Although no longer hot, Jim Lee's run on Batman is still holding its value. Azzarello's follow-up run on Batman never took off. Likewise, Azzarello's team-up with Jim Lee on Superman, while selling better than other recent issues, is still falling far short of Jim Lee's Batman numbers. Azzarello has a solid following on the crime noir title 100 Bullets, but it doesn't seem to be translating into mainstream sales.

There were some brand-new series in 2004 that did see a good deal of success. DC had solid sellers with Fables, a contemporary reworking of childhood fairy tales, and Y the Last Man, which is a fulfillment of a juvenile fantasy about being the last available man in a world of women. A series that did very well with both established and lesser-known characters was Identity Crisis. While there were concerns over content that displayed violence to women, the story addressed the long-time superhero concern of protecting their families against reprisals by enemies. DC scored a huge hit by aggressively over-printing and then reprinting as news about the series spread. It's a great feeling as a retailer whenever a new customer enters or an old one returns and you can satisfy their demands.

Even with DC's over-printing policy, the print runs on modern comics are still ridiculously low when compared to books from the Silver Age. Circulation statements on the Tarzan comics from the early '60s regularly reported print runs in excess of 400,000 and 500,000. Print runs now average in the tens of thousands, with only a handful of major hits topping the 100,000 mark. Any titles made today, should they prove to have lasting power into the future, will be difficult to find. The old adage of supply and demand bodes well for future value. If you buy what you enjoy, you'll probably be ahead of the curve for collector demand.

Black and white comic magazines are a good example of strong demand that exceeds supply. Vampirella, Creepy, Eerie, Savage Sword of Conan and a host of other Marvel magazines like Marvel Super Action, which features a Punisher origin story, have all been in strong demand over the last few years. There is something very appealing to the eye about black and white artwork when accented with gray tones.

In the Silver and Golden Ages, as America's war on terrorism continues, war comics have been rebounding. Sgt. Rock has been hot. Western comics, on the other hand, are fading. Exceptions are series that featured still recognizable name stars like John Wayne and Annie Oakley.

2004 also saw the passing of long-time DC editor Julius Schwartz. Demand increased on his science fiction anthologies, Strange Adventures and Tales of the Unexpected, along with his weird tales anthologies, House of Mystery and House of Secrets. Values for all these were below Guide, especially on lower grades.

Many other areas of collector interest remained stable. Carl Barks' work on Uncle Scrooge, Donald Duck, and Walt Disney's Comics and Stories are undiminished in demand. Classics Illustrated and Classic Comics have also remained strong; in the last year we've sold a number of Classic Comics first printings. A mother once brought her daughter in and introduced her to Classics Illustrated, clearly explaining that these were the comics she used for cheating on book reports when she was her daughter's age – a tradition being passed on from one generation to the next!

What can I say? Comics hold something different for everyone.

Supply and demand is again the only consistent sales barometer in the 2004 marketplace. The principle of an item being worth only what someone is willing to pay for it has never been proven as true as in the current year. The demand for quality first tier collectible material in all investment areas has streamlined into such predictable patterns that items on many want lists are interchangeable. Supply is so short that prices hit record highs continuously while second and third tier interests rise steadily, creating growth in blooming tangent markets.

On the flipside, the marketplace has also been in a collecting flux for several years that is currently still playing out with the majority of material at hand cooling from the buyer's market created by the non-investment collector. Succinctly, buyers now fall almost by rote into the categories of deep pocket investor, window-shopping collector or tightly-budgeted reader with the spread on the continuum of monies spent among these three as wide as the distance between the price of Good and Near Mint in this Guide. And of course, everyone is playing dealer. The true wild cards are the buyers in mail order who silently defy all categorization.

Higher prices realized have brought many outstanding collections and prized material out into the marketplace to be snapped up by an anxious herd of investors and collectors while the lion's share of all printed comics languish in discounting, hoping to catch the flash in the eye of the collector or a CGC 9.8 for a momentary rescue from obscurity. The entire marketplace is as fickle and fee-ridden as eBay, but also as joyous as a good day on the trading floor or a good morning at a convention.

A thing to remember is that once upon a time everyone collected and bought comics because they loved them and the prices reflected that – a good book was in short supply so the prices naturally elevated. Strangely, this still holds true – the investor buys for the desired yearly percentages gained on paper; the collector out of almost obsessive-compulsive need, and the reader for the cheap thrill of it. The love of an item is again determining its overall worth. Investors cross over into the top one to three tiers of every age and ignore the rest while the budget collectors and readers form the prices on the bottom foundation market. One can argue this, but it is important to realize that investors and collector/investors supply 80% of the money in the marketplace for 20% of the books sold while budget collectors and readers supply 20% of the money for 80% of the books sold. What this means is that buyers each drive their own market segment and the dealer must drive his car to three different locations at the same time paying three different gas prices.

All is not lost in this era of love of money vs. love of possession vs. love of an art form. There is this Guide, chock full of the history and knowledge of graphic art in panels; there is you and your choices; and there are also all those comics with four color dreams glowing inside. There is something for everyone for today and tomorrow guaranteed. Pick your passion. Now on to the report.

Promotional Comics: These are so varied that there is truly something for everyone here. Spirit sections are the best kept secret, with high grades commanding many times Guide, especially for the tougher later volumes and the final classic Wally Wood issues. You can't go wrong with Eisner and Lou Fine. The full-size tabloid variants bring a huge premium. March of Comics titles are nice movers when they are popular characters or TV/movie tie-ins, and Superman-Tims are steady, though a niche. Let's not forget Motion Picture Funnies Weekly and Is This Tomorrow? No collection will ever be complete without a sweet stack of giveaways, so check out this section in the Guide and put at least five on your want list now.

Golden Age: A spastic and active giant. Key and iconic covers, issues and artists still drive the discerning collectors to distraction with an ever-dwindling supply in any grade. First appearance issues like Detective #27 and More Fun #52 lead the demand with more common fill-in issues of major title runs coming in second with Timely being our most popular. Obscure and artist-related titles bring up third place – the popularity of Schomburg, Everett, Cole and the cast of Golden Age greats always sell. It cannot be said enough that any grade hero titles sell if priced fairly and notable art or history within consistently raises the roof.

Having stated the obvious, there are many Golden Age books that have stalled, perhaps permanently, in sales anywhere near Guide; Supersnipe and the like head the pack. There is absolute waning interest in some titles, and I have noticed some genres, like westerns of the late '40s-'50s, falling severely by geographical region or age demographics – death of their true fans – of buyers. Crime and war still sell as a read over investment, and 'Good Girl' art and Disney will continue to sell in all forms and in upward prices. Classics are a small niche area but a worldwide niche market. The values on Golden Age material have narrowed the selling arena with all grades needed to the best of the best, widened it to include second and third-tier, but have almost killed substandard titles or companies with no important characters, artists or history and sent them to the bargain bins.

The truth is that Golden Age always sells, but a lot of these books sell at a fair discount and not grade specific. In today's market, value for the bigger money is keen. and we will see a lot of this type of material sit until it walks while iconic issues continue to stand and run. Hero memorabilia, especially Superman, is strong and actively sought.

Atom Age: There will never be enough '50s material to ever fill the demand. We quickly sell through all issues in any grade from this time period with the exception of higher priced mid-grade one-shots or genre markets that are slightly slow. All horror titles are still in high demand, along with most of the superhero titles in any and all grades. If there is ever a cover guide photo reference released for the '50s, DC and Atlas will see an explosion that will startle everyone as many collectors will actively hunt for scarce covers on issues that barely exist in even mid-grade.

Gaines file copies are commanding extravagant prices and EC horror in high grades are still following suit to fill in the demand, six years in a row now. ECs continue to be the blue chip Atom books behind key superhero issues. Lower interest genres such as crime and war sell well to a thriving reader market, mainly because of the exploitative content, and westerns are the main genre beginning to show a bottom while funny animal is consistent with Harvey humor rapidly escalating. Men's and science fiction pulps and magazines from this period are swiftly rising in value as notable comic artist content – Frazetta, Ward, etc. – are being popularized along with exploitation material and relatively unknown stories by writers such as Louis L'Amour and early sci-fi material. All memorabilia from this period is scarce and hot.

Silver Age: Boom and bust. High grade key issues are the market's forefront, with high grade fill-in superhero issues making the solid foundation. Marvel is king and DC the prince. There are so many keys that this Age is a varied and deeply sown goldmine. Harvey comics such as Richie Rich, Hot Stuff, Little Dot and Lotta, etc. are moving up to the interest level of superhero comics, and high grades – especially file copies – are commanding multiples with key issues in any grade selling well above Guide. As a matter of fact, a low to mid-grade Harvey key sells at a higher rate above Guide than a high grade Marvel or DC key by percentage. Gold Key & Dell, especially photo covers and TV tie-ins, are showing impressive movement in high grades for 2004. Disney, Archie, Warren and Tower are also showing strong demand.

The downside to the Silver market is mid-grade, which is aggressively discounted because of the buyer's perception of depreciative value below 9.0 and the commonality of most Silver Age issues. Readers buy up the cheaper, solid copy low grades because of the more affordable Guide spread and are happy to do it rather than spending many times that for a mid-grade. Third tier Marvel and DC titles like Sea Devils, Sgt. Fury, etc. are increasingly tougher to sell in any grade other than top-end investment grade or super-cheap low-end. Due to the excessive amount of lower grade Silver at this current time, it's a reader's market, much harsher than just a buyer's market.

Marvel fan club items are soaring and showing another leap in value, especially material having its original mailing envelope. Early fanzines are continuing to spread interest and as ever, are very difficult to locate. If these were more readily available and had a definitive reference book, we would see an even higher increase in demand. One of the coolest fan-related items I have ever seen is an unused promotional postcard I obtained from Julie Schwartz that was sent to Showcase letter writers advertising the soon-to-be published first issue of Green Lantern. It has nice Gil Kane art and I would never have known it even existed without Julie's knowledge, so a definitive fan-related and fanzine reference is sorely needed while the information can be obtained from still-living participants. For a Silver fan, that postcard rivals the coolness factor of the button National did to promote Wonder Woman in Sensation Comics for the early Golden Age fan.

Bronze Age: This is the era for the current crop of active reader/collectors. We sell far more reader copies of Bronze than any other era's books, both because of the lower prices and the fact that many of the current comic buyers and investors grew up during this time period, with the Silver boomers coming a close first. It took a while for the market to grow and even longer to gain any kind of momentum, but now it contains some of the most solid collectible issues with the most to gain in the long haul.

Hulk #181, New X-Men, and 100 Page Spectaculars are tops and the list grows longer as more people realize the characters introduced during this period are durable and many of this era's issues are extremely difficult to find in high-end grade, especially considering the commonality of most issues of this era.

DC 100 Page Super Spectaculars are among the tops of the Bronze Age. (#17 shown)

For mainstream comics, it's a high-end investment club and the rest of it is a reader's market. The only deviations are the key and scarce top 40 issues, and of course, those pesky three-pack-only Gold Key/Whitmans and price variant Marvels, which sell in all grades with some incredibly tough to locate. As more information is obtained about the three-pack-only and low print run later Gold Key/Whitmans, this market tangent will grow rapidly. Uncle Scrooge #179 is not the only rare book – there is way over a dozen others, perhaps more. I won't even go into the variations of the later run issues with no price, with price but no ads, etc., and how about the back cover variations?

Moving to the left are the Bronze Harveys, Archies and Disneys, which are the silent constant sellers. The digests of this period are moving – Marvel, DC, Harvey, Archie – as are the larger format Treasury Editions, though there is price resistance to Treasuries in high-end until CGC begins grading them. The Rudolph no number (C-20 implied) treasury is a rare gem and a must-have, and at any given time there is not even one for sale anywhere, whereas there is always an Action #1 or Hulk #181 on the market. For rarity, the DC in-house produced Cancelled Comic Cavalcade holds the distinction as the rarest of the rare – only 35 of these. We've only seen three and bought them all, with one verified by Vince Colletta as his personal copy set sold for over $2600. If you see a set for sale, buy it, because it is the ultimate Bronze item rather than the fluke.

Magazines are beginning to come into their own, as titles such as Vampirella, Monsters Unleashed and the rest of the Warren and Marvel line show rapid movement in Guide multiples for high-end grades and constant sales in the reader conditions at fair prices, though mid-grades are tough to sell at Guide. Superhero memorabilia is either a prize – Marvel black-lights – or an albatross – hero puffy stickers – due to the vast amount produced, and this era is a true blessing for all the strange and wonderful books, posters and cultural items produced that can keep one looking for another ten years.

Copper & Modern Age: There is a wealth of material here for the casual reader or investor, and these Ages contain some of the most literate and entertaining comics done to date. Some independent press books of note include Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles #1 and the rarer precursor, Gobbledygook #1, Cerebus #1-30, early Elfquest, Elflord #1, the first couple of Crow issues, Grendel (especially Comico Primer #2 and the Comico series), Love & Rockets #1-20 and early Flaming Carrot (including the oversize #1, #2-16 and early appearances in Visions magazine). Miracleman #15 sells for way over Guide in any grade and is genuinely tough to locate along with the last issues of Grendel. Many Marvel last issues of the '80s are also on the move (Conan #275, Sgt. Fury, etc.) because of their low print runs.

Valiants have made a minor comeback and the scarcer issues are beginning to show force again along with the later issue numbers in the runs. The modern market is loaded with small press run issues from independent companies, and in the last few years, even Marvel and DC are printing ever fewer copies. I feel all the variants from the last decade have a long way to go before or if ever they approach investment status, but many people still avidly search them out. There is also a ton of one-shot and mini-series titles put out by the big two that are worth locating because of their interest and obscurity, like Droids and some giant movie issues. Attempt to find the two Blackthorne Star Wars 3-D issues – try to complete a run of Blackthorne 3-D issues and you'll go nuts – and you'll appreciate dealers.

The Gold Key/Whitman market is skyrocketing as the later issue print runs dwindled before the company rolled over. Dark Horse and other companies also have many books of note like Hellboy. One great market facet is the nice amount of hardcover editions produced that are truly collectible. Miracleman Book 1-4 are hot, commanding astronomical prices, as is the S/Ltd Dark Knight, Elfquest, and Mage limited editions. There are a wealth in futures here. There is so much memorabilia and promotional material tied to this market that it is a 'pick your poison' cornucopia.

eBay: The illegitimate son of car dealers? No, just what a world of sellers have made it – the end result of unschooled capitalism. What was once a collector's dream site has turned into the largest Third World garage sale of all time with a scant U.N. protectorate. We have noted that the truly scarce sells well, particularly fan-related merchandise and memorabilia. Third party graded comics were ready-made for this market and it is an excellent venue for buying or selling them, as what resembles truth enters into the auction descriptions on grade. Record prices are realized here for quality high grade slabbed comics. eBay is a wonderful area to find the unique, but be aware you can't trust the item descriptions of everyone selling there. There is a large amount of counterfeited and bootlegged memorabilia, especially Marvelmania items, so be prepared with knowledge before you search and bid. The downsides for sellers are the steadily rising fees with little in-house support and the garage sale mentality of the semi-anonymous community. The upside is that everything cool hits eBay once.

CGC & CGG: The market for third-party graded comics and comic-related material is as hot as ever. High-end Marvels lead the pack, with multiples of Guide routinely changing hands for the best of the best. Arguments abound on the concept of CGC-slabbed books to this day, but it is the needed future of mail order, online and sight-unseen sales, regardless of where one stands on the perception. The CGC census is helpful in determining scarcity and investment strategy, and the service, though flawed at times, is a must. There is some minor competition to CGC in the form of a new company, CGG, who offers a fine encapsulation holder and very conservative grading, but they must expand and become a competitive market force to be taken seriously across the board by collectors and investors.

With the cost of encapsulation and the proven demand on certain issues, we recommend all key, pricier and mid- to high grade Golden Age for the service along with all high grade Silver, especially Marvel and DC. In the Bronze Age we would suggest encapsulating only top 10 key issues in any grade and otherwise only extremely high grade issues. In Modern, we would say only key issues in extremely high grade to warrant the cost of the service. There is a market slowdown on general highly graded material from the last 20 years; one should do a closed auction eBay search from time to time to study the particulars of this market. Bear in mind that encapsulation is one of the best ways to preserve your comics.

Conventions: These are still gathering places for the comic lovers, but they have morphed into quite a different animal than the great shows of yesteryear. Nowhere is the split among buyers so evident than at a convention. We sell high-end investment material both encapsulated and unslabbed to one market segment and everything else is a hobbyist crapshoot. There is less disposable income in the dealer's room from the common fan due to show-related expenses, autograph fees and the like. Many attend just for freebies, socializing and the thrill of the venue. Impulse sales are rampant and I have seen more 50% off signs than ever before on more types of material than in the past. I find that if we balance our stock between high grade investment items and low-end hobby material, we do well – it's the in-between that kills. I suspect serious collectors pick one or two of the major shows to attend each year or just stay home and hit a dealer's catalog or go online while the bargain hunters roam the con aisles. Still, there is nothing like a convention for the hobby to be in one's face, and we've had an excellent show year.

Memorabilia and Weird Stuff: Anyone that knows us knows we love the mainstream, but we love the obscure even more. I would recommend looking for English-made Triumph magazines from the late '30s for the first British Superman appearances, printed just after the US comics and utilizing the same original artwork. One of those short comics sections may just be the closest you'll come to owning that Action #1, and it's from the same year of publication. There are also several Family Circle mags that contain articles on Superman and DC and contain art by early DC creators. For a special ride, leaf through Esquire magazines from 1968 – I won't tell you the month for the pleasure of the search – and find the great Jack Kirby JFK assassination comic story therein. Lastly, find that great Movie Mirror issue from the late '30s that has the first Disney Snow White appearance anywhere and marvel at that full color cover and interior insert.

More well-known is the pulp Marvel Science Stories with the super-early Kirby artwork and the rare Superman '40s comic puzzles, and even the Radiocraft mags of the wartime '40s that have those gorgeous painted Alex Schomburg normal scale war covers. As a final note, locate some '30s Ken Magazines and be pleasantly surprised at the comics and cultural oddities you'll find in some. Oh, and who painted those covers for Mechanix Illustrated?

Marvelmania items are probably the hottest '60s memorabilia around. The set of eight posters continually set price records in NM condition, mainly because of the fragile and thin paper they were printed on. The mail-away six foot wall posters of Spider-Man and the Hulk are the rarest Marvel posters and command high grade prices approaching a grand each. The 1971 black-light posters are a mixed bag, as five (we've had a couple dozen of the 2 Hulks, 2 Dr. Strange and Namor) of the 24 styles are almost common, while a full half of them are truly scarce. Speaking of scarce, try to locate the DC series of black-light posters from the same time that feature Superman, Aquaman, Hawkman and others, rendered in blown-up panel style, or the late '60s 45 rpm records that have great illustrated DC character covers with character songs, the rarest being Metamorpho.

The wealth of character memorabilia and limited supply of the truly classic makes this market a must-have add-on for investors, collectors and comic enthusiasts everywhere. In closing, we are always interested in any information on the obscure, so look us up in this Guide and drop us a line, especially if you know Millie the Model's last name – that's our secret password.

Vincent Zurzolo (Metropolis Comics)

The first quarter of 2004 was the best quarter Metropolis has had during my tenure as COO over the last five years. In fact, quarters 2-4 were exceptionally strong as well. The beginning of the year started where 2003 left off with very high demand on Silver Age Marvel keys. However, 2004 has seen its share of sales running the gamut from every decade of comic history. Sales were heavy on pedigrees from every era, Golden Age keys as well as non-key issues, 1950s comics, Silver, Bronze and the few Modern Age comics we sold. Grades also ranged very heavily with the only weak spots being mid-grade Golden and Silver Age comics; they are not priced cheap enough for collectors and do not hit the grade requirements for investors. Unlike previous years, this end of the market was not super slow; it just lagged behind the other grades. While not a huge surprise, later Disneys, most westerns, and Classics did not fare very well either.

Golden Age: Red hot this past year. Not unlike 2003, I was able to move many keys. In 2004, I sold three copies of Detective #27 ranging in grade from 2.5, 3.5 CGC and a raw, restored copy in 6.0. Batman #1s also moved well; I sold five copies of this perennial favorite, including the highest graded copy, a CGC graded 9.0 unrestored, a CGC graded 4.0, and three restored copies. I sold three copies of Superman #1, a FN- and two FR/GD copies, as well as a restored copy of Action #1 and an unrestored copy of

Marvel Comics #1. My company is capable of achieving these types of sales due to our rock-solid reputation as an industry leader with over 40 years of experience combined, a vast inventory of vintage comic books, a state of the art website and an intricate network of customer relationships allowing us to find and sell even the rarest comic book.

In general, Pep Comics sold very well; one sale in particular is quite memorable as a savvy, long time customer picked up a run from #1-34 in low grade. Other strong sellers were Action, Batman, Captain America, Leading, Detectives, Young Allies and Archie Comics. Sales included All Star Comics #8 CGC 7.5 VF- $19,500, Batman #9 CGC 9.4 NM $16,800, #11 CGC 9.0 VF/NM $9,250, Captain America #7 CGC 9.4 NM $16,000, Catman #1 CGC 9.4 NM Denver Copy $12,980, Detective #168 CGC 9.2 NM- $11,500, Superworld #1 VF++ $7,500 and a Vault of Horror #12 CGC 9.4 NM Northford Copy $27,500.

Silver Age: Although many people associate Metropolis with Golden Age, we do have the largest selection of low, mid- and high grade Silver Age comics on the market. Silver Age Marvel keys were fast movers the entire year. However, toward the end of 2004, they began to plateau; I expect this trend to continue into early 2005 until the new Guide you are holding in your hands debuts. Afterward, I expect many of the Marvels to continue to increase in value, although at a slower pace.

Spider-Man, the most popular character in the Marvel pantheon, is also the most highly collected title, making up almost 20% of CGC submissions. In April of 2004, I sold the Ohio Copy of Amazing Fantasy #15 CGC graded VF+ 8.5 for a record-breaking $29,500 and a few days later an Amazing Spider-Man #1 CGC graded NM- 9.2 for a record-breaking $33,000. A few weeks later, I sold an Incredible Hulk #1 CGC VF+ 8.5 for a record-breaking $31,000. Other record-breaking Silver Age Marvel sales included Amazing Spider-Man #3 CGC 9.4 NM $20,000, #16 CGC 9.6 NM+ $11,000, Fantastic Four #3 CGC 9.2 NM- $14,600, #12 CGC 9.4 NM $22,000, Journey into Mystery #83 CGC 9.0 VF/NM $18,500, Tales of Suspense #39 CGC 9.2 NM- $18,000, and X-Men #4 CGC 9.0 VF/NM $1,350.

DC Silver Age comics are scarcer than their Marvel counterparts yet more affordable. 2004 witnessed several record prices realized for DC keys, but I still believe everything goes in cycles and it is only a matter of time until DCs hit the same multiple levels as their Marvel counterparts. This may occur when DC launches its new superhero movies. With Batman Begins premiering this summer and Superman moving into pre-production, now might be the right time to purchase certain keys.

The Gold Key market is moving; this is the first year since the early '90s that I am seeing a very noticeable increase in demand for Gold Key titles. Green Hornet, Doctor Solar,

Magnus and Star Trek are titles in which I have noticed the most interest. Grades desired vary from collector to collector, but I believe a lot of this has to do with the moderate pricing on these books even in high grade.

Bronze Age: The big three of the Bronze Age – X-Men #94, Hulk #181 and Giant Size X-Men #1 – are still doing well, but prices have leveled. Standouts from this time period are Ghost Rider #1, Marvel Spotlight #5, Hero For Hire #1, Tomb of Dracula #1 and #10, Green Lantern #76, Batman #232 and Detective #400.

I was very fortunate to purchase a large collection of Charlton comics this past year. It was quite a fun experience for me as there were many covers and titles I was not intimately familiar with. Some of the art was mediocre, but there were many downright impressive covers with interior art to match. Check out great art by Ditko, Sutton, Wood, Newton, Aparo, Staton, Montes, Giordano, Larson, Howard, Bache, Morisi and Glanzman on comics like Haunted, Green Planet, Ghostly Haunts, Fightin' Air Force, Army Attack, Hot Rods and Racing Cars, Love Diary, Magilla Gorilla, Outer Space, Out of this World, Konga, Gorgo, Quick Draw McGraw,

Teen-Age Love, Ghost Manor, Haunted Love and Blue Beetle. My favorite cover is Ghostly Haunts #41 by Sutton – anybody know where this cover is?

Modern Age: I still love buying and reading new comic books. My favorite shop in NYC is Cosmic Comics, followed closely by Forbidden Planet. Both stores are situated near my gallery, well stocked, well lit and fun to hang out in. Many storeowners I have spoken to told me they have had a stellar year. This is extremely reassuring, as I do believe there is a connection between readers of new comics and collectors and investors of vintage comics.

My favorite comic book series this year were the Loki mini-series by writer Robert Rodi and painter extraordinaire Essad Ribic, and Kurt Busiek and Cary Nord's Conan. Ribic captures the visceral nature of Frazetta while infusing the lighting dynamics of Ross, bringing to life an Asgardian tale seldom seen. Loki is truly one of the prettiest painted books of the year. On Conan, Busiek masterfully spins tales of a young Conan, and Nord brings them to life in an exciting and pulse-pounding manner. The digital color enhances Nord's strong pencils, creating an almost oil painted effect that is visually captivating.

Avengers Disassembled, Marvel Knights Spider-Man, Hard Time, Walking Dead, Books of Magic: Life During Wartime, Ultimates II, Secret War, Wanted, Superman/Batman, Identity Crisis, Astonishing X-Men and Ultimate Fantastic Four were just several of the truly exceptional comics I had the opportunity to read. I must also mention I was dazzled by every cover Michael Turner rendered for DC this year.

The Scarecrow comes to the big screen this summer in Batman Begins. (His Silver Age debut in Batman #189 shown)

As far as collecting goes, there are many really great comics being produced; read as many as you can. However, Modern Age investors must be very careful. Even with CGC's added value, sometimes buying a Modern book at the heights of its popularity can be a bad idea, as many can simply be the flavor of the month. Ultimate

Spider-Man, however, is a tremendous exception to the rule; I still cannot believe the prices this book is trading at on a regular basis. Colossuscomics.com offers a very intriguing service for those of you who want a 9.8 CGC graded copy as well as a raw copy to read; check it out at their site.

Edgar Church/Mile High: 2004 was the year of Mile High madness. Over the last three years, I have made it a personal quest to amass a massive stockpile of Golden Age from the Edgar Church/Mile High Collection. This collection of approximately 20,000 Golden Age comics in ultra-high grade with exceptional page quality is the finest collection of comics ever known to exist. In most cases the copies I purchased were either the highest graded copies known or close to it. I always tell my customers there are comics, and then there are Mile Highs. Church copies that found their way into collectors' hands this past year include issues from these runs: Blue Bolt, Detective, Exotic Romances, Fight, Girls in Love, Heroic, Jumbo, Jungle, Military, More Fun, Romantic Hearts, Smash, Speed, Terry Toons, Weird, Wings and Wow Comics. Grades ranged from VF+ to NM/MT with multiples of 3-10x Guide realized depending on titles and conditions. If you collect Golden Age and you don't have a Church copy, you don't know what you are missing.

Movie-Related Comics: The upcoming Fantastic Four and Batman Begins movies will be premiering this summer. I truly expect an increase in interest in both titles. FF will have to be a really good movie, as the general public will make comparisons with the Pixar blockbuster, The Incredibles. Fantastic Four, already very popular amongst collectors and investors alike, will see increased demand on key issues and first appearances as the premiere date gets closer. In fact, at the time of this writing, I am down to my last two copies of FF

#1; I usually have 5-10 copies in stock.

I have been screaming for years that Ra's al Ghul should be the villain of a Batman movie, and I think someone in Hollywood heard me. Only one problem – as with the previous three Batman movies, the powers that be seem to think one great villain is not enough, so they had to throw in the Scarecrow too. Now don't get me wrong, I think the Scarecrow is a cool villain, but unnecessary when you have such an iconic villain like Ra's al Ghul. Regardless, watch as there is a surge in demand for the first appearance of Ra's al Ghul (Batman #232) and Scarecrow (GA first appearance in World's Finest #3 and SA first appearance in Batman #189). The hype for this movie will not reach the heights of the 1989 Tim Burton/Jack Nicholson/Michael Keaton Classic, but it will be hot.

Conventions: The Metropolis convention circuit for 2004 was very rewarding and productive. The cons were not only successful for selling but also for buying. The highlight as usual was the San Diego Comic Convention, but the most exciting show of the year had to be the National Comic Convention in New York City; there was an energy in the room I have not felt in years at a convention. There were tons of great books on the dealer floor, as about a half dozen dealers had purchased brand new collections in the previous few weeks leading up to the National. I was pleased as punch to make several great purchases as well as sales. The coolest part of the convention had to be Frank Miller interviewing Neal Adams for over an hour and a half. There was also a very funny moment when a group of fans dressed up like Star Wars stormtroopers made their way out onto 7th Ave. across from the Garden and attempted to keep order with the huge line of fans trying to get into the con. It is really great to see the show Mike Carbonaro and I started in 1997 grow into what it is today. Keep up the great work, Carbo!

I am also impressed with the way Wizard shows keep sprouting up all over the country. Gareb Shamus and his staff started with the Chicago Con and have expanded to Philadelphia, Dallas/Ft. Worth, Long Beach (CA) and Boston. The shows have something for everybody, with a great line up of celebrities, super star artists and writers and of course a dealer line-up any promoter would die to have.

I am not trying to take anything away from conventions, but it does seem they continue to be less important for those collectors and investors trying to find really scarce or high grade books. Most really great comics are sold to want list customers over the phone or through the Internet. However, the one thing you can't beat by going to a con is actually being able to inspect each and every nook and cranny – love that term; thanks, Thomas' English Muffins – of a comic.

The Comic Zone: Every collector and investor should educate themselves and enjoy what they are doing. Over the last year I have hosted a radio show about comic books and pop culture on the Internet called The Comic Zone. Every Monday from 3-4pm EST, The Comic Zone is broadcast live onto your computer. I believe the show can be a valuable tool to better educate yourself about the state of the marketplace, learn about current trends, the history of our hobby, and of course to listen to creators from the past and the present. The show attracts thousands of listeners per week. The beauty of the show is that not only can people listen to it live, but in case you miss the live broadcast, every show can be listened to in the archives section. The live shows and the archives can be accessed by going to www.metropoliscomics.com and clicking on The Comic Zone icon at the top of the home page.

Past guests have included a veritable list of the who's who of the comic world including Stan Lee, Will Eisner, Neal Adams, Jim Steranko, John Byrne, Terry Austin, George Pérez, Gene Colan, John Romita Sr., Sal Buscema, Dick Ayers, Joe Kubert, Murphy Anderson, Irwin Hasen, Al Feldstein, Jack Kamen, Jack Davis, Alex Ross, Todd McFarlane, Mike Mignola, Billy Tucci, Erik Larsen, John Romita Jr., Howard Chaykin, Jim Starlin, James O'Barr, Jae Lee, Arthur Adams, Buzz, Darrick Robertson, Eric Shanower, Sean Chen, Mark Bagley, Walt Simonson, Marshall Rogers, Mark Bode, Frank Cho, Mike Mignola, Ron Garney, Howard Porter, Norm Breyfogle, Larry Hama, John Jackson Miller, writers Denny O'Neil, JC Vaughn, Danny Fingeroth, Brian Pulido, Roy Thomas, Jim Shooter, Peter David, Mike San Giacomo, sculptor Randy Bowen, comic historians Arlen Schumer and Jerry Weist, Batman Dead End director Sandy Collora, actors David Carradine and Thomas Jane, writer/director David Mandel (Seinfeld, Euro Trip), Producer Danny Simmons (Def Poetry Jam), Diamond Galleries President John Snyder, CGC President Steve Borock, CGC graders Mark Haspel and Paul Litch, restoration experts Matt Nelson and Susan Cicconi and GP Analysis President George Pantela. You can listen to all of these interviews and more for free on The Comic Zone.

Promoting the Hobby: Metropolis and the comic book market received a great deal of media attention during the course of the last year in financial publications and news services such as Forbes Magazine, Barrons, Bloomberg, Institutional Investor, Reuters, CBS MarketWatch and Yahoo! Finance, as well as traditional venues like USA Today, The Chicago Tribune, The Seattle Times, The Travel Channel, Bravo, MTV, ABC and CBS. Tie this in with the advent and overwhelming acceptance of CGC third party grading over the last five years, and the road is being paved for the comic book hobby to be a tremendous collectible investment market, though still in its infancy.

The Future: While my wife will not allow me to use her crystal ball, I will tell you this about the future – for collectors, the sky's the limit. There will continue to be great deals offered on low and mid-grade comics from the Golden, Silver and Bronze Age. On my website alone, there are over 39,000 discounted vintage comic books as well as thousands of group lot items at up to 50% off. For the avid investors I would advise you to look into certain segments of the comic market that are under-priced compared to others. Sure, it is still great to invest in high grade Silver Age Marvels and Timelys, but you don't need me to tell you that. Areas I would look into are less expensive Golden Age titles like Captain Marvel Jr., Red Dragon, Ghost Rider, Green Lama, America's Best Comics, Exciting Comics, King Comics, Popular Comics and Target Comics. Of particular note are MLJ Magazines (named after the founders Maurice Coyne, Louis Silberkleit and John Goldwater) titles like Blue Ribbon, Pep, Top Notch, Archie and Zip Comics. Not every issue in these runs is cheap but plenty of them are. Pick up a Gerber Photo-Journal and study it like you were getting ready for the SATs; you will find a multitude of comics with dynamic and incredible covers.

Another area I would invest in is high grade Bronze Age like any Archie title, Marvel, DC or Charlton superhero, horror or war title. These comics are so cheap, even with the augmented values achieved by CGC graded copies. Remember these same titles were a fraction of the price just a few years ago. Even at their current values, a serious investor could put entire runs, a first issue or even a classic cover collection together without draining their bank accounts and having their spouses ready to throw them out the window.

On the Harvey front, titles like Hot Stuff, Casper, Dotty Dripple, Little Dot, Wendy the Witch, Little Lotta, Little Max, Little Audrey, Spooky, and everybody's favorite poor little rich boy, Richie Rich, are in high demand. These issues are scarce and cheap in the Guide. Simply put, they have great upside investment potential.

With every movie made, and every article written in a newspaper, comic books draw themselves closer and closer into the mainstream consciousness as collectible and investment items. Furthermore, the general public doesn't see comic collecting solely as a hobby. Each and every day, more collectors are coming into the market seeking comic books as an investment vehicle for their finances. Do your research, find several titles you like, a dealer you trust, and get started.

Final Note: As I grow older, I have come to appreciate how much I have been blessed with. From my wife, family and friends, to my career, I really have a lot to feel good about and be grateful for. I thank all of you who have helped to make my life so fulfilling both personally and professionally. I wish you the best and hope 2005 is as good to you as 2004 was to me.

Bronze Age Archies like Pep Comics #250 are attracting investors.

THE METROPOLIS INDEX

Due to the overwhelming response to The Metropolis Index in last year's 34th Edition (page 103), Metropolis Collectibles is proud to present this year's analysis. The Metropolis Index is a portfolio of 30 "blue-chip" vintage comics. Comics are selected based upon goodstanding reputation, sustainable growth and collector-driven demand. The index is diversified across a large number of comic industry market sectors, including superhero, humor, crime, horror and funny animal. Research is compiled using publicly available stock market data, and current and historical comic valuations as compiled by Gemstone Publishing.

While the rising values of vintage comics are known by hobbyists, it is only recently that they began to garner respect as credible investments by those outside the industry. The "origin story" of the index is a humble one. In late 2002, Metropolis' Ben Smith became intrigued by conversations heard over his cubicle wall in the dealership's NYC showroom. Some of Metropolis' clientele complained of stock market losses, and sought to increase their portfolio's diversification to include comics as a "safe equity." On a whim, Smith hypothesized that comics were emerging as "counter-cyclical" investments sought in times of a depressed economy. In conducting research, he found that comic investments thrived not only during times of economic downturn, but also demonstrated steady and stable growth over the long term.

Subsequently, countless articles in financial publications and mainstream press have and continue to be published on the subject. In 2003, Metropolis' CEO Stephen Fishler and Ben Smith were asked by Bloomberg to conduct a seminar, and have been invited to present a follow-up study in 2005. Metropolis COO Vincent Zurzolo continues to be a comic book collecting and investing advocate, bringing new collectors into the fold each year.

DOW JONES IND. AVG.	3834.44	10783.01	13.09%	242.71%
METROPOLIS INDEX	$ 832,086	$ 2,835,600	13.04%	240.78%

On January 1, 2005, the DJIA stood at 10783.01. Ten years prior in 1995, the DJIA was 3834.44. If dividends paid are considered to have been reinvested into the index, an investor's Total Return was 242.71%; implying a Compound Annual Growth Rate (CAGR) of 13.09% over the 10 year period. Comparatively, the Metropolis Index total value in 1995 was $832,086, and is $2,835,600 in 2005. The Total Return of the Metropolis Index is 13.04% with a CAGR of 240.78%.

Although numerous factors make an apples-to-apples comparison of comic books and stocks a difficult proposition, evidence lends itself to the long-term stability of the comic book market, and the security of comic book investments. The following tables denote the rate of appreciation of the top Golden Age, Platinum Age, Silver Age and Bronze Age books, as well as select genres over the past year. The retail value for a Near Mint- copy of each book (or VF where a Near Mint- copy is not known to exist) in 2005 is compared to its Near Mint- value in 2004. The rate of return for 2005 over 2004 is given. The place in rank is given for each comic by year, with its corresponding value in highest known grade. These tables can be very useful in forecasting trends in the market place. For instance, the investor might want to know which book is yielding the best dividend from one year to the next, or one might just be interested in seeing how the popularity of books changes from year to year. For instance, Human Torch #2 (#1) was in 21st place in 2004 and has increased to 18th place in 2005. Premium books are also included in these tables and are denoted with an asterisk(*).

The following tables are meant as a guide to the investor. However, it should be pointed out that trends may change at anytime and that some books can meet market resistance with a slowdown in price increases, while others can develop into real comers from a presently dormant state. In the long run, if the investor sticks to the books that are appreciating steadily each year, he shouldn't go very far wrong.

CONSIGNMENT SERVICE

For nearly two decades, Metropolis has been recognized and renowned for obtaining and selling the most sought after comic books and collections. Most importantly, our services have been enlisted by the private individuals who are the most aggressive collectors in the market. If you're considering selling or consigning your comic books, there is no company better poised than Metropolis to help you realize the best return.

In today's market, the decision of just how to sell your comic books is critical. Making the right choice is like walking a tightrope without a net. Perhaps the most common pitfall novice sellers fall into is blindly consigning to an auction house. We guarantee you will realize a higher return on your investment by consigning with Metropolis. If you're considering parting with your collection, and think an auction house is the best way to go, we strongly advise you consider the following:

Do the Math. The commission rate an auction house charges you, the seller, is typically 15%. However, the auction house will also charge the bidder a "buyer's premium" of 15%. Make no mistake about it, a bidder in an auction simply deducts that additional 15% from the final price they are willing to pay. Bottom line: The auction house is taking nearly a 30% cut from each and every transaction. By having their hand in the pocket of both the bidder and the seller, the auction house ensures the most profit for itself, while the consignor hemorrhages on their investment. At Metropolis, we charge ONLY a 15% consignment fee - That's it. An additional 15% of the total realized price back in your pocket.

When you consign to Metropolis Collectibles, you have at your disposal the services of the largest dealer of vintage comic books in the world. More importantly, you benefit from the thousands upon thousands of long-term customer relationships we've developed over the past 20 years. We're in it for the long haul, and will work with you to develop a strategy that will get you the highest return. We won't "square-peg" your collection into a formula that doesn't fit. We will pursue the avenue or avenues that work best for the comics you consign. Sometimes, that means selling your comics to the private individuals who pay the very best for being offered the very best. Oftentimes, we will arrange exclusive viewings at our showroom in Manhattan. We also maintain thousands of want lists of customers waiting in the wings for certain comic books to come to market - comic books that you may have in your collection. Our Internet sales continue to double every year, and our robust e-commerce business already boasts over 1 million hits each month! In addition to utilizing the most recent and cutting edge database and marketing technology, the tremendous media coverage Metropolis Collectibles has recently received from Barron's, Crains, Forbes, The Associated Press, Reuters, Bloomberg, New York Magazine, The New York Times, The Washington Post, CBSMarketwatch and many others continue to propel both Metropolis and the comic book industry to new heights. If you're thinking of selling your comics, call Metropolis Collectibles at 1-800-229-METRO or email consign@metropoliscomics.com for a free consultation.

JUST THE FACTS.

Fact 1: ABSOLUTELY NO OTHER COMIC DEALER BUYS MORE GOLDEN AND SILVER AGE COMICS THAN METROPOLIS.

Although the pages of the price guide are filled with other dealers offering to pay "top dollar," the simple truth is that Metropolis spends more money on more quality comic book collections year in and year out than any other dealers in the country. We have the funds and the expertise to back up our word. The fact is that we have spent nearly 4 million dollars on rare comic books and movie posters over the last year. If you have comic books to sell please call us at 1-800-229-6387. A generous finder's fee will be given if you know of any comic book or movie poster collections that we purchase. All calls will be strictly confidential.

Fact 2: ABSOLUTELY NO OTHER COMIC DEALER SELLS MORE GOLDEN AND SILVER AGE COMICS THAN METROPOLIS.

We simply have the best stock of Golden and Silver Age comic books in the country. The thousands of collectors familiar with our strict grading standards and excellent service can attest to this. Chances are, if you want it, we have it !

WE'RE CONFUSED!

? THE FOLLOWING IS A TRUE STORY. WE HOPE THAT SOMEONE WHO READS THIS WILL BE ABLE TO EXPLAIN WHY THIS KIND OF THING HAPPENS, BECAUSE WE DON'T GET IT ! ?

At one of the biggest conventions of the year, a dealer who traveled hundreds of miles to set up, sold a high-grade Fantastic Four #1 for roughly 1/2 the price that we would have paid. After that book passed through the hands of several dealers, we did in fact buy it. The fellow who initially sold it at the convention could easily have made Seven Thousand Dollars more if he had he sold it to us.

? SHOULDN'T EVERYONE? IS IT STILL BETTER TO GET ?

Dear Friends and Fellow Collectors,

Over the past fifteen years, we've had the pleasure of meeting and talking with some of the most pleasant, knowledgeable and yes, eccentric people to grace the surface of this planet. Many of these people have become long-time friends and customers. Some began as novices and grew to become sophisticated collectors; others began as collectors and grew to become some of the finest dealers in this business. Almost all have remained avid collectors and staunch supporters of the hobby of comic collecting. To all of these people, we want to say thank you. Thank you for your continued support, your friendship, your help and your business. To those of you who are newcomers to the field of comic collecting or to Metropolis Comics, we bid you welcome.

If you are not familiar with Metropolis Collectibles, here are a few of our credentials: Metropolis is the biggest purchaser of Gold, Silver and Bronze Age comic books in the world. In 2002 alone, we spent over 4 million dollars purchasing comics for our inventory. As both industry professionals and Overstreet Advisors, we've appeared in many magazines and periodicals, and have been featured on numerous television shows including Good Morning America, Entertainment Tonight and The Today Show.

Keep in mind our staff is here specifically to help you with your collecting needs. Metropolis' staff is a cut above the rest. They are knowledgeable in their fields and eager to be of service. So, if you have any questions, do not hesitate to call us Toll Free at 1-800-229-6387. Thank you for giving us the opportunity to serve you.

Sincerely,

WE FILL WANT LISTS

Silver Age

We have a simple question to ask . . . have you us your want list yet? Here is what it will cost you . . . 5 to 10 minutes of your time.

E-MAILED

Here is what you could stand to gain . . . SOME OR ALL OF THE COMIC BOOKS (CGC OR RAW)

THAT YOU HAVE BEEN SEARCHING FOR THE LAST FEW YEARS!!!

WHAT ARE YOU WAITING FOR?

"The Batman #1 you sold me was in the nicest, unrestored condition I've ever seen!", Bob Overstreet, author "The Official Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide."

"I'm glad that you have a great selection of Golden Age and Silver Age comics in stock. You have been able to constantly find books to fill some very tough missing holes in my collection. I also appreciate your consistent, tight grading and fair prices!"

Dan Hampton, Las Cruces, NM

These are just two of the many satisfied customers that have bought books from us in the past. Over the years, we have developed a very strong return customer base because we ACCURATELY price, grade, and describe books (in detail) over the phone and through the mail/email. If CGC books are desired, we can definitely fill those needs as well !!! In the past few years, we have acquired nearly EVERY major Golden Age and Silver Age book more than once for our many want list clients. These include books like Action 1, Detective 1, Detective 27, Marvel 1, Superman 1 and more recent gems like AF 15, FF 1, Hulk 1, Flash 105 and Showcase 4, 8, 22. OUR SPECIALTY IS GOLDEN AGE AND SILVER AGE BOOKS (1933 - 1969), but we do carry some issues up to 1984. Please check out our great selection of old books! (CGC or Raw).

We don't claim that we can fill every list all the time, but if any company can accomplish this, it would certainly be us! We can say this with much confidence because our representatives travel to the majority of the 50 states and Canada plus attend many of the major comic book conventions (San Diego, Chicago, Detroit, New York, etc.) to uncover books you would not have the opportunity to find. When we are not on the road, we spend MANY hours on the phone locating books from our long list of past and present comic sources we've developed over the 30 years we have been dealing in comic books. When sending your want list either E-MAIL us, or mail us and include a self-addressed stamped envelope (if possible), your phone number, and a good time to reach you. We DON'T send out catalogs, so please ask for specific books and conditions desired. We will contact you when we find the items you've requested. Phone calls are also welcomed. WE WILL GLADLY SUGGEST AND PERSONALLY PUT TOGETHER COMIC BOOK INVESTMENT PORTFOLIOS FOR BIG AND SMALL INVESTORS. OUR ADVICE IS ALWAYS FREE!

SAVE YOURSELF ALL THE HASSLE AND LET US DO THE LOOKING FOR YOU!

CALL, FAX, MAIL, OR EMAIL US YOUR WANT LIST!

YOU HAVE NOTHING TO LOSE AND EVERYTHING ON YOUR WANT LIST TO GAIN!

Competitive pricing always. Accurate grading. MANY CGC BOOKS AVAILABLE. Friendly, courteous service. Interest free time payments/layaways possible. Visa, Mastercard, Discover and American Express accepted for total payment OR down payment on books. 7 day money back guarantee before a sale is considered on all non-CGC books. # WHY?

This is what I ask myself every time I hear of a significant collection being sold for less money than I would pay, and I wasn't contacted. You have nothing to lose and everything to gain by contacting me. I have purchased many of the major collections over the years. We are serious about buying your comics and paying you the most for them.

If you have comics or related items for sale, please call or send a list for my quote. Remember, no collection is too large or small, even if it's $200,000 or more.

These are some of the high prices I will pay for comics. Percentages stated will be paid for any grade unless otherwise noted, and are based on the Overstreet Guide.

COMIC COLLECTOR/DEALER WANTS YOUR COMICS!

Paying up to 100% or more of guide for many comics of interest.

▼ POINTS TO CONSIDER ▼

1. I have over 20 years experience in comic fandom. I have bought many of the major collections over the years and purchased them against competing bidders.
2. Consigning your comics to an auction does not always let you realize your collection's potential. Many collectors and dealers end up purchasing a large portion of these comics well below market value. Plus the fact that you do not receive your money in a timely manner. Selling to us would assure you of immediate payment.
3. Being a collector/dealer allows me the ability to buy your entire collection and pay you the most for it. We will figure individual demand items at a high percentage and adjust the percentage on lesser items. The end result is maximizing your value.
4. You have nothing to lose by contacting me. Why miss out on your best offer?

ACHIEVE PERFECTION THE EASY WAY.

Classics Incorporated has been in the business of restoration for nearly a decade. During that time, we've developed cutting-edge techniques that provide an unbeatable combination of archival materials and stunning results, unparalleled in the industry.

Besides our groundbreaking techniques, the main reason Classics Incorporated stays ahead of the competition is our attention to detail. Our number one goal is to make sure each collector is happy with the work performed. To achieve this goal, we back up every single job with this guarantee: if you're not happy with any detail of restoration we perform (within reason), we will correct it for you free of charge, up to one year after initial completion. Restoration is more of an art than a science, and we understand that each collector may have something specific in mind when they open their package. We want every single person to be not only satisfied, but thrilled with the results.

On full restoration jobs, we make sure all major defects are repaired to achieve maximum apparent grade. On slight restoration jobs, only the work outlined by you is performed—you won't be unpleasantly surprised by extra restoration you didn't ask for. And if you need direction, you can depend on us to give you an honest evaluation, even if it means that a particular book should not be restored. The truth is, as many as 50% of comics submitted to us for restoration are turned down because the work is either unnecessary or detrimental to its value.

Check out what our clients have to say in the feedback section of our website, and browse a great selection of before and after pictures of some comics we've recently restored, further testament to the quality you can expect from us. Visit classicsincorporated.com or call us now to inquire about your treasures that need saving.

CGC

"CGC has enabled buyers of high-grade comics to become 'confident buyers' despite the baying of some nay-sayers: CGC has adhered to the very high standards of our hobby. The CGC staff have always dealt with me courteously, and professionally."

Gary Dolgoff • Overstreet Advisor

"We no longer have to worry about buying undisclosed damaged goods. It is easy to see the results of risk free CGC transactions. I would never sell a high grade book without having it certified by CGC first!"

John Hauser • Overstreet Advisor

"From the consistent grading and restoration detection for books submitted, to the friendly customer service, you have changed the landscape of the comic book hobby to heights we never would have achieved without your service. I can safely say that I exclusively buy and sell only CGC certified books."

Robert Roter • Overstreet Advisor Pacific Comic Exchange

"I can tell you the grading is accurate and the holder is an excellent product. There is no doubt that CGC is the future of comic book collecting."

Jef Hinds • Overstreet Advisor

"CGC is an ever growing presence in the comic collecting hobby/industry. For a 4 year old third party grading service to have gained so much influence and respect in the comic community, one must only look to its top quality grading and unbeatable customer service to see why!"

Carl De La Cruz • Overstreet Advisor
Darthdiesel Comics & Collectibles

"Just a quick note to tell you how much I like the service so far. For the most part, the difference was no more than a half grade between us. This was what I was looking for from your service. Keep up the good work and stay on track."

Rob Rogovin • Overstreet Advisor
Four-Color Comics

"CGC has vastly improved my turnover time on sales of quality comics from all ages: Golden Age to Modern. Not only do books sell faster, they often sell for more! That translates into increased profits and I love it. I give CGC my highest recommendation."

Chris Foss • Overstreet Advisor Heroes & Dragons

"The level of grading consistency and integrity that CGC has brought to our hobby has reinforced my confidence in the fact that comic books are among the best investments anywhere - better than stocks, better than bonds, on par with real estate. I am proud to say that ComicLink clients have learned that firsthand."

Josh Nathanson • Overstreet Advisor
ComicLink

"CGC has been an incredible asset to the comic community with their restoration check and help in identifying pedigree books. Finding out if a book has been restored or is truly a pedigree copy has been solved!"

Tom Gordon • Overstreet Editor

"CGC is the only way to go to get maximum dollars for high-grade books. Their support services are backed by friendly, responsive and professional people who know how to get the job done."

Dan Greenhalgh • Overstreet Advisor Showcase New England

"The level of accuracy, consistency, professionalism and beauty of the end product at CGC has revolutionized, energized and stabilized this hobby, lifting it to a height that would have otherwise been impossible."

Mark Wilson • Overstreet Advisor
PGC Mint

"CGC has always been both professional and extremely helpful when I deal with them. From their inception when Sotheby's first helped premiere their service with our live auction in 1999, to the present time, they have changed the market place in the arena of both live and internet auctions. They have given the collecting community something that never existed before - the knowledge that a book being bid upon is the grade described and cannot be tampered with. This simple fact has given the market a stability that it never had before, and we are all of receiving the benefits!"

Jerry Weist • Senior Overstreet Advisor

"The CGC gang did an outstanding job in grading our Lost Valley Collection. We could not have been happier with the service we received. Getting the rarest and best graded comics in this comic collection professionally graded was THE smartest thing we did all year."

Al Stoltz • Overstreet Advisor Basement Comics

"We are amazed at the prices our CGC comic books are realizing on eBay."

Stephen Fishler • Overstreet Advisor Metropolis Collectibles

"CGC has rewritten the rule book for the comic book industry. With its professional grading standards, there are no more 'mystery' grades and disappointed comic book buyers. Its census report provides an accurate and current picture of what's rare and what's not, which is an invaluable tool for both buyer and seller alike. All things considered, no major player in comics can ignore CGC and expect to be successful!"

Dave Anderson • Overstreet Advisor Want List Comics

"CGC has now set the industry standard."

Bob Storms • Highgradedcomics.com

"CGC has created an unsurpassed consumer confidence in comics. It's much easier to sell CGC graded books online and by mail order."

Rob Hughes • Overstreet Advisor Arahangeles

"I now know that a CGC certified book can command a much higher price than a non graded book in equal condition."

Terry O'Neill • Overstreet Advisor
Terry's Comics

"When buying a valuable collectible, one always wants to feel confident that he/she is receiving what they are paying for. CGC provides that. All Star Auctions has always provided its clients the finest in comic collectibles and CGC supports that."

Joe & Nadia Mannarino • Overstreet Advisors
All Star Auctions

"The CGC guys are great. They are changing the landscape of collecting."

David T. Alexander • Overstreet Advisor

"The hobby has been rejuvenated! The credit goes to CGC."

John Chruscinski • Overstreet Advisor

"CGC is the best thing that has happened to comics since Bob Overstreet put out his first price guide."

Steve Lauterbach • Investmentcollectibles.com

MY HISTORY IN COMICS:

If you are about to sell your Comic Book or Comic Art collection, above everything else seek an experienced dealer whom you can trust. I began with comics in the early 1960s, eventually publishing the EC fanzine Squa Tront. I attended conventions (even before there was The Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide), introducing people like Bruce Hamilton to fandom and becoming friends with MAD Magazine publisher Bill Gaines. By 1974 I had opened one of the first specialty comic stores in America, The Million Year Picnic.

Two partnerships and twenty years later, I inaugurated the first Sotheby's Comic Book and Comic Art Auctions in the fall of 1991. The auctions set the tone for the comics market with $12 million in sales and brought national press coverage and respect that comics had never before experienced. I recently have moved onto eBay with special "event" auctions that have sold over $1.5 million during the past two years and made me one of the leading PowerSellers in America for rare Comic Art and Comic Books.

I am also the author of The Comic Art Price Guide, 1st and 2nd editions, have recently finished Bradbury: An Illustrated Life for William Morrow, and also wrote The 100 Greatest Comic Books, just out this year from Whitman Press.

MY PROMISE TO YOU:

What all this means to you the seller is that in Jerry Weist you have one of the most experienced and capable people in comics at your disposal.

** Do you want to sell your comics?

I can give you the best price, and honestly appraise your collection before you sell.

** Do you want to bring your collection to auction, and possibly gain a better percentage of Guide value?

I have been bringing people to auction for the past fifteen years – with outstanding results!

** Do you want to consider a private sale of important comic artwork?

I have been working with the top buyers and VIP clients for over twenty years, and I wrote the book on comic art prices. My promise to you is that with my years of experience, I can honestly evaluate your collectibles and give you the assurance that you can choose the option that best fits your needs – Private Sales, Auction Sales or Individual Purchase. I have the flexibility to act as a consult, helping you decide how to best sell your collection and gain top dollar.

Senior Overstreet Advisor since the 1970s, Charter CGC Member, Sotheby's Comic Art and Comic Book Consultant, eBay seller of the month and Power Seller with over 400 100% positive feedbacks, author of The Comic Art Price Guide, with over 40 years experience in the comic field.

Does The Prospect Of Selling
Your Collection $CARE You?!?

There Is No Mystery!

I have over 30 years of professional experience, and I have purchased Thousands of books from various sources, INCLUDING MOST OF THE DEALERS advertised in this book!

Simply contact me with details of the Golden Age / Silver Age Comics (1933-1976 ONLY), Incomplete Comics, Original Art, or Pulp books you have for sale.

Visit our web site of over 25,000 vintage books.

Serving the NE with Distinction!

Housecleaning?

Wolf at the Door?

Out of Options?

That's Right!!

I will pay LESS for books I do not need. If you have books for sale that are common, chances are I have multiple copies currently in stock. (So do ALL of the larger Golden Age/Silver Age Advertisers in this guide.)

If I buy these items, (with or without the books I need) I will NOT pay MORE, top dollar, etc. NO ONE will, despite all the high-flying rhetoric to the contrary.

FACT IS.....

- ◎ I WILL pay more, Top Dollar, Etc. for the books I need. There are THOUSANDS from 1933-1976.
- ◎ At any given moment, you cannot possibly know which books I need UNLESS you contact me.
- ◎ Regardless of ALL of the claims of Top $ Paid, the person with the GREATEST NEED at the time of sale, if they have the money, will usually pay you the most for your books. I am only one of many (not the only) dealer that CAN and WILL pay top dollar for what I need.
- ◎ Conclusion: If you are selling, Golden/Silver Age comic books, in any grade (1933-1976), Original comic art, or Pulp, and you want input from a serious, motivated buyer, then I invite you to consider contacting Richard Muchin, a full time professional with over 30 years of experience; for details BEFORE you sell your collection.

JOHN VERZYL AND DAUGHTER ROSE, "HARD AT WORK."

John Verzyl started collecting comic books in 1965, and within ten years he had amassed thousands of Golden and Silver Age comic books. In 1979, with his wife Nanette, he opened "COMIC HEAVEN," a retail store devoted entirely to the buying and selling of comic books.

Over the years, John Verzyl has come to be recognized as an authority in the field of comic books. He has served as a special advisor to the "Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide" for the last ten years. Thousands of his "mint" comics were photographed for Ernst Gerber's newly-released "Photo-Journal Guide to Comic Books." His tables and displays at the annual San Diego Comic Convention and the Chicago Comic Convention draw customers from all over the country.

The first COMIC HEAVEN AUCTION was held in 1987, and today his Auction Catalogs are mailed out to more than ten thousand interested collectors and dealers.

Big Little Books

INTRODUCTION

In 1932, at the depths of the Great Depression, comic books were not selling despite their successes in the previous two decades. Desperate publishers had already reduced prices to 25¢, but this was still too much for many people to spend on entertainment. This necessitated a smaller, less expensive format.

Comic books evolved into two newer formats. The first was the comics magazine (today's term, comic book, remains an anachronism referring to the earlier sturdier publications) as represented by Funnies on Parade. The second was the format we now know as the Big Little Book. Both types retailed for 10¢. Very quickly, the traditionally successful characters we now identify as Classic Characters migrated to these formats.

Big Little Books began by reprinting the art (and adapting the stories) from newspaper comics. As their success grew and publishers began commissioning original material, movie adaptations and other entertainment-derived stories became commonplace.

GRADING

Before a Big Little Book's value can be assessed, its condition or state of preservation must be determined. A book in Near Mint condition will bring many times the price of the same book in Poor condition. Many variables influence the grading of a Big Little Book and all must be considered in the final evaluation. Due to the way they are constructed, damage occurs with very little use - usually to the spine, book edges and binding. Consequently, books in Near Mint or better are scarce. More important defects that affect grading are: Split spines, pages missing, page browning or brittleness, writing, crayoning, loose pages, color fading, chunks missing, and rolling or out of square. The following grading guide is given to aid the novice:

9.4 Near Mint: The overall look is as if it was just purchased and maybe opened once; only subtle defects are allowed; paper is cream to off-white, supple and fresh; cover is flat with no surface wear or creases; inks and colors are bright; small penciled or inked arrival dates are acceptable; very slight blunting of corners at top and bottom of spine are common; outside corners are cut square and sharp. Books in this grade could bring prices of guide and a half or more.

9.0 Very Fine/Near Mint: Limited number of defects; full cover gloss with only very slight wear on book corners and edges; very minor foxing; very minor tears allowed, binding still square and tight with no pages missing; paper quality still fresh from cream to off-white. Dates, stamps or initials allowed on cover or inside.

8.0 Very Fine: Most of the cover gloss retained with minor wear appearing at corners and around edges; spine tight with no pages missing; cream/tan paper allowed if still supple; up to 1/4" bend allowed on covers with no color break; cover relatively flat; minor tears allowed.

6.0 Fine: Slight wear beginning to show; cover gloss reduced but still clean, pages tan/brown but still supple (not brittle); up to 1/4" split or color break allowed; minor discoloration and/or foxing allowed.

4.0 Very Good: Obviously a read copy with original printing luster almost gone; some fading and discoloration, but not soiled; some signs of wear such as corner splits and spine rolling; paper can be brown but not brittle; a few pages can be loose but not missing; no chunks missing; blunted corners acceptable.

2.0 Good: An average used copy complete with only minor pieces missing from the spine, which may be partially split; slightly soiled or marked with spine rolling; color flaking and wear around edges, but perfectly sound and legible; could have minor tape repairs but otherwise complete.

1.0 Fair: Very heavily read and soiled with small chunks missing from cover; most or all of spine could be missing; multiple splits in spine and loose pages, but still sound and legible, bringing 50 to 70 percent of good price.

IMPORTANT

Most BLBs on the market today will fall in the Good to Fine grade category. Rarely will Very Fine to Near Mint BLBs be offered for sale. When they are, they usually bring premium prices.

A WORD ON PRICING

The prices are given for Good, Fine and Very Fine/Near Mint condition. A book in Fair would be 50-70% of the Good price. Very Good would be halfway between the Good and Fine price, and Very Fine would be halfway between the Fine and Very Fine/Near Mint price. The prices listed were averaged from convention sales, dealers' lists, adzines, auctions, and by special contact with dealers and collectors from coast to coast. The prices and the spreads were determined from sales of copies in available condition or the highest grade known. Since most available copies are in the Good to Fine range, neither dealers nor collectors should let the Very Fine/Near Mint column influence the prices they are willing to charge or pay for books in less than near perfect condition.

In the past, the BLB market has lacked a point of focus due to the absence of an annual price guide that accurately reports sales and growth in the market. Due to this, current prices for BLBs still vary considerably from region to region. It is our hope that this section will contribute to the stability of the BLB market. The prices listed reflect a six times spread from Good to Very Fine/Near Mint (1 - 3 - 6). We feel this spread accurately reflects the current market, especially when you consider the scarcity of books in Very Fine/Near Mint condition. When one or both end sheets are missing, the book's value would drop about a half grade.

Books with movie scenes are of double importance due to the high crossover demand by movie collectors.

Promotional Comics

THE MARKETING OF A MEDIUM

by Dr. Arnold T. Blumberg, DCD

with new material and additional research by Sol M. Davidson, PhD, and Robert L. Beerbohm

Starting with the 30th edition of The Official Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide, we now list premium and giveaway comics (now collectively referred to as "promotional comics" in this edition) in their own section. This article has appeared in previous editions in a shorter form, but now contains even more detailed information on this often overlooked corner of the comic book collecting universe. We hope that by setting promotional comics apart, we can draw attention to this fertile but still poorly represented area of comic book history.

Everyone wants something for free. It's in our nature to look for the quick fix, the good deal, the complimentary gift. We long to hit the lottery and quit our job, to win the trip around the world, or find that pot of gold at the end of the proverbial rainbow. Collectors in particular are certainly built to appreciate the notion of the "free gift," since it not only means a new item to collect and enjoy, but no risk or obligation in order to acquire it.

Ah, but there's the rub. Because things are not always what they seem, and "free gifts" usually come with a price. As the saying goes, "there's no such thing as a free lunch," so if it seems too good to be true, it probably is. This is the case even in the world of comics, where premiums and giveaways have a familiar agenda hidden behind the bright colors and fanciful stories. But where did it all begin?

EXTRA EXTRA

As we learn more about the early history of the comic book

A very rare piece indeed, this represents one of the few existing examples of Palmer Cox's signature, as Cox always printed his name on his art. The character depicted in the upper left, "The Dude," represents a typical New Yorker and was Cox's favorite. "Brownieland" was the name of Cox's studio.

industry through continual investigation and the publishing of articles like those regularly featured in this book, we gain a much greater understanding of the financial and creative forces at work in shaping the medium, but perhaps one of the most intriguing and least recognized factors that influenced the dawn of comics is the concept of the premium or giveaway. (Note: Some of the historical information referenced in this article is derived from material also presented in Robert L. Beerbohm's introductory articles to the Platinum Age and Modern Age sections.)

The birth of the comic book as we know it today is intimately connected with the development of the comic strip in American newspapers and their use as an advertising and marketing tool for staple products such as bread, milk, and cereal. From the very beginning, comic characters have played several roles in pop culture, entertaining the youth of the country while also (sometimes none too subtly) acting as hucksters for whatever corporation foots the bill. From important staples to frivolous material produced simply to make a buck, these products have utilized the comics medium to sell, sell, sell. And what better way to hook a prospective customer than to give them "something for nothing?"

Starting in the 1850s, comics were being used in free almanacs such as Elton's, Hostetter's and Wright's to lure readers for the little booklets to sell patent medicine, farm products, tobacco, shoe polish, etc. Most of these are exceedingly rare today, hence it is difficult to compile an accurate history. More mention of these early precursors can be found in the Victorian Comics Era essay following this one. But although comic characters themselves were already being aggressively merchandised all around the world by the mid-1890s--as with, for example, Palmer Cox's The Brownies--the real starting point for the success of comics as a giveaway marketing mechanism can be traced to the introduction of The Yellow Kid, Richard Outcault's now legendary newspaper strip.

Newspaper publishers had already recognized that comic strips could boost circulation as well as please sponsors and advertisers by drawing more eyes to the page, so Sunday "supplements" were introduced to entice fans. Outcault's creation cemented the theory with proof of comic characters' marketing and merchandising power.

Soon after, Outcault (who had most likely been inspired by Cox's merchandising success with The Brownies in the first place) caught lightning in a bottle once more with Buster Brown, who has the distinction of being America's first nationally licensed comic strip character. Soon, comic strips proliferated throughout the nation's newspapers as tycoons like Hearst and Pulitzer recognized the drawing power of the new medium and fought circulation wars to capture the pennies of the nouveau readership. They paid exorbitant salaries to comic strip artists such as Rudolph Dirks (Katzenjammer Kids), and used the funnies as newspaper supplements and as premiums to attract readers. Corporations soon had the chance to license recognizable personas as their own personal pitchmen (or women or animals...). Comic character merchandise wasn't far behind, resulting in a boom of future collectibles now catalogued in volumes like Hake's Price Guide to Character Toys.

TWO BIRTHS FOR THE PRICE OF ONE

Comic books themselves were at the heart of this movement, and giveaway and premium collections of comic strips not only appealed to children and adults alike, but provided the impetus for the birth of the modern comic book format itself. It could be said that without the concept of the giveaway comic or the marketing push behind it, there would be no comic book industry as we have it today. Well-known now is the story of how in spring 1933 Harry Wildenberg of Eastern Color Printing Company convinced Proctor & Gamble to sponsor the first modern comic book, Funnies on Parade, as a premium. Its success led to the first continuing comic book, Famous Funnies, and the rest, as they say, is history.

In 1935, while working on the printing presses of Eastern Color developing how modern comic books get printed, Julin J. Proskauer came up with an idea for printing "Comic-Books-For-Industry." In July 1936 he made his first sale through his newly formed William C. Popper & Co. to David M. Davies, then advertising manager for Seagram's Distillers Corp. for three million copies of Seagram's Merrymakers in time for the 1936-37 Christmas season. "Thus was a new industry born," wrote Printing News in August 1945.

Even a casual perusal of the listings in this section of the Guide will dazzle the reader with the endless variety of purposes that this medium has served. Yes, promos have been used to hawk products from athletic equipment to zithers and zip codes, but comics are too versatile an art form to be confined to a few uses. They've swayed elections in cities (The O'Dwyer Story, 1949), in states (Giant for a Day: Jacob Javits, 1946) and nationwide (The Story of Harry Truman, 1948); solicited for charities (Donald Duck and the Red Feather, 1948); addressed health issues (Blondie, 1949, mental hygiene); discouraged kids from smoking (Captain America Meets the Asthma Monster, 1987); coached youngsters in sports skills (Circling the Bases, 1947, A.G. Spaulding); explained scientific complexities (Adventures in Science, 1946-61, GE); pleaded for social justice (Consumer Comics, 1975); espoused religious causes (Oral Roberts' True Stories, 1950s); protected the environment (Our Spaceship Earth, 1947); encouraged tourism (Wyoming, The Cowboy State, 1954); conveyed a sense of history (Louisiana Purchase, 1953); taught about computers (Superman Radio Shack Giveaway, 1980); trained employees (Dial Finance Dialogues, 1961-70) and executives (Beneficial Finance System, Managing New Employees, 1950s); cautioned safety (Willy Wing Flap, 1944(?)); announced corporate annual results (Motorola Annual Report, 1952); defended free enterprise (Steve Merritt, 1949); hammered communism (How Stalin Hopes to Destroy America, 1951); fought discrimination (Mammy Yokum & the Great Dogpatch Mystery, 1956, B'nai Brith); aided young workers in job-hunting (The Job Scene, 1969); battled the scourge of sickle cell anemia (Where's Herbie, 1972, U.S. H.E.W.); inspired the overcoming of adversity (Al Capp by Li'l Abner, 1946); fostered reading (Linus Gets a Library Card, 1960); recruited for the armed forces (Li'l Abner Joins the Navy, 1950); beguiled readers into learning languages (Blondie, 1949, Philadelphia public schools); and even instructed in such delicate matters as birth control (Escape from Fear, 1950 (revised 1959, etc.), for Planned Parenthood).

READ ALL ABOUT IT

The impact of this new approach to advertising was not lost on the business world. Contrary to modern belief, comic books were hardly discounted by the adults of the time...at least not those who had the marketing savvy to recognize an opportunity - or a threat - when they saw one. In the April 1933 issue of Fortune magazine, an article titled "The Funny Papers" trumpeted the arrival of comics as a force to be reckoned with in the world of advertising and business, and what's more, a force to fear as well. At first providing a brief survey of the newspaper comic strip business (which for many of the magazine's readers must have seemed a foreign topic for serious discussion), the article goes on to examine the incredible financial draw of comics and their characters:

"Between 70 and 75 per cent {sic} of the readers of any newspaper follow its comic sections regularly...Even the advertiser has succumbed to the comic, and in 1932 spent well over $1,000,000 for comic-paper space."

"Comic Weekly is the comic section of seventeen Hearst Sunday papers...Advertisers who market their wares through balloon-speaking manikins {sic} may enjoy the proximity of Jiggs, Maggie, Barney Google, and other funny Hearst headliners."

Although the article continues to cast the notion of relying on comic strip material to sell product in a negative light, actually suggesting that advertisers who utilize comics are violating unspoken rules of "advertising decorum" and bringing themselves "down to the level" of comics (and since when have advertisers been stalwart preservers of good taste and high moral standards), there is no doubt that they are viewing comics in a new light. The comic characters have arrived by

Fortune wasn't the only one to take notice as World War II came and went. In 1948, Louis P. Birk, the head of Brevity, Inc., an important promotional comics publisher said, "Comics are serious business." In an article in Printers' Ink magazine, he estimated that more than 80 different "comic booklets" had been produced and more than 45,000,000 million copies distributed in the five years before 1948. But of course, comics were serious business long before businessman/historian Birk noted the fact for posterity.

THE MARCH OF WAR AND BEYOND

Through the relentless currents of time, comic strips, books, and the characters that starred in them became more and more an intrinsic part of American culture. During the turmoil of the Great Depression and World War II, comic characters in print and celluloid form entertained while informing and selling at the same time, and premium and giveaway comics came well and truly into their own, pushing everything from loaves of bread to war bonds.

In the 1950s and '60s, there was a shift in focus as the power of giveaway and premium comics was applied to more altruistic endeavors than simply selling something. Comic book format pamphlets, fully illustrated and often inventively written, taught children about banking, money, the dangers of poison and other household products, and even chronicled moments in American history. The comic book as giveaway was now not only a marketing gimmick--it was a tool for educating as well.

One of the earliest examples of the business world acknowledging and investigating the influence of the comic book on modern pop culture and American enterprise. FORTUNE Magazine, April 1933.

The 1970s and '80s saw another boom in premium and giveaway comics. Every product imaginable seemed to have a licensing deal with a comic book character, usually one of the prominent flag bearers of the Big Two, Marvel or DC. Spider-Man fought bravely against the Beetle for the benefit of All Detergent; Captain America allied himself with the Campbell Kids; and Superman helped a class of computer students beat a disaster-conjuring foe at his own game with the help of Radio Shack Tandy computers.

Newspapers rediscovered the power of comics, not just with enlarged strip supplements but with actual comic books. Spider-Man, the Hulk, and others turned up as giveaway comic extras in various American newspapers (including Chicago and Dallas publications), while a whole series of public information comics like those produced decades earlier used superheroes to caution children about the dangers of smoking, drugs, and child abuse.

Comics also turned up in a plethora of other toy products as the 1980s introduced kids to the joy of electronic games and action figures. Supplementary comics provided "free" with action figure and video game packages told the backstory about the product, adding depth to the play experience while providing an extra incentive to buy. Comics became an intrinsic part of the Atari line of video cartridges, for example, eventually spawning its own full-blown newsstand series as well.

As the twentieth century gave way to the twenty-first, giveaway comics were still being produced for inclusion in action figure and video game packages, as well as in conjunction with countless consumer items and corporations. It seems that the medium still has a lot to offer for all those companies desperate to make the most of their market share.

A COMIC BY ANY OTHER NAME

One of the earliest names for promotional comics was "special purpose comics." In their pursuit of superheroes, collectors have allowed promotional comics to lie fallow - underappreciated and uncollected. Without a legitimate name, these products were given sundry other appellations - industrial comics, promos, giveaways, premiums, promics - each accurate but only for a small segment of the unorganized but lusty and lively medium. Perhaps no one name can cover all the variations and purposes of this branch of comic art, but for practical reasons if we accept the general premise that these comics were created to promote an idea, a product or a person, then "Promotional Comics" is probably as convenient a catch-all title as we can come up with.

We used the phrase "for practical reasons" because the word "practical" goes to the heart of promotional comics more than it does for any other comics product. What greater testimony is there to the medium's impact on American culture than to note their use by hard-headed, profit-minded business people and corporations? They invest their money and they expect results.

Today, premium comics continue to thrive and are still utilized as a valuable marketing and promotional tool. "Free" comics are still packaged with action figures and video games, and offered as mail-away premiums from a variety of product manufacturers. The comic industry itself has expanded its use of giveaway comics to self-promote as well, with "ashcan" and other giveaway editions turning up at conventions and comic shops to advertise upcoming series and special events. Many of these function as old-fashioned premiums, with a coupon or other response required from the reader to receive the comic.

As for the supplements and giveaways printed all those years ago, they have spawned a collectible fervor all their own, thanks to their atypical distribution and frequent rarity. For that and the desire to delve deeper into comics history, we hope that by focusing more directly on this genre, we can enhance our understanding of this vital component in the development and history of the modern comic book.

Whether you're a collector or not, we're all motivated by that desire to get something for nothing. For as long as consumers are enticed by the notion of the "free gift," promotional comics will remain a vital marketing component in many business models, but they will also continue to fight the stigma that has long been associated with the industry as a whole. "Respectable" sources like Fortune may have taken notice of the power of comic-related advertising 71 years ago, but after all this time comics still fight an uphill battle to establish some measure of dignity for the medium. Perhaps the higher visibility of promotional comics will eventually prove to be a deciding factor in that intellectual war.

Early issues were full size, 32 pages, and were printed with and without an extra cover of slick stock, just for the advertiser. The binding was stapled if the slick cover was added; otherwise, the pages were glued together at the spine. Most 1948 - 1951 issues were full size, 24 pages, pulp covers. Starting in 1952 they were half-size (with a few exceptions) and 32 pages with slick covers. 1959 and later issues had only 16 pages plus covers. 1952 - 1959 issues read oblong; 1960 and later issues read upright. All have new stories except where noted.

Interesting note: these are dated three weeks before the first Spirit comic. Letters indicate that samples may have been sent to a few newspapers. Other various comic sections were found with the above, but were more like the Sunday comic sections in format.

The Pioneer Age

The American Comic Book: 1500s-1828

by Eric C. Caren ©2005

Want to avoid an argument in social discourse? Steer clear of politics and religion. In the latter category, the most controversial subject is human evolution. Collectors can become just as squeamish when you start messing with the evolution of a particular collectible. In most cases, the origin of a particular comic character will be universally agreed upon, but try tackling the origin of printed comics and you are asking for trouble. Perhaps I will make more friends than enemies amongst comic collectors if I first admit that in my own field of expertise, rare newspapers and other news forms – broadsides, tracts, newsletters, periodicals, etc. – 35 years of experience has left me somewhat at a loss to tell you what the first newspaper was. Actually, to be fair to myself, I could give you a list of at least a dozen good candidates and then it would be subjective as to which item on the list qualified as the godfather. It so happens that journalism and comics are not such distant cousins, and because a picture paints a thousand words, I have provided you with a number of pictorial exhibits to accompany this treatise. First printed comic? Ancestors of my Silver Age companions growing up in the 1960s? Yes, centuries before there was a Spider-Man, an Incredible Hulk, and the Fantastic Four, there were comics and cartoons!

My friend and fellow newspaper collector, Dr. Stephen A. Goldman, has always lived by the old maxim, “Knowledge is Power,” and to that end he keeps an enormous personal library of books relating to journalism, history, and collectibles. Many years ago, I was perusing through the spines of a myriad of reference books in his print library (pre-Internet) and hit upon a title that really intrigued me – The Early Comic Strip by David Kunzle, published by The University of California Press in 1973. The subtitle of the tome is Narrative Strips and Picture Stories in the European Broadsheet from c. 1450 to 1825. Kunzle gets down to business in the flap copy. He states that “because the ‘comic strip’ has never been adequately defined, no one has known where to look for its ancestors...In this book the ‘comic strip’ is defined as a mass produced series of narrative images printed either on a single sheet, or else strung across several sheets...” The Kunzle book opened a whole new world for me, and I started adding many early items to my news archive. These would share space in the comics division of the archive with more familiar friends like the Yellow Kid, Little Nemo, and the Brownies.

In this article, I would like to share some of our mutual cousins with you in the hopes that you will be inspired to look back at what I am calling “The Pioneer Age” of comics. There are many things out there from the 16th to the 19th centuries that would be interesting for comic connoisseurs to collect. While some items illustrated within this article are virtually unobtainable, others can be found, and many other similar items are out there just waiting for inspired collectors to seek them out. All of the items pictured are taken from originals in my personal collection, with the exception of the Franklin snake cartoon which is proudly owned by Dr. Goldman. As far as I know, his example is the only one in private hands.

Before we begin, a bit of terminology is imperative. The terms ‘broadsheet’ and ‘broadside’ regarding works of the 16th and 17th centuries are fairly interchangeable and they essentially refer to the modern equivalent of a poster. Today, technically speaking, a broadside is a single sheet of paper printed only on the recto and a broadsheet is a piece of paper with printing on both sides. The earliest comic item illustrated in Kunzle is a ten-panel religious broadside probably printed in Strasburg (then Germany) circa 1460. Ten panels, biblical – hmm, what could it possibly depict? Gutenberg had invented moveable type only a few years earlier and used his printing press to print a now famous bible in Mainz, Germany, so it is no surprise that this early comic would be religious in nature. Non-secular matter would dominate the printing arts for well over a century to come. However, Kunzle does present us with a satirical and rather racy comic broadsheet done by one Casper of Regensburg, with a title that roughly translates to “My Heart doth Smart.” This piece is replete with a picture of an alluring half-clothed maiden just out of her German bathing-house being admired by a kneeling young male observer. Kunzle dates this piece to circa 1485.

The earliest comic piece in my archive is a German broadside dated 1569 [Figure 1]. It is an illustrated attack on the Spanish Catholics led by the notoriously cruel Duke of Alva (center) who had recently occupied the Low Countries (Belgium and The Netherlands) and committed atrocities on the resident Protestant populace. It is half-allegorical, with the foreground consisting of the Devil and a nun blowing ill wind into the ear of the Duke of Alva who has in turn chained up the women of the Low Countries, and half-journalistic, with the upper half depicting the execution of Egmont and Horn in Antwerp.

The next two exhibits are particularly interesting to me. They are the work of the Hogenberg family of Cologne, Germany. Franz Hogenberg, and later his son Abraham, issued approximately 500 current event illustrated news broadsidess starting in the 1560s and ending around 1620. The father had already become famous for his extremely detailed and accurate city and town views that he had published with a partner named George Braun in atlas format. With correspondents all over Europe sending the Hogenberg family news and the city views already compiled, the Hogenbergs were able to have their news broadsides on the streets for sale within weeks of political and military events taking place in England and on the European Continent. In some cases, the news sheets were out of their print shop within days of the actual event, particularly when the event occurred in Germany. These sheets were of uniform size, approximately 10” x 13”, sometimes numbered and interesting in that the graphics were always the dominant part of the broadside. Usually, text was relegated to a few lines of rhyming verse beneath the copperplate engravings. As literacy in this period was primarily confined to the nobility, this was a most pragmatic vehicle for dissemination of news – and often propaganda – to the populace at large. The picture told the story and the text could be read to groups of people who might remember it due to its catchy rhyming format.

A fair percentage of these news sheets were composed as strip narratives. One example of this is from 1589 [Figure 2] and shows the murder of King Henry III of France by the monk Jacques Clement near Paris. This four-panel broadside includes the stabbing of the king and concludes with Mr. Clement being drawn and quartered by four horses. The next work illustrated here is a 6-panel narrative strip with no text dating from 1617 [Figure 3]. The first panel depicts the shooting in Paris of the Italian Concini, who had ruled France while Louis XIII was still a young boy. The second panel shows the release of the birds from their cages to symbolize the new independence of the young King Louis, and the rest of the panels involve the common people attacking the corpse of Concini in various vicious ways.

The next piece is also the earliest English language piece in my collection to employ word balloons. It is a trompe l'oeil, or collage, caricature satirizing the catastrophic South Sea Bubble, which ruined many investors in a manner similar to our own Tech Stock “New Economy” bubble of the 1990s. It is titled “The Bubbles Medley, or a Sketch of the Times/Being Europe’s Memorial from the Year 1720” [Figure 4]. The most interesting scene to comic historians would have to be the one in the upper right corner depicting a number of men in a London coffeehouse – where merchants would regularly gather to read and discuss the latest news – speaking with word balloons. One of the gentlemen seated at a table sarcastically announces “I was to have took S. Sea [stock] at 2000 but chose rather to live here like a Knave than go to Jayl [sic] like a Fool.”

The first successful American newspaper was the Boston News-Letter begun in 1704. From that point until the French and Indian War, there were precious few illustrations in any colonial newspaper. Some of the best information on early illustration in colonial newspapers can be found in the book Journals and Journeymen by Clarence Brigham, author of the most important bibliography of colonial newspapers. In a chapter simply entitled “Illustration,” Brigham points out that the first illustration in an American newspaper was a simple woodcut of a flag in an issue of the Boston News-Letter from January 26, 1708. Except for advertisements and title devices, Brigham could not find another illustration until 1733, when John Peter Zenger inserted a crude map of Louisburg into his New York Weekly Journal. Then, after perhaps one more map of Louisburg in 1745 came something in 1754 that was to have a lasting effect in the hearts and souls of the colonials right through the fight for independence.

Brigham tells us “Benjamin Franklin, in the Pennsylvania Gazette of May 9, 1754, published what may well be called the earliest American newspaper cartoon. That year, at a time when the prospect of a war with the French was imminent, a congress of the colonies was called at Albany to be held in June. Franklin, in a plea for united action, published an article on the situation on May 9. Accompanying the article was a cartoon woodcut engraving of a snake divided in eight parts [Figure 5]... Under the snake was the motto ‘Join, Or Die...’ The segmented snake device was of great importance in calling the attention of the colonists to the necessity of union, and was revived at the time of the Stamp Act controversy in 1765 and again during the movement toward independence in 1774. That year, Isaiah Thomas used the snake cartoon the full width of the first page in his Massachusetts Spy, and added a dragon, representing Great Britain, facing the snake..." [Figure 6]

The next time I find illustration in an American newspaper is at the time of our ratification process for the U.S. Constitution. The Massachusetts Centinel in 1787-1788 offered a series of what I call 'Federal Edifice Pillar' cartoons. Each time a state would ratify the Constitution, a new pillar would be added to the latest edifice cartoon. In Figure 7, we see the August 1788 cartoon with a headline reading "On the erection of the Eleventh Pillar of the great National Dome, we beg leave most sincerely to felicitate 'Our Dear Country.'" The cartoon thus shows that New York has ratified the Constitution. North Carolina's pillar is about to join New York according to the headline, which reads "Rise it Will," and lastly a fragmented Rhode Island Pillar is followed by a pointing hand which in turn is followed by the caption "The foundation Good – it may yet be SAVED." Under the cartoon can be found a dozen lines of verse called "The Federal Edifice." I have never seen any other illustrations in American newspapers dated before 1800. Therefore, it is safe to conclude that of the very few illustrations that were produced in American newspapers during the 18th century, the majority of them are cartoons!

Magazines of the 18th century offered more illustrations, perhaps because most of them were printed monthly, thereby giving the printer more time to produce an engraved plate or portrait to accompany the text of the periodical. Most of the illustrated magazines offered little in the way of cartoons; a notable exception was the Royal American Magazine printed in Boston. The famous silversmith and patriot, Paul Revere, produced the most famous cartoon of the era for this Boston magazine in June 1774 when he satirized the tea taxes and the closing down of Boston Harbor with a full page engraved cartoon entitled "The able Doctor or America Swallowing the Bitter Draught." This allegorical piece shows an Indian woman (representing colonials) having a pot of tea forced down her unwilling throat; a document labeled "Boston Port Bill" is thrown down at her simultaneously. The engraved cartoon was boldly signed in the lower right corner "P. Revere Sculp."

Much has been written about the icon "Bloody [Boston] Massacre..." by Paul Revere. It is claimed as an ancestor by young student). My friend Dr. Stephen A. Goldman says of Paul Revere's 1770 engraving of the Boston Massacre that it "has various elements common to early political cartoons. The piece has a distinct comic-like appearance, contains descriptive text (in verse), and is partly news, opinion, and propaganda. Revere in this work reveals himself to have much in common with later political cartoonists such as Harper's Weekly's Thomas Nast (19th Century) and the Washington Post's Herb Block (20th Century)" (for the image, see the color collectors of newspapers, broadsides, printed Americana and, alas, comic/cartoon aficionados. I would add that nostalgia played a factor in my getting one for the collection many years ago (remembering it from history books as a

Paris (1783). The full title page contends that the magazine will be filled “With a Most Delicious Banquet of Amorous, Bacchanalian, Whimsical, Humorous, Theatrical and Polite [Not!] Entertainment.” Almost every issue of this magazine contains a cartoon including word balloons. I have chosen one that is particularly delightful [Figure 8]. This is the first issue of the magazine, and it contains a plate entitled “Florizel granting Independency to Perdita.” In it, a British aristocrat grabs the arm of a young maiden and his word balloon reads “Submit to my Royal Will.” Seated on a sofa, the maiden responds “Declare me Independent and Then -----.”

Another London periodical from April 1783, The European Magazine, contains a cartoon including a buffalo. It is believed that this is the first time that the buffalo was used to symbolize the young American nation. The plate is headed “Amusement for John Bull and his Cousin Paddy or, the Gambols of the American Buffalo, in St. James Street” [Figure 9]. An enormous 12" x 20" fold-out political cartoon was included in the January 1799 issue of The Anti-Jacobin Review and Magazine [Figure 10]. I am not familiar enough with the politics of the day to interpret the cartoon, but it is notable for its size and its extensive use of word balloons.

The earliest English language periodical identifying itself as a “Comic Work” which I have come across is The New Wits Magazine [Figure 11], printed in London. The printing on the very top of the outer wrapper reads “This Comic Work (which will be completed in Twenty-four Numbers, making three Volumes) may be had of every liberal bookseller in the United Kingdom – It is published regularly every fortnight without any interruption whatever.” The comic plate inside the issue is entitled “The Whiskers” and is dated December 1805. This is a remarkable issue in many ways; first of all, the pages are uncut, the original outer wrapper is present, and best of all, the plate is annotated in pencil and signed by the most famous British illustrator of the 19th century – the illustrator for many of Charles Dickens' first editions, George Cruikshank. The blank space above the "Whisker" cartoon is filled with a pencil notation reading "engraved from a drawing by my father I. Cruikshank" and is signed in the same pencil with the initials "GCK." Isaac Cruikshank (c.1756-1811), father of George, was also a noted caricaturist. This then is George's own copy of a comic magazine illustrated by his father!

led the Connecticut Mirror dated January 7, 1811. The front page contains what is known as a carrier's address. Newsboys would deliver a special issue either at Christmas or New Years, as in this case, with verse that would be specially prepared for that edition; to solicit tips, the newsboys used these carrier address issues. This particular title chose to grace the front page not only with verse but also three crude comic illustrations [Figure 12]. I am almost certain that the cartoons satirize Napoleon, as here is a sample of the accompanying comic verse: "...From deeds of bold and rash emprize, to softer scenes we turn our eyes. Great Bonaparte's tender heart, Grows weary of his home-made queen, the mild, the beauteous Josephine..." It was not unusual to lampoon Napoleon, especially in Britain. "The Corsican Munchausen---Humming the Lads of Paris" [Figure 13] is a delightful hand-colored engraved cartoon "Published December 4, 1813" in the London Strand. Little Napoleon is spewing a multitude of word balloons ending with a particularly biting one that reads "Did I not burn Moscow – and leave 400,000 brave Soldiers to perish in the snow for the good of the French Nation?"

One of the most famous political cartoons in American history was first published in the Salem Gazette in Massachusetts on March 30, 1813. The front page contains "The Gerry-Mander, Essex South District Formed into a Monster!" [Figure 14] The expression gerrymandering has become famous when a geographical area is re-districted for the benefit of one political party over another. Elbridge Gerry, then Governor of Massachusetts, re-districted the state to get more Republican state senators than they otherwise would have netted. The cartoon puts the new district and the towns involved in a picture to resemble a winged dragon-like monster. Another Massachusetts newspaper called the Columbian Centinel issued a front-page endorsement in 1817 for John Brooks for Governor. Underneath this unabashed partisan endorsement is a cartoon of "The Good Ship Massachusetts Ready for Sea" [Figure 15] with all of the sails featuring either political slogans or the names of the candidates – Brooks, and his running mate for Lieutenant Governor, William Phillips.

Up until this point all of the American illustrations that I have discussed have been political cartoons of one sort or another. This would all change with the introduction of a comic paper called The Idiot, or Invisible Rambler, published under a pseudonym, "Samuel Simpleton." Printed in Boston in 1818, this publication was the earliest to present a recurring comic character that spoke with word balloons. This then is my choice for the 'Grandfather of all American Comics.' The comic is titled "Journal of Br. Jerry's Tour to the Ohio, (Continued)" [Figure 16]. The April 18, 1818 issue features the comic at the top of the first of the three columns on the front page of this four-page publication. It depicts two men on horses; one says to the other, "I am Going to Ohio." The other responds, "I have been." Ohio in 1818 was the Western frontier; it should be remembered that Lewis and Clark made their overland venture to the Pacific only about a dozen years earlier. Here, for the first time in American periodical publishing, do we encounter a secular and non-partisan comic of fictitious characters who speak with word balloons. Many of the elements that would later lead to familiar comic strip and comic book stylistic conventions are first found here.

Another really special publication in my holdings is an 1821 weekly British humor magazine in original green outer wrapper called The Pasquin or General Satirist [Figure 17]. I own issue #4, which has inserted into it a hand-colored word balloon cartoon relating to 'medical quackery.' One can only imagine the work that went into issuing a magazine with a hand-colored engraved cartoon. A poor patient stands before a doctor who is consulting with a mechanical robot made up of medical devices and tools. The consensus seems to be to "Bleed Him." The colored cartoon is titled "A Consultation at the Medical Board."

Did you know that the first full front-page illustration in an American newspaper was a cartoon? On Oct. 20, 1828, The New Hampshire Journal depicted a series of six coffins headed with skulls and bones. Each coffin has a biography describing various poor sods supposed to have been killed by General Andrew Jackson in duels, etc. Titled "Monumental Inscriptions" [Figure 18], who knows if it helped or hurt Jackson in his run for President. At any rate, he won the election and was re-elected President four years later.

An interesting sidelight to the history of comics as they relate to newspapers and periodicals would be something that we might consider a distant cousin of everything in this Guide. I have the third issue of a series called "The American Comic Almanac" [Figure 19], dated 1833 and published in Philadelphia "With Whims, Scraps and Oddities," and of course lots of comics.

Bell's Life in London, a popular British newspaper in the first half of the 19th century, issued a one-shot on June 24, 1831 called The Gallery of 140 Comicalities [Figure 20]. It is subtitled "Which has appeared from time to time, in the most Popular Sporting Sunday Paper, 'Bell's Life in London'." The first British comic book? Let the Brits fight that one out!

The Boston Notion of 1841 not only had a comic nameplate, called a masthead by some, but some front pages of this title carried a column headed "Series of Comical Designs, Executed for The Boston Notion" [Figure 21]. Later in the 1840s, we start to see the advent of comic magazines in America styled after the successful British humor magazine Punch. The Victorian Age of comics dawned with titles such as Yankee Doodle, and John Donkey. Books composed of comics like Obadiah Oldbuck have previously been discussed in articles on the Victorian Age like the one featured in this edition of the Guide. One last note: It has previously been asserted, quite correctly, that Harper's Monthly Magazine started reprinting British comics in the back pages of its magazines in the early 1850s. But what about a regular comic feature in an American newspaper? Take a look at the May 31, 1856 issue of Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper and you will find a page titled "Comic Department" [Figure 22]!

Eric C. Caren was born (a collector) in 1959. By the age of 5 he had collected stamps, coins and baseball cards. He started collecting rare newspapers at the age of 11, after stumbling upon an abandoned house full of them in Rockland County, NY where he lived. In high school in the mid-1970s he apprenticed with a rare book dealer in Connecticut and actually set up as a dealer at a comic book convention in NYC sometime around 1975. He graduated from the University of Maryland with a Business degree in 1981. His first job was director of a gallery that dealt in rare newspapers in London in Covent Garden Market soon after it opened. He established The Caren Archive, a full-time business selling historical collectibles in 1983. He co-founded HCA Auctions with Dennis Holzman. He is a former Director of The Ephemera Society of America, a Member of The American Antiquarian Society, a Member of the Antiquarian Booksellers Association of America, and a Consultant to The Newseum, which will re-open in Washington DC on Pennsylvania Avenue in several years (his first newspaper collection will be the most substantial part of their permanent collection). He is a partner with Stephen A. Goldman in the business that bears his name as well as in OldNews, Inc. He has authored nine books using rare newspapers – The "Extra" series with Castle Books – and has recently co-authored his 10th book, "The Civil War" Smithsonian Institution Headliners Series with Dr. Stephen A. Goldman. Reprints of papers from his and Dr. Goldman's archive are sold at The Smithsonian Institution and The Holocaust Memorial Museum.

The comic strip originated across the Atlantic 100s of years before it was brought over to America by immigrants and imports. Title of this broadsheet example is A remarkable story of how Conchine Marquis d' Ancre was shot in Paris April 24 (1617), buried, disinterred and burned... A man named Concini is arrested at the Louvre. His hair is pulled out along with his ears, fingers, genitals, heart, lips, nose, tongue and other body parts are cut off and thrust into a fire in front of the Bastille where the royalty can see.

This Victorian Era section is devoted to comic strips and books published during the years the United States expanded across the North American continent, fought a Civil War, shifted from an agrarian to an industrial society, "welcomed" waves of immigrants, and struggled over race, class, religion, temperance, and suffrage - and all of it depicted and satirized by generations of mostly now long-forgotten cartoonists. The social attitudes, beliefs, and conventions of 19th century America, the good as well as the bad, are to be found in abundance. We can imagine the first question to pop into most readers' minds will be, "What, beyond the happenstance of publication date, are Victorian Era comics?"

The aspect we believe most distinguishes Victorian Era comic strips from those of later eras was the extremely rare use of word balloons within sequential (multi-picture) comic stories. When word balloons were used, it was nearly always within single-panel cartoons. On the occasions when they appeared inside a strip, with very few exceptions, the ballooned dialogue was non-essential to understanding the story. Nineteenth-century comics tended to place both narration and dialogue beneath comic panels rather than within the panel's borders. Many of these comics are to the word balloon-strewn post-Yellow Kid comics of the 20th Century as silent movies are to the later "talkies." Just as sound changed how stories were structured on film, so too did comic strips change when the words were moved from beneath panels to inside them, and dialogue rather than narration was made to forward a story in conjunction with the pictures.

The Victorian Era of comic books began on different dates in different nations, depending on when the first publication of a sequential comic book on their soil is known to have occurred. For the U.S.A. this happened when the American humor periodical Brother Jonathan printed the 40-page, 195-panel graphic novel The Adventures of Mr. Obadiah Oldbuck as a special extra dated September 14, 1842. Almost six decades later, America's Victorian comics came to their end, replaced by the onslaught of Platinum Age books reprinting newspaper strips from Bennett, Hearst & Pulitzer Sunday comic sections, among many others.

There is a lot of overlap between Victorian Era and Platinum Age comic books and strips. There has been a long slow-motion evolution of the comic strip. Those publications which continued from one century into the next, such as Puck, Judge, and Life, have their pre-1900 issues listed within the Victorian Age section, while their post-1899 issues can be found inside the Platinum Age. Some non-sequential (i.e., single panel) American comic items existing prior to 1842 are also listed herein, going back at present to 1795. These belong to what could tentatively be called the Age of Caricature (1770s through 1830s), during which Gillray, Rowlandson, Cruikshank, Heath, and Seymour were England's top cartoonists.

The earliest known cartoon-like woodcut printed on paper in North America was in a Puritan children's book first published in 1646. Titled simply "The Burning of Mr. John

The Tables Turned by James Gillray, 1797 commenting on an "invasion" of England by 1400 French convicts. The use of word balloons was wide spread in many parts of the world long before the Yellow Kid's parrot uttered a few words in 1896.

Following a wave of anti-Catholic violence, the Protestant D.C. Johnston drew a series of cartoons decrying Protestant fanaticism in his self-published Scraps #6, 1835, and also converted to Catholicism himself. This pair of Scraps #6 cartoons contrasts nuns caring for Protestant cholera victims against a mob burning a Catholic church in Charlestown, Mass. Rogers," it showed in flaming graphic detail what happens to those who stray from the flock and have to be burned at the stake. Wertham would have had a field day with that one as this was aimed directly at children!

Cartoon broadsheets and other single panel images, often using word balloons, appeared from Pre-Revolution days through the end of the 19th Century. The earliest known cartoon published by someone calling himself an "American" is generally credited as the Benjamin Franklin designed "Heaven Helps Only Those Who Help Themselves," which first appeared in his periodical Plain Truth in 1747.

The most popularly remembered 18th-Century American cartoons are likely Franklin's "Join or Die" in 1754, representing the American Colonies as severed snake parts, and "The Bloody Massacre Perpetrated in King Street" - Paul Revere's 1770 depiction of the Boston Massacre, whose design he likely pirated from the earlier Henry Pelham broadsheet cartoon "The Fruits of Arbitrary Power."

Mr. Oldbuck has ever encountered such a variety of adventures as fell to the lot of Mr. Oldbuck, and if the author has not drawn a little on his fancy for his facts in this relation, the eighth wonder of the world is at last revealed in this surprising history. The reader has undoubtedly heard graphic narrations spoken of, and will be compelled to acknowledge that this work comes entirely under that description, for a more exclusively as well as eloquently graphic production it was never any body's lot to see. In a word it is not a "story and pretends to match" as Jack Downing says, but a story told entirely with the graver; being a series of over two hundred engravings of the most northmoving description. Their absurdity and grotesque wit—their depiction of the most ridiculous impossibilities challenge comparison.

The wildest fancy of the grotesque school could not conceive a series of adventures more laughably absurd than are here presented; and we can imagine no publication better devised to amuse children of all growths than Obadiah Oldbuck. Nor are the designs wanting in excellent keeping, and a whimsical regard for the rules of drawing. The cartoons are never departed from arbitrarily, or without an object; and we plead guilty to having lost more than one hour in mirth over this clever and bizarre performance. The price, like the other Jonathan extras, is only one shilling. Copies in any quantity are ready to answer orders—ten copies for one dollar.

of Hogarth. Barber began his cartooning career in 1819, age 21, engraving on wood. He worked on a multitude of varied art chores for books. As late as 1870 he was issuing Barber's Temperance Tracts which built upon his 1826 original plus four panels showing forward positive motion in living without alcohol.

The earliest-known American whose fame was based solely on his cartoons was David Claypool Johnston (1798-1865). Johnston provided illustrations for various almanacs, books, and periodicals, including the masthead for Brother Jonathan. This same masthead appears on the top half of the cover of the Brother Jonathan edition of Obadiah Oldbuck. Most notable of Johnston's comics work was his nine-issue series Scraps, which he self-published from 1828 to 1849, and his one-shot album Outlines Illustrative of the Journal of F***** A*** K*****, which parodies passages from the Journal of Frances A. Kemble. Johnston was widely known in his day as "the American Cruikshank." His Scraps series was highly influenced by George Cruikshank's series Scraps and Sketches, which first appeared in 1827. Each issue of Johnston's Scraps consists of four large folio-sized pages, printed on one side, with 9 to 12 single-panel cartoons per page, and each page often organized around a theme.

In 1831 Peabody & Co, 233 Broadway, New York City published a collection by D.C. Johnston's friend, actor Henry J. Finn, titled simply Finn's Comic Sketch Book, running 12 pages with upwards of half a dozen single-panel cartoons per page. Peabody was in business from 1831-1843, also publishing Knickerbocker Magazine.

Johnston was also involved in the theater, and he began collaborating with Finn in 1825 on various projects, including the 1831 (American) Comic Annual, with Finn as editor and Johnston as artist, published by Richardson, Lord and Holbrook, Boston. It has an inscription dated Dec. 26, 1830 on the front end-paper on one of the known copies which has almost 30 full-page copper engravings and woodcuts Johnston designed. Their collaborations ended when Finn died tragically in a steamboat accident on January 13, 1840.

The next step forward in the development of comics in America occurred when the weekly humor periodical Brother Jonathan published a parallel "Extra" series which reprinted mainly prose European novels. For example their eighth "extra" was the first American printing of a Charles Dickens novel. Becoming adventurous, the editors chose

THE ADVENTURES OF OBADIAH OLD-BUCK.—A Book of Pictures, which set forth, in a laughable manner, the Curious, Comical, Cunning, Extraordinary, Extravagant, Funny, Farcical, Lively, Pathetic, Perplexing, Quizzical, and Wonderful Incidents which attended the Courtship and Marriage of that unfortunate and perplexed old gentleman—showing likewise how he attempted to commit suicide on five different occasions, and each time was saved by "invidious fate." The story of Mr. Oldbuck's Love, as set forth by these pictures, is one of the most admirable satires and caricatures of a lovesick old bachelor that can be imagined. It is full of genuine, original, sparkling wit—nothing old or borrowed. It will amuse the most refined person, and cannot fail to please everybody. This book comprises 80 pages of pictures, well printed on fine hot-pressed paper. It is one of the cheapest pictorial works ever published. We send it free of postage for 25 cents per copy.

A DAY'S SPORT—Or, Hunting Adventures of S. Winks Wattle, a shop-keeper, Thomas Titt, Esq., a "legitimate," and Major Nicholas Noggin, a jolly good fellow generally. This story is told by Pictures, and is really a witty and amusing book—the drawings by Henry L. Stevens of Philadelphia. It will make you laugh out loud to look over this book. It is handsomely printed, and put up in an illustrated cover, suitable for the centre table. We send it free of postage for 12½ cents per copy.

B. H. Day's Brother Jonathan Cheap Book Establishment 1855 catalog with 32-panel comic strip "Peter Piper in Bengal" by John Tenniel (later Alice of Wonderland fame) with two comic books for sale on the above page: Obadiah Oldbuck by Töpffer and A Day's Sport by Henry L. Stevens of Philadelphia, a scarce newly-rediscovered original American comic book.

Rodolphe Töpffer's graphic novel, The Adventures of Mr. Obadiah Oldbuck for Extra, No. IX, reformatting it from its original small oblong strip shape to the side-stitched magazine shape in which the earlier Extras were published. This had the inadvertent prophetic effect of making this edition (alone) of Obadiah Oldbuck resemble a modern comic book. The arrival of this comic book on the shores of the New World would directly inspire a wave of American imitators, as happened earlier in European nations where Töpffer's comics had appeared. [This first Wilson printing of Oldbuck from 1842 was reprinted in same-size limited edition facsimile by the Naples Comicon in 2003.]

A translation by Leonardo De Sá of Töpffer's original draft is at leonardodesa.interdinamica.net/comics/lds/.

According to The New York Times (Sept. 3, 1904), the first American comic book was issued as a supplement to Brother Jonathan (New York, Sept. 14, 1842). Even so, by the beginning of the 20th century, this comics pioneer was largely forgotten in the New World. It is high time Töpffer received credit long overdue as the person who invented the modern comic strip, laying previously long-held myths to rest.

Töpffer (1799-1846) was a playwright, novelist, artist, and teacher from Geneva, Switzerland, who in 1827 had begun producing what he called "picture novels," sharing them with his friends and students. His earliest editions were published by him privately in Geneva via lithography on transfer paper as they use the word "autographie" in their imprints. The earliest printers were J. Freydis, Frutiger (1830s) and Schmidt (1840s). These first sequential comic books, scripted in Töpffer's native French language, found their way to Paris & became an instant hit.

According to Gombrich in Art and Illusion (1960), "Töpffer recognized that he could rely on the reader to supplement from their own lives what was omitted between the panels. This is crucial in the development of the sequential comic strip."

The demand for his comic books soon outstripped the supply, and pirated editions, redrawn by others, were created by Parisian publisher Aubert to capitalize on this. In a world where international copyright conventions did not exist, this was perfectly legal, if morally questionable. London publisher Tilt & Bogue struck a deal with George Cruikshank, resulting in the 1841 English version of Aubert's piracy of Les Amours de M. Vieux Bois.

This English translation was co-financed by George Cruikshank himself, and sported a new cover page by George's brother Robert, based on a montage of Töpffer's scenes. Confirmation came when George Cruikshank's personal copy surfaced in auction recently with the inscription "Copied from a French book by my Brother Robert" above the title page with the same scene. A still-unknown scenario led to America's Wilson and Company reprinting this translation.

Tilt & Bogue followed up their success by translating into English two additional stories of Töpffer's seven published graphic novels: Beau Ogleby, circa 1843 (originally Histoire de M. Jabot), and Bachelor Butterfly two years later (from Histoire de M. Cryptogame). David Bogue also published picture-story strip books by John Leighton using the pseudonym Luke Limner. He wrote and drew beautiful looking comic books titled London Out of Town or The Adventures of the Browns At The Seaside; Comic Art-Manufactures; and The Ancient Story of the Old Dame and Her Pig starting in 1847, but none of these seem to have had American editions discovered to date. They follow a definite Töpffer influence. This growing body of comic book production was made easier by the spreading understanding of transfer paper lithography, otherwise the panels would have to be drawn and lettered mirror reverse. Gombrich referred to Töpffer's comic books as "the innocent ancestors of today's manufactured dreams...everywhere in these countless episodes of almost surrealist inconsequence we find a mastery of physiognomic characterization which sets the standard for such influential humorous draftsman in the 19th century as Wilhelm Busch in Germany."

A Register of The New York City Book Trades 1821-

1842 by Sidney F. & Elizabeth Stege Huttner (The Bibliographical Society of America, NYC, 1993) mentions Benjamin H. Day bought into Brother Jonathan in this year, becoming at some point some sort of equal partner with owner J. Gregg Wilson of Wilson & Company, who had been publishing since 1839. The Register lists them both at the address of 162 Nassau Street, and mentions them both as publishers with the same address as Brother Jonathan. Other historical artifacts state he eventually became sole-owner and publisher. Exactly when this happened remains open for debate.

This is the same Benjamin H. Day who in 1833 started the first successful penny newspaper, The (New York) Sun, transforming it in four short years into the largest circulation daily in the world, at the time. He sold out his ownership to his brother-in-law in that newspaper during the financial "panic" of 1837, a mistake he regretted his entire life. He re-emerged heavily involved in Brother Jonathan definitely by 1840 and as a partner by 1841. Brother Jonathan was right next door to Tamany Hall. (See the 2002 movie Gangs of New York to visualize the period atmosphere and their customer base.) According to The Brothers Harper by Eugene Exmen (Harper & Row, 1965), on page 125, "... Brother Jonathan... offered in its weekly edition and also in special supplements very cheap reprints of English novels. In effect, it began a price-cutting war against the older established 'pirates' among the book publishers..." This sounds perfect for Day to sink his teeth into and redeem himself.

With his own words as documented proof, along with the previous reference to them both listed in the New York City directories as working and living at the same address beginning in 1841, Benjamin H. Day and J. Gregg Wilson became the earliest-known comic book publishers in America. They were printers first, then became publishers who joined forces, but the exact relationship between these individuals is still dimly known. What we do know is that Wilson & Company picked up on Bachelor Butterfly in the States in 1846. In 1849, Wilson & Company reformatted Obadiah Oldbuck back into its original British shape using lithography, dropping a handful of comic panels and altering the text to hide these

Back in Europe, perhaps inspired by his involvement with Töpffer's Obadiah Oldbuck, George Cruikshank soon created several sequential comic books of his own. These too found their way to America. The Bachelor's Own Book, published first in Britain in 1844, became the second known U.S. published sequential comic book when reprinted by Burgess, Stringer & Company the following year. Next was Cruikshank's masterpiece The Bottle, the Hogarthian-style tale of a man whose addiction to alcohol brings himself and his family to ruin. After debuting in London in 1847, it was reprinted the same year in a British-American co-publication between David Bogue and Americans Wiley and Putnam. Both printings were in huge folio form, available in either black & white or professionally hand-tinted versions. In 1848, the story saw American print again, this time in smaller form, placed at the front of the otherwise prose volume Temperance Tales; Or, Six Nights with the Washingtonians. It continued to be reprinted by a variety of publishers into the early 20th Century. The Bottle was popular in Revival and Temperance circles, made more so by its use in lectures, where the story was reproduced onto painted glass slides then projected for audiences by a magic lantern. The Drunkard's Children, Cruikshank's sequel to The Bottle, was issued July 1, 1848 as a British-American-Australian co-publishing venture, but was less successful, and had not nearly as many reprints.

The most clearly sequential, as well as fun, of George Cruikshank's comic books was The Tooth-Ache, first issued in London in 1849. It was reprinted in the America later that same year by Philadelphia map maker J.L. Smith. An additional concurrent version was also issued from Boston.

When closed, this booklet appears an unassuming 5-1/4 inches tall by 3-1/4 inches wide. Its striking feature is that the book folds open accordion style, stretching the entire 43-panel story along one single strip of paper, which when fully extended is seven feet, three inches long! The Tooth-Ache was issued in both black & white and professionally hand-colored editions. Abridged editions of the story, printed in black & white and with a "normal" page-turning rather than fold-out presentation, appeared inside promotional giveaway comics issued by American companies in the 1880s.

Between Töpffer and Cruikshank, 1842-1849 had seen six sequential European comic books reprinted in the U.S., not to mention additional comics imported directly without American reproduction. At that decade's end, this combined influence met with a national craze screaming for satirization - California's Gold Rush. The result was the earliest known American created sequential comic book.

Journey to the Gold Diggins by Jeremiah Saddlebags, by brothers James and Donald Read, was published in 1849, first in New York City by Stringer & Townsend, then soon after re-published in Cincinnati, Ohio, by U.P. James. This Töpffer-influenced comic book chronicles the adventures of its hero Jeremiah Saddlebags in his get-rich-quick quest for gold in California and is highly sought by collectors of Western Americana. Interestingly, the back cover of the Stringer & Townsend edition carries an advertisement for Rose and Gertrude-a Genevieve Story, one of Rodolphe Töpffer's non-comics prose novels. Stringer was one of the 1845 participants in the American publication of The Bachelor's Own Book. One might speculate that his earlier involvement with Cruikshank's comic could have made Stringer more receptive to the Read brothers' Jeremiah Saddlebags.

Still other contemporary Gold Rush comics appeared. The Adventures of Mr. Tom Plump (a fat man who nearly starves to death in his failed attempt at California Gold riches) saw print in 1850. The Adventures of Jeremiah Old-pot was serialized across all twelve monthly issues of Yankee Notions in 1852. Gold Rush cartoons are found in the 1849 edition of David Claypool Johnston's Scraps, in comic almanacs, and in Currier & Ives broad-sheets.

The circa 1850-51 booklet The Clown, Or The Banquet of Wit, includes a 13-page comic story "Moses Keyser the Bowery Bully's Trip to the California Gold Mines," reprinted from Elton's Californian Comic All-My-Nack for 1850. The Clown is also notable as the earliest known anthology of sequential comics, with the bonus that each multi-panel story is by a different artist. Many of the artists are as yet unidentified, and how much of it is original American material versus that reprinted from Europe is presently unknown. But verified are cartoons by George Cruikshank, Elton (American), the Read brothers, Grandville (French), and Richard Doyle (British). The Doyle contribution reprints the comics story "Brown, Jones and Robinson and How They Went to a Ball," which originally saw print in the August 24, 1850 issue of Punch. This is the first known American appearance of these Doyle characters, and was almost certainly pirated.

Richard Doyle's The Foreign Tour of Messrs. Brown, Jones, and Robinson is basically a travelogue in illustrated form, told via humorous episodes, part sequential cartoon sequences, and part snapshots of moments jumping forward in time. This halfway sequential format was ideal for most 19th Century cartoonists, who, with rare exception, had not quite grasped how to maintain a single sequential story for much longer than two dozen successive panels. Doyle had simplified Töpffer's formula in a manner most artists could attempt to emulate. Episodes of "Brown, Jones, and Robinson" originally appeared in Punch in 1850, until a dispute between the Roman Catholic Doyle and Punch's editors over an anti-Papal joke ended with Doyle quitting in particular because of a cartoon by John Tenniel. Doyle redrew and expanded the story into a single album, first seeing print in 1854 from British publisher Bradbury & Evans.

New York publisher D. Appleton brought the album to America, where he reprinted it in 1860, 1871, and 1877.

The Adventures of Tom Plump story page 5, Huestis & Cozans, NYC c.1850-51 which also has similarities to Töpffer's and the Read Bros' comics.

Next, Dick & Fitzgerald (NY) pirated Doyle's story sometime in the early 1870s. Doyle's format from Foreign Tour was emulated again and again. Examples include: the 1857 Mr. Hardy Lee, His Yacht, by Charles Stedman; the 1860s to 1870s Carleton published Our Artist In... series, set in various Latin American countries; the Augustus Hoppin 1870s sketch novels On the Nile, Crossing the Atlantic, and Ups and Downs on Land and Water; and Life founder John Ames Mitchell's 1881 (pre-Life) The Summer School of Philosophy at Mt. Desert. D. Appleton, the official, authorized American publisher of Foreign Tour, even commissioned an American artist - Toby - to create a sequel comic album involving Doyle's characters visiting the U.S. and Canada, published in 1872 as The American Tour of Messrs Brown, Jones and Robinson. In terms of influencing the development of mid-19th Century American comics, Doyle's Foreign Tour ranks with the works of Töpffer, Cruikshank, and Busch.

Doyle additionally produced a second, earlier cartoon series for Punch, the popularity of which likewise exerted influence decades beyond its publication. In Manners and Customs of Ye Englyshe, Mr. Pips Hys Diary, gathered from Punch & reprinted in 1849, Doyle told his story using a deliberately primitive almost stick-figure art style, combined with the Hogarthian structure of large single panel cartoons leaping forward in time with each picture.

Manners and Customs of Ye Harvard Studente, which ran in the Harvard Lampoon, shows the clearest influence. The series by then student Francis Gilbert Attwood was collected in 1877 by Houghton Mifflin. Attwood followed it up with Manners and Customs of Ye Bostonians, again in the pages of the Harvard Lampoon, but it is unknown whether that series was ever reprinted in book form. Attwood later became one of the regular artists in Life.

The British humor periodical Punch additionally influenced American comics beyond Richard Doyle's series. Consisting of humorous text interspersed with (mostly) single panel cartoons, it began its weekly run in July 1841, and continued uninterrupted well into the 20th Century. A large subset of Punch's subscriber base was located in the U.S., to which thousands of copies were exported on an ongoing basis. The result was that when American humor periodicals emerged, they invariably imitated Punch's format and style.

The earliest known of these American imitators, Yankee Doodle, debuted on October 10, 1846, and lasted one year. Punch in Canada likewise appeared in the late 1840s, kicking off a smaller parallel comics evolution just north of the U.S. (The earliest known "illustrated" American humor periodical, The Humourist, was published monthly in Baltimore from January 1829 to at least December of that same year, sans input from Punch. This monthly contained but one cartoon per issue, albeit hand-colored.)

Collections reprinting cartoons from Punch saw print in the U.S., such as Merry Pictures by the Comic Hands, imported for the 1859 Christmas Season, plus various John Leech, George Du Maurier, and Phil May books which appeared from the 1850s through 1910s. Finally, many American illustrated newspapers and periodicals, humorous and non-humorous, carried reprints of Punch cartoons. Such inclusions often became a prelude to switching to original material by American artists, should that publication's cartoon section become popular. Such was the case with Harper's Monthly. In the early 1850s, near the rear of each issue, it began to carry a few pages of single panel cartoons reprinted from Punch. This evolved into reprinting sequential comic pages from the British periodical Town Talk, and then, starting December 1853, original sequential comics by American artist Frank Bellew.

Bellew (1828-1888) could be regarded as the father of American sequential comics. Born in India, educated in France and England, he emigrated to America in 1850. His earliest work shows an influence from Doyle, but he rapidly developed his own unique art style. Bellew's comics, both sequential and single panel, graced numerous periodicals from the 1850s through the 1870s.

In the year prior to his Harper's Monthly appearances, in The Lantern volume one, Bellew had presented the 18-panel story "Mr. Blobb in Search of a Physician," serialized across six weekly issues. This was followed soon after by the 16-panel, three issue story "Mr. Bulbear's Dream", which concluded with the main character awakened from his dream by falling out of bed, in the exact same manner as would Little Nemo five decades later.

According to a 1923 article on famous cartoonists written by Charles Dana Gibson, it was Bellew's conception of Uncle Sam which "became the popular figure emblematic of the United States" starting with The Lantern issue published March 13, 1852. This was in a cartoon titled "Collins and Cunard - Raising the Wind; Or Both Sides of the Story." Gibson went on, "Thomas Nast (later) added whiskers and put stars on the vest, retaining Bellew's hat, high collar, and striped trousers."

Frank Bellew's son, Frank Bellew Jr., also became a cartoonist of note, which has caused confusion amongst those trying to identify the work of 19th century cartoonists. Bellew Sr. often signed his work by placing his name or initials within a triangle, with Bellew Jr. most frequently signing his using the nickname "Chips."

The Extraordinary and Mirth-provoking Adventures by Sea & Land of Oscar Shanghai, inspired by Bachelor Butterfly, was issued around the same time circa 1853 by Garrett & Co., Publishers, No. 18 Ann Street, New Recently rediscovered USA printing of The Laughable Adventures of Messrs. Brown, Jones and Robinson by Richard Doyle published by Garrett, Dick & Fitzgerald, circa 1856.

The Great Republication Reform Party, 1855 has everybody talking with word balloons to John C. Fremont, first Republication Presidential hopeful, who is greeting new constituents: a black man, a Catholic church rep, a believer in Free Love, a communist, a woman's rights advocate, and a prohibitionist.

York. Oscar Shanghai has many misadventures including being swallowed by a whale, making a trip in a flying machine which flies to Africa, where he is shot out of a huge bow by a "Black Prince" for not marrying a local princess of color. After more adventures, he makes it back home.

Oscar Shanghai's first publisher was confirmed this year with the discovery of a very rare 36-page catalog circa 1855 of books, pamphlets and prints handled by B.H. Day, owner & publisher of Brother Jonathan since the mid-1840s. The catalog has a few crossover advertisement pages from an associate publisher, Garrett. This newly rediscovered treasure, which sold for $750 in late 2002 itself, contains a sequential strip of one panel per page over 32 of those pages titled "Peter Piper in Bengal," by John Tenniel, reprinted from four 1853 issues of Punch to entice the reader to page through the entire booklet. Peter Piper tried his hand hunting all different kinds of wild game with many misadventures.

Amongst the many varied type of "Cheap Books" for sale in this rare catalog are the comic books The Adventures of Obadiah Oldbuck, Bachelor Butterfly's Queer Love Adventures and Misfortunes and The Fortunes of Ferdinand Flipper plus the aforementioned Oscar Shanghai. All priced at "25¢ per copy, postage free, refunds paid out in stamps."

There is also an advertisement for a comic book we have never heard of before titled A Day's Sport - Or, Hunting Adventures of S. Winks Wattles, a Shopkeeper, Thomas Titt, a "legal gent," and Major Nicholas Noggin, a Jolly Good Fellow Generally by Henry L. Stevens of Philadelphia. As we go to press again this year, we know of no existing complete copies and hope one still exists.

This catalog trumpets the concept that Brother Jonathan was for sale at the 1851 London World's Fair. Owner Benjamin H. Day was perhaps better known as the founder of The New York Sun, the very first successful "penny" newspaper in America begun in 1833, as well as having bought Brother Jonathan from Wilson sometime after selling out his interest in The Sun. Exactly when seems to be a matter open for debate amongst present-day historians.

Garrett & Co. was also responsible for the circa 1855 publication of The Sad Tale of the Courtship of Chevalier Slyfox-Wikof, Showing His Heart-Rending Astounding & Most Wonderful Love

The Wonderful and Amusing Doings of Oscar Shanghai, first published circa 1855 by Garrett & Co.; pictured here is a later Dick & Fitzgerald 1870's edition.

Adventures with Fanny Elssler and Miss Gambol. This book parodied the very public relationship between the then-famous wealthy American aristocrat Henry Wikoff, and the even more famous European actress/dancer Fanny Elssler. It is dated thusly because Wikoff's memoir is pictured in the comic book.

It appears circa 1855-56 Garrett & Co. formed a brief two-year partnership with Dick & Fitzgerald, becoming Garrett, Dick & Fitzgerald, while continuing to operate out of the same 18 Ann Street address in New York. During this time, they reprinted Richard Doyle's British published graphic novel The Foreign Tour of Messrs. Brown, Jones, and Robinson, reformatting it into the same oblong shape as Garrett's two prior comic books (which in turn were formatted in imitation of Töpffer's albums).

In 1858, Garrett appears to have dropped out, leaving Dick & Fitzgerald alone with the former's book stock, his place of business, and most importantly, the printing plates for his comic books. The Civil War was about to start, and for slightly more than a decade Dick & Fitzgerald steered away from reprinting his comic books. But in the 1870s they resumed publication - not only of the three albums published by Garrett, but also of Obadiah Oldbuck and Bachelor Butterfly from Wilson & Company, and Ferdinand Flipper from Brother Jonathan - all of them also making use of the original printing plates. The inclusion of books from Brother Jonathan, Wilson & Company, and Garrett & Co. all within the same promotional Peter Piper catalog from B.H. Day suggests (though not yet proven) that all these companies may have been part of Day's publishing empire, and that Dick &

Fitzgerald became the inheritor/acquirer of all of it. Dick & Fitzgerald became simply Fitzgerald Publishing in 1889, and are believed to have dropped out of the comic book business. Dick & Fitzgerald also reprinted in the 1870s the earlier William T. Peter published Ichabod Academicus (how that title might have connected, if at all, with B.H. Day's business remains unclear). We can now say, though, that an evolving group of a handful of publishers was responsible, over a span of 46 years, beginning with the very first graphic novel published in America in 1842, for keeping in print in America a cluster of slightly over half a dozen graphic novels.

While Bellew stood out for his sequential comics, Thomas Nast (1840-1902) brought a new style to American political cartoons, of which he is regarded the father. Even though he created several sequential strips early in his career, Nast made his name in the pages of the national news periodical Harper's Weekly, whose staff he joined a year into the Civil War. As Nast grew in prominence & success, American cartoonists increasingly emulated him. U.S. humor publications evolved towards an amalgamation of Nast and Punch, rather than sheer imitation of the latter.

While the northern Vanity Fair (December 31, 1859 - July 4, 1863) and the Confederate Southern Punch (August 15, 1863 - September, 1864) were both modeled after Punch, other Civil War era humor periodicals such as J.C.

Haney's Comic Monthly and Frank Leslie's Budget of Fun were clearly absorbing lessons from Nast. These last two were issued in the same large folio size as Harper's Weekly, with a large front page cartoon, a larger double-page cartoon centerfold, and still more cartoons located on the back cover - a format approaching what eventually emerged in what Puck began doing.

After the War, with Nast's style of cartoons more entrenched in American readers' minds, efforts to launch Punch-like American periodicals floundered quickly. Mrs. Grundy, ironically most famous for its cover design by Nast, died after a mere twelve issues (running July 8 to September 23, 1865). Punchinello (April 2 to December 24, 1870) struggled nine months before its backers gave up. Punchinello had been financed by Tammany Hall politicians Tweed and Sweeney, as counter-propaganda against Nast's ongoing assault upon their corruption. They attempted to buy and threaten Nast into silence, to no avail.

American comics were also being pulled away from their initial Anglo-Franco imitation by the infusion of a third major source of European influence. Numerous European humor periodicals besides Punch found significant subscriber bases in America. The large German immigrant population imported their favorite humor periodicals into the U.S., including the popular Fliegende Blätter ("Flying Leaves") and Münchener Bilderbogen. As high in quality as these were, one German comic artist in particular excelled beyond the rest, his stories breaking out and crossing over into English language translations, the demand for which resulted in numerous printings. This artist, of course, was Heinrich Christian Wilhelm Busch (1832-1908).

Busch's work appeared in English in the 1860s in both British and American periodicals, often uncredited. For example, four of Busch's strips appeared in English in the pages of Merryman's Monthly in 1864, while in 1879 his graphic story "Fipps der Affe" was serialized across a 10-issue run of Puck as "Troddledums the Simian." The earliest known English language appearance of Busch in book form was The Flying Dutchman, or The Wrath of Herr von Stoppelnoze, in 1862, from New York publisher Carleton. Carleton not only pirated Busch's strip, but went so far as to credit the story to American poet John G. Saxe, with Busch's cartoons mere illustrations accompanying Saxe's prose!

The next known English language Busch book was A Bushel of Merry Thoughts, an 1868 London-published anthology collecting various Busch strips. Some of these same stories later appeared in the U.S.-published The Mischief Book (1880), newly translated and with a few more Busch tales added. One of these additions was "Hans Hucklebein." A tale of a mischievous pet raven who in the end gets drunk and accidentally hangs himself, it became, at least in the States, Busch's 2nd most popular sequential comic story. The unrepentant bird was promoted to title character in two later collections: Jack Huckaback, the Scapegrace Raven, circa 1888, and the rarer Hookeybeak the Raven and Other Tales in 1878. There were also at least 3 trade card series in the 1870s & 1880s which reprinted the ending sequence, as Fritz Spindle-Shanks-The Raven Black.

The most popular Busch tale, though, was easily Max und Moritz, which in the U.S. saw print as Max and Maurice - A Juvenile History in Seven Tricks. Published in Boston in 1871, this English language version saw at minimum 60 reprintings by the century's end, plus countless more printings later. A separate British translation debuted in 1874, under the title Max & Mortiz. It is well known that the later Rudolph Dirks comic strip series, Katzenjammer Kids beginning in late 1897 was based on Max und Moritz.

According to documents found by Alfredo Castelli, Katzenjammer Kids was not yet another rip-off of Busch. Rather, William R. Hearst may have licensed the characters. Hearst's paper was published in different language editions for New York City's immigrant communities. In the German edition, the strip was published under its original name, Max und Moritz. Numerous other translations of Busch were published in America - too many to name in this article. Several can be found in the Victorian Age Index. There were many prominent talented artists in the incredibly scarce, still legendary (but now largely forgotten but to a few) 1870s humor periodicals, Wild Oats and Schnederreddeng, the German language companion publication to Wild Oats. In terms of the quality of their cartoons and comics, these two New York City publications were in

Published by Winchell & Small and distributed through the New York News Company, Schnederreddeng and Wild Oats carried a crossroads of old and next generation comic artists, from the more established W. M. Avery, Thomas Francis "Frank" Beard, Frank Henry Temple Bellew, E.S. Bisbee, Michael Angelo Woolf, and Thomas Worth (remembered more these days for his Currier & Ives cartoon sheets), and up-and-comers such as Livingston Hopkins, Frederick Burr Opper, Palmer Cox and Wales.

Wild Oats began carrying sequential comic strips as early as #26, dated March 14, 1872, with the Livingston Hopkins strip pictured below (we do not know anything yet about the first 25 issues). The very next issue has a Worth double-page spread titled "The Political Humpty Dumpty... Horace Greeley" told in 11 panels plus the sequential fictional "Graphic Account of the Assassination of Queen Victoria" and "Love As the Angels Love." "The Doings of the Japanese Embassy At Washington" related in 12 panels by W. M. Avery follows up in #28 April 11, 1872. An unknown hand drew "The Physiology of Moving" in 6 panels in #30. Hopkins returns with a beautiful intense 28-panel double-page spread in #31 May 23. Hopkins and Worth alternated for many issues with sequential comic strips on baseball, horse racing and other pertinent subjects of the day. In #45 December 5, 1872, E.S. Bisbee contributed his first sequential in 17 panels and Worth showed up in "Humor & Pathos of a New England Thanksgiving" in 11 panels. Issue 47 expands the concept with a 12-panel job by Bisbee, 20-panel effort on one page by Hopkins and a 3-panel effort by Worth. And on it goes through 1873 as well - comic strip after comic strip. Issue 58 June 5, 1873, includes a particularly humorous 19-panel double-pager drawn by someone still unknown titled "The Terrible Adventures of Messrs. Buster & Stumps, with the Indians" which begins with two white men heading out west in an effort to exterminate Indians - and their misadventures of not quite getting the job done. It reads across both pages in a unique evolution similar to Popeye #2052 (found in the Platinum listings). Issue 65 contains two 9-panel Thomas Worth strips "Only a Mad Dog Scare - Another Lesson For Nervous People" and "Only a Cholera Scare - Something For Nervous People to Read and Ponder Over." Issue 66 Sept 18, 1873, has the very funny Hopkins 12-panel strip as well as two more 10-panel Worth strips on the delights of Hunting and Fishing plus one by Hopkins titled "The Adventures of Mr Old Party with Jersey Mosquitoes" in 12-panels. All told, four comic strips in this issue. They obviously liked what they were doing, judging from the exuberance of the work.

The next issue has Worth's 9-panel report on "The Adventures of Young Muttonhead Among the Free

Wild Oats #26, 14 March 1872 Livingston Hopkins sequential comic strip. Hopkins later moved to Australia and became its premiere political cartoonist.

Lovers" which was all about the "free sex" convention recently held in Chicago. Issue 68 has a 9-panel "An Adventure With a New Jersey Mosquito" which smacks of Winsor McCay in subject and even art style. Maybe McCay was inspired by this for his later animated cartoon as well as earlier Rarebit Fiend. We'll never know for sure. On through 1875, Wild Oats presented sequential comic strips issue after issue. With #148, October 27, 1875, Fredrick Oppen has his very first Wild Oats cover, centering on inflation then rampant in the USA. He does covers through at least #161 before a short break and then comes right back with many more. By #158 January 5, 1876, Palmer Cox - some five years before inventing The Brownies - began a wonderful series of 24-panel double page spread comic strips, with a couple sample titles being "The Adventures of Mr & Mrs Sprowl And Their Christmas Turkey-A Crashing Chasing Tearful Tragedy But Happily Ending Well" and "Bachelor Broke & Widow Snuggli: A Pictorial Account of Their Sleigh Ride & What Became of It."

Even though he had been contributing many covers and interior single panel jobs to Wild Oats for years, by-then elderly Frank Bellew Sr. does not show up with his first comic strip until $190, August 16, 1876, with a 9-panel effort he titled, "Rodger's Patent Mosquito Armour." By this time the USA's "Father of the sequential comic strip" had inspired many other cartoonists to try their hand telling stories with words & pictures. Bellew Sr. had been making sequential comic strips for over a quarter century.

The seemingly disparate influences of Thomas Nast and German comics came together in Austrian immigrant Joseph Keppler (1838-1894). Like many cartoonists in America, Keppler's desire was to rival Nast. Unlike most, he possessed the talent and drive to accomplish it. Keppler first settled in St.

Louis, Missouri, where he took his first stab at starting a comic weekly, the German language Die Vehme (Aug 28, 1869 - Aug. 20, 1870). Seven months later, still in St. Louis, he tried again, launching another German language humor periodical, titled Puck. This German Puck began on March 18, 1871, joined by an English language version one year later, but both soon folded and ended on Aug. 24, 1872.

Keppler moved to New York City, doing cartoons primarily for Frank Leslie publications (including a one-shot, English language publication - Centennial Fun - which capitalized on the July, 1876 Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia). Four years after the first Puck died, Keppler was ready to try again. He re-launched the German language edition of Puck in New York City on September 27, 1876.

It was a Presidential Election year, with Republican candidate Hayes versus the Democrat Tilden. Keppler lucked out with material to satirize, when the election ended so close that each candidate needed only the electoral college votes of a few states in question - most notably Florida and Louisiana - and both parties were claiming to have won. Keppler depicted the two candidates as two trains on the same track, steaming towards each other, with the stability of the nation in the balance. After months of dispute, the victory was handed to the loser of the popular vote, the Republican Hayes. (Much later, scholars showed that Tilden, in truth, was the electoral as well as popular winner.)

ambitiously, every week, and set Puck apart from anything else on American stands. The parallel English language edition of Puck was launched six months after the German version, on March 14, 1877. This English edition of Puck was a money-loser for several years, kept afloat by the German edition's profits and the determination of the English edition's literary editor, H.C. Bunner, not to give up. Puck became the new model for American humor publications. Keppler brought in other artists over time, most notably Oppen, Zim and Howarth, and added black & white sequential comics and cartoons in the pages between the color front cover, back cover, and centerspread.

Puck was the model which William Randolph Hearst followed in 1895, adding a color comics section to his Sunday newspaper. He basically wanted to offer a "free" Puck-like supplement within his New York Journal. Further, Puck artist F.M. Howarth pointed the direction of those future newspaper comics pages, by creating full page sequential color comic strips on most Puck back covers starting in the early 1890s.

With the first issue dated October 29, 1881, Puck's chief rival, Judge, was born. Founded by Puck artist James A. Wales, Judge made several forays into Puck's talent pool over the years. Their best capture was Eugene Zimmerman (known popularly as "Zim"), who became for Judge the star artist that Frederick Burr Oppen was for Puck.

When Wales broke away to form Judge, it was from amongst his pre-Puck associates at the by-then defunct Wild Oats that he first recruited. One can speculate that having been a star artist in these earlier magazines may have driven Wales' desire to have more control of his cartoons rather than remain subordinate to Keppler, leading to Wales' creation of Judge.

Judge struggled financially for several years, and likely would have ceased publication if not for the Presidential Election of 1884, in which Republicans blamed Keppler and Puck for their loss.

Puck #1, March 14, 1877, NYC, was very important; but Wild Oats had been running sequential comic strips regularly for over six years.

By 1884 Frank Beard was the editor.

Republican backers had attempted to create a Puck rival titled Jingo in the last few months of that election, but it lacked the creative talent of Puck & Judge, and its backers let it die once the election results were known. Soon after, Republican backers bought and poured money into

Judge, hoping to make the until-then politically neutral Judge their counterweight against Keppler's Puck. By this time, most of the ex-Wild Oats artists, save Wales, had moved elsewhere.

Numerous other Puck imitators emerged in the 1880s but quickly died. Note should be made of the Puck-like San Francisco Wasp, which debuted October 14, 1876 (too early for it to have been a mere Puck knockoff), and the black & white Texas Siftings, which debuted on May 9, 1881. Though neither approached Puck or Judge in circulation, both cut their own paths, managing to survive as cartoon humor magazines into the 1890s.

Published basically concurrent to Wild Oats during much of the latter's run was the New York City newspaper The Daily Graphic (March 4, 1873 to Sept 23, 1889), which has the claim to being the first regularly illustrated daily newspaper in the world. It was published every day except Sundays and holidays, with the vast majority of its illustrations being straight depictions of news events. (Not until the late 1890s could photographs be reproduced inexpensively enough for inclusion in mass publications, and so the norm was to send out photographers to record images of newsworthy events, but then have artists render those images into drawn engravings, which then were reproduced in newspapers.)

With so many artists needed for illustrated publications, the result was that virtually all 19th century periodicals which regularly featured illustrations, even if their primary aim was to provide realistic pictures, at some point in their runs included both single-panel cartoons, and sequential comics. At a publication rate of six days per week, unbroken over a 15-year run, The Daily Graphic had more than the usual hunger for illustrated material to fill its pages with.

Thus, The Daily Graphic became a rotating door for many circa 1870s and 1880s American cartoonists, usually those in the early parts of their careers

(making one suspect that it was possibly not the best paying gig in town). Within its pages, like needles to be found in the haystack of its more than 4800 issues, is early work by Livingston Hopkins (who mysteriously ap-pears, vanishes, reappears, etc., for months to whole years at a time, right up to his 1884 departure to Australia), pre-Life work by Kemble, pre-Harper's appearances by A.B. Frost and W.A. Rogers, pre-Puck C.J. Taylor, Hamilton, and Gillam. Old hats, too, appear at times, such as Michael Woolf and Frank Bellew, Sr. Oppen appears also.

Further, The Daily Graphic regularly plundered British periodicals for its back and sometimes center pages, not only perpetrating the usual swipes of single panel Punch cartoons, but also stealing sequential strips from Punch's two main rival publications, Judy and Fun. This included occasionally reprinting (albeit at random) episodes of continuing British strips "The British Workman" by James Sullivan, and "McNab of that ilk" by James Brown. Though, strangely enough, no episodes of Marie Duval's Ally Sloper, despite the fact that The Daily Graphic did reprint some of Duval's non-"Sloper" strips ("Ally Sloper" was a continuing sequential strip character who debuted in 1867, lasting into the 1920s, and had very successful solo British book collections of his strips published as early as 1873 - more than two decades prior to Yellow Kid in McFadden's Flats).

Livingston Hopkins, whose art style changed like a chameleon from one year to the next, exhibited a definite Duval influence in his work within a year following the publication of the first Ally Sloper collection. Given that Hopkins worked for The Daily Graphic during the same period in which The Daily Graphic was stealing cartoons from Sloper's home publication, Judy, this can hardly be considered coincidental. By the time Hopkins was about to emigrate to Australia to become lead cartoonist for the Melbourne Punch, his art style was imitating Kemble, who was working at The Daily Graphic just prior to his Life covers.

Another highly desirable American graphic novel, sought especially by collectors of Western lore, is Quiddities of an Alaskan Trip by William H. Bell which debuted in 1873. Bell was Timothy O'Sullivan's assistant photographer on the 1871-74 expeditions of Lt.

The story panels are laid out within ornate frames like those of stereograph cards, such as Bell was involved in creating on the expedition. It involves a parody of a trip from Washington, D.C. to survey the newly purchased territory of Alaska, which at the time was derisively referred to as "Seward's Folly." Bell

Quiddities in Portland, Oregon in 1873, a date which would have required that he drew it during the time he was on just such an expedition.

Life debuted on January 4, 1883, founded by J.A. Mitchell, and modeled after the Harvard Lampoon. It quickly rose to become the third main pillar of late 1800s American humor periodicals. Smaller in size, black & white, and priced the same as Puck and Judge, it nevertheless succeeded by appealing to the more genteel, romantic and apolitical notions of the white upper class. Its earliest artists included Kemble and Palmer Cox, but its foremost artist would be Charles Dana Gibson, becoming world renowned as the hand behind the graceful, aristocratic "Gibson Girls."

Sequence

Unlike Judge, which had to change format to survive in the next century, and Puck, which faded to a shadow of its former self, Life transitioned into the 20th century virtually unaltered, and thrived. By the mid-1880s, with Puck, Judge, and Life all solidly in place, American comics and cartoon humor had become very much their own, no longer looking first at Europe to take their cues.

Also very American in character were the country's promotional comics, which flourished throughout the latter half of the 19th century, starting first with comic almanacs in the mid-1850s. These free almanacs, usually created by medicine and farm product com-their way back into these giveaway pamphlets. Initially their cartoons were done cheap, either poorly drawn or pirated from elsewhere, such as those found in the Hostetter's and Wright's almanac series. More elaborate promotional almanacs eventually did evolve, though, and amongst the best of these was Barker's Illustrated Almanac, first produced for the year 1878, and annually into the 1930s. Each Barker's Almanac contained ten to twelve full page cartoons, wonderful and bizarre in design, frequently racist, but also comically manic and crammed with details in a manner similar to Outcault's much later Yellow Kid pages. The cartoons in Barker's Almanac were so popular that in 1892,

The Barker, Moore, and Mein Medicine Company published their first edition of Barker's Komic Picture Souvenir, reprinting nearly 150 pages of cartoons from their almanacs.

This first Barker's Souvenir features a wraparound color cover depicting people headed towards the Columbian World's Fair Exposition, which was to be held in Chicago the next year. It is the earliest confirmed "premium" comic book, sent to customers who mailed in a box label and outside wrapper from two different Barker's products. The Souvenir album was Barker's most in-demand premium. It was reprinted as a thick unnumbered booklet three more times in the 1890s, with the contents reorganized each time. Later, between claims, pre-F.D.A. and F.C.C., were unabashedly wild, over-the-top, and blunt. Chewing tobacco and snuff saved romances, calmed crying babies, and made the sick well. Stove polish that propelled you to wealth and power. Corsets that brought you a husband. The objective, of course, in an era before TV or radio, was to make each comic handout so entertaining that customers would want to keep and read the advertisement again and again.

The more wonderful graphics and outrageous claims tended to come from tobacco companies, who were using comic books and strips to sell their products more than a century before cries

1901 and 1903, Barker's broke the album into three separate "Parts," each of which required still more box labels and wrappers to obtain. The 3-part series of reprint albums expanded to four parts circa 1906 or 1907. Both the 3 and 4-part album series had multiple printings.

The first promotional comics which did not double as almanacs began to appear in the 1870s. They included the aforementioned reprints of Cruikshank and Busch strips, reprints of strips lifted from American sources (A.B. Frost's strip "The Bull Calf" was a particular favorite), and original material placing the product being promoted as the focus of the story. These original short cartoon dramas were in many ways similar in storyline to those found in modern television advertisements, except that the clothing is Victorian, and the against "Joe Camel." The most elaborate of these were printed full color, and unfolded into a single long strip, just like Cruikshank's The Tooth-Ache from the 1840s, though usually limited to just the cover plus seven panels.

Examples are the Jackson Chewing Tobacco comics How Adolphus Slim-Jim Used Jackson's Best and Ye Veracious Chronicle of Gruff & Pompey, and Durham Smoking Tobacco's Home Made Happy - A Romance for Married Men. The artists of these comics are mostly unidentified, but their level of skill was equal to anything in Puck and Judge. The Home Made Happy comic, in fact, was produced for Durham by The Graphic Company -- the publisher of The Daily Graphic, the aforementioned 1870s illustrated newspaper which included cartoons.

In addition to the debut of Puck and the spread of non-almanac promotional comics, the 1870s saw a third major development. It was at this time that an unusually high number of full-length sequential comic book stories, or graphic novels, began to appear. A sort of mini-boom occurred in the U.S. following the 1840s appearances of Töpffer's and Cruikshank's comic books, but then largely died down for an approximate twenty year span. With the 1870s, graphic novels were back in even greater numbers.

A large part of this revival was brought about by New York City publisher Dick & Fitzgerald, infamous for their piracies after they evolved from Garrett and B.H. Day, who issued seven such comic books. These included Doyle's Foreign Tour, the reprints of the two Wilson and Company-printed Töpffer booklets and Oscar Shangai from Garrett retitled as The Wonderful And Amusing Doings By Sea And Land of Oscar Shanghai, Sad Tale of the Courtship of Chevalier Slyfox-Wikof; and the Yale-derived College Experiences of Ichabod Academicus. (Ichabod Academicus' original publication was in New Haven, CT in 1850, placing it right after Jeremiah Saddlebags).

"A Family Discord" - One of many F.M. Howarth Puck back covers, this one later reprinted in Pickings From Puck #18 Dec 1895.

Judge 1896 Eugene "ZIM" Zimmerman
"A Sagacious Animal" is but one of hundreds by Zim who went on to run an early cartoonist training school.

Other graphic novels also appeared during this period which have been mentioned earlier. The earliest known anthology devoted to collecting the comic strips of a single American artist was A.B. Frost's Stuff and Nonsense in 1884. The next known American collection came in 1888 - the very rare Frederick Burr Opper anthology, Puck's Oppor Book. Both proved popular, so more Frost and Opper collections followed, to be joined within a few years by reprints collecting the cartoons and strips of American artists Kemble, Zim, Keppler, Gibson, Mayer, Taylor, "Chips," Howarth, Woolf, etc.

Puck, Judge, and Texas Siftings all began monthly Library series - smaller 8-1/2" x 11" magazines, mostly black & white, which organized previously published material around one theme or one artist. For example, the first Puck's Library (July 1887) was titled "The National Game," and gathered beneath one cover Puck material poking fun at the game of baseball.

Life tended more towards hardcover collections, such as its annual ten-issue series The Good Things of Life (1884-1893), which included cartoons and strips by Palmer Cox, T.S. Sullivant, Hy Mayer, and others.

The Good Things of Life was published initially by the firm of White, Stokes, and Allen, but by the fourth book, the reprint series was published by Frederick A. Stokes alone. Stokes published a number of other cartoon books in the 1880s and 1890s, the majority of them reprint collections. The experience he gained at this time with these reprint albums placed Stokes in the perfect position to pick up the wealth of material about to be created for the comics supplements of William R. Hearst's newspapers, making Stokes the first major publisher of the coming Platinum Age.

In 1892, Charles Scribner's Sons published A. B. Frost's Bull Calf and Other Tales. It contains sequential comic strip art on quite a few pages as well as single panel cartoons. By 1898, Charles Scribner's Sons also issued Kemble's The Billy Goat and Other Comicalities as a 112-page hardcover, which also has sequential comic strips.

In the early 1890s, the slum children cartoons of artist Michael Woolf (many of which were reprinted in the 1899 collection titled Sketches of Lowly Life in a Great City) were popular. Truth magazine, which followed Puck's format of color front cover, back cover and centerspread cartoons, but in style was more akin to the aristocratic Life, was initially unable to secure Woolf's services, creating an opportunity for the young cartoonist Richard F. Outcault, who desired to break into one of the weekly comic periodicals.

It was in his Woolf-inspired slum children cartoons for Truth that Outcault's prototype of the Yellow Kid first emerged. The bald, sack-clothed youngster made four appearances in Truth, starting with #372 on June 2, 1894, prior to his newspaper debut.

During the rise of Yellow Kid's popularity, he appeared in American comic magazines in parodies drawn by others, with politicians, even Hearst and Pulitzer, dressed up as the Yellow Kid. Such cartoons are known to have appeared in

Time, One Minute by Hy Mayer, Truth, 1896

Judge, Life, and Vim plus various newspapers across the country. More about the Yellow Kid's importance can be found in the Platinum Age section of this book.

While comics definitely have their roots in Europe, and the earliest American comic books either reprinted or emulated those of Europe, the direction of influence was by no means one way. By at least the 1870s, American cartoons were being published and seen in the Old World, as evidenced by the arrest in Spain of the on-the-lamb corrupt Tammany Hall politician Boss Tweed by Spanish police who recognized Tweed from a Nast cartoon.

European piracy of American cartoons was just as lucrative as the American piracy of Europeans. In the 1880s and '90s, the comics of Zim, Chips Bellew, and Charles Dana Gibson all saw reprint in Europe. F.M. Howarth's domestic comedies from Puck were favorites in France. American Hy Mayer was commissioned to create original comics work for Black and White (Britain), Le Rire (France), and Fliegende Blätter. Michael Woolf's slum children cartoons saw print in the British periodical Pick-Me-Up, during the same years that top British artist Phil May's first published work debuted in that publication. May later became famous for his Woolf-inspired street children cartoons as well as his influence on the development of comics in Australia.

As the 19th Century ended, American comics were coming to the fore worldwide, soon to explode into a position of dominance with the Platinum Age revolution brought about by the emergence of the color comic supplement in America's newspapers and the arrival of Richard F. Outcault's Yellow Kid.

END NOTE: Victorian Era comics were issued in many relatively obscure formats compared to what most of us are used to today. The

Michael Angelo Woolf cartoon Truth-r in 99 Truths From Woolf. His many scenes from slum life in New York City was a major influence on Outcault's formulation of the Yellow Kid. Titled "Alone," caption reads Susy: "What's he cryin' for?" Nelly (in a whisper): "That dog was his chum."

Victorian Era section can only grow as there are many more heretofore undiscovered comics from the 1800s which have fallen off the radar of history. Some may wonder why some of the earlier items listed contain as of yet no prices. The reason is simple. These books are part of a relatively "new" market which is still establishing itself. High-grade copies are almost unheard of in almost all instances. Some books may truly have only a handful left in existence. We are sure there are some known to have been published which no (as of yet) known copies have survived the ravages of time and neglect. Next year expect another quantum leap in our ever-expanding knowledge of the fascinating earliest origins of the comics as they relate to North America. Your input in helping this section of the Guide grow is most welcome. Happy Hunting!

COLLECTOR'S NOTE: Some of books listed in this section were published well over a century before organized comics fandom began archiving and helping to preserve these fragile popular culture artifacts. Consequently, copies of most all of these comics almost never surface in Fine+ or better shape. Most are in the Poor to VG range. If you want to collect these only in high grade, your collection will be extremely small. Each year we are filling in the price blanks on more items. The past few years we have been more concerned with simply establishing what is known to exist. The prices given for Fair, Good and Fine categories are for strictly graded editions. If you need help grading your item, we refer you to the grading section in this book or contact the authors of this essay. Items marked rare we are trying to figure out how many copies might still be in existence. We welcome help.

NOTE: Barker's Almanacs were actually issued in November of the year preceding the year which appears on the almanac. For example, the 1878 dated almanac was issued November 1877. They were given away to retailers of Barker's farm animal medicinal products, to in turn be given away to customers. Each Barker's almanac contains 10 full page cartoons. These frequently included racist stereotypes of blacks. Each cartoon contained advertisements for Barker's products. It is unknown whether the cartoons appeared only in the almanacs, or if they also ran as newspaper ads or flyers. Originally issued with a metal hook attached in the upper right hand corner, which could be used to hang the almanac.

NOTE: By J.A. and D.F. Read. Earliest known sequential comic book by an American creator, directly inspired by Togitser's Obadiah Oldbuck and Bachelor Butterfly. The New York and Cincinnati editions were both published in 1849, one soon after the other. Antiquarian Book sources have traditionally cited that the Cincinnati edition preceded the New York, but without referencing their evidence. Conflicting with this, the Cincinnati edition lists the New York publishers' 1849 copyright, while the New York edition makes no reference to the Cincinnati publishers. Such would indicate that the New York edition was first. Both are very rare, and until resolved both will be regarded as published simultaneously. A New York copy with missing back cover, detached front cover, and G/VF interior sold for $2000 in 2000.

Contains two sequential comic booklets: THE ADVENTURES OF MR. TOM PLUMP, and OLD MOTHER MITTEN AND HER FUNNY KITTEN, plus five heavily illustrated children's booklets - The Pretty Primer, The Funny Book, The Picture Book, The Two Sisters, and Story Of The Little Drummer. Six of these - including the two comic books -- were reprinted in the 1960's by Americana Review as a set of individual booklets, and included in a folder collectively titled "Six Children's Books of the 1850's".

Seminal inspiration for William Randolph Hearst to acquire as a "new comic" (following the wild success of Outcault's Yellow Kid) to license M&M from Busch and hire Rudolph Dirks in late 1897 to create a New York American newspaper incarnation. In Hearst's English language newspapers it was called The Katzenjammer Kids and in his German language NYC newspaper it was titled Max & Moritz, Busch's original title. At least 50 other reprints versions are reputed to exist printed thru 1900. Translated from the 1865 German original. We are still sorting out the edition confusion.

Early 19th century books are often found rebound, with original cover and/or title page gone. To distinguish editions having no cover or title page: the British oblong editions (published by Tilt & Bogue) use Roman Numerals to number the pages. American oblong shaped editions use Arabic Numerals. British are printed on one side. This is the earliest known English language sequential comic book. Has a new title page with art by Robert Cruikshank.

NOTE: Art by Joseph Keppler, F. Oppen, F.M. Howarth, C.J. Taylor, W.A. Rogers. This was a separate, parallel run of Puck, published during the 1893 Chicago World's Fair from within the fairgrounds, and containing all new and different material than the regular weekly Puck. Smaller sized and priced the same, this originally sold poorly, and had not as wide distribution as Puck, and so consequently issues are much more rare than regular Puck issues from the same period. Not to be confused with the larger sized regular Puck issues from 1893 which sometimes also contained World's Fair related material, and sometimes had the words "World's Fair" appear on the cover. Can also be distinguished by the fact that Puck's issue numbering was in the 800's in 1893, while these issue number 1 through 28.

191-end contents to be indexed by next year

NOTE: There are no known loose issues. All issues are scarce. We present this index from the Library of Congress bound set. We would love to hear from any one who turns up loose copies. This scarce humor bi-weekly contains easily a couple hundred original first-time published sequential comic strips found in most issues plus innumerable single panel cartoons in every issue; distributed thru New York News Company, 8 Spruce St, NYC. Began as a monthly, at some point early on it became almost always bi-weekly (ie twice a month) till it died. Livingston Y. Hopkins, Thomas Worth, W.M. Avery, J.C. Howard, Frank Beard, Frank Bellow Sr & Jr, E.S. Bisbee, Michael Angelo Woolf, E. Sears, Paul Frenzeny, W.H. Shelton, J.A. Wales, Kappes, Wilhelm Busch, Fredrick Oppen and Palmer Cox are some of the cartoonists who created its pages. Most of these cartoonists were doing sequentials and most likely interacting with each other as cartoonists were wont to do. Some cartoons carry double by-lines proving they were jamming together. Currently there is just one bound almost complete run (missing v1-2 (Feb 1870-Mar 1872, 7-8 (Mar 1874-Dec 1874) known to exist to the authors located at The Library of Congress. Any help locating further issues would be immensely appreciated. Please contact the authors of the Victorian & Platinum sections: Robert Beerbohm and Richard Olson whose e-mail addresses are at the end of each history essay.

The American Comic Book: 1883-1938

A MULTITUDE OF VARIED FORMATS FIGHT IT OUT IN THE MARKETPLACE

by Robert L. Beerbohm and Richard D. Olson, PhD ©2005

(This article series was originally created by Robert L. Beerbohm and Richard D. Olson beginning in OCBPG #27 1997 and is revised annually as new information comes to light.)

The story of the success of the modern comic strip as we know it today is tied closely to the companies who sponsored them and bought licenses from the copyright holder for the purpose of advertising products. What mainly keeps the Platinum Age from being collected as much as later era comics is simply a general lack of awareness of these important historical books as well as the scarcity of many of these volumes, especially in any type of higher-grade condition. Many Platinum Age books are much rarer than so-called Golden Age comic books, yet despite this scarcity, Mutt & Jeff, Bringing Up Father, The Katzenjammer Kids, and many more were as popular, if not more so, than Superman and Batman when they were introduced. Recent research has come up with some more amazing rediscoveries. There is much that can be learned and applied to today's comics market by a simple historical examination of the medium's evolution over more than 160 years.

It should be noted that "ages" are applied to historical periods in the history of comics for convenience. In fact, ages typically overlap and there is no discrete beginning or ending for any given "age." This is the case with the Platinum Age, which clearly began with Palmer Cox's creation of The Brownies in 1883 even though it overlaps with the Victorian Age which ran through the end of the 19th Century. Cox introduced a qualitative change to the field, not an incremental quantitative change. Specifically he produced art and verse for children in children's magazines and then merchandised those characters. He published work for children not only in books but in magazines and newspapers, and he merchandised his creations to an extent that had never been done previously.

Palmer Cox was born in 1840 near Granby, Quebec. He journeyed to Oakland, California in 1863, and began publishing cartoon, prose and poems in the local press and media outlets such as The San Francisco Examiner wherein by 1867 it has been reported he also began creating sequential comic strips.

His first book, Squibs of California, was published in 1874. He subsequently moved to New York in 1875 and almost immediately began working for the magazine Wild Oats, of which more is written about in the preceding Victorian Age history introduction. He drew dozens of sequential comic strips for Wild Oats, a humor magazine so scarce no single copies have been offered on eBay yet in the past five years. And we're still diligently looking.

Soon thereafter he became a major contributor to the Scribner publications, including The St. Nicholas, an illustrated magazine for young folk. His first cartoon for them was "The Wasp And The Bee," published in the March 1879 cover-date issue. While it is now clear that Cox used elves and brownie-like characters in his art for several different magazines as early as 1877 in Harper's Young People magazine as well as using Brownies-type characters beginning in the Feb

1881 issue of Wide Awake, the first true appearance of the Brownies in their own story using that title, a combination of art and verse was February, 1883, in St. Nicholas. Palmer Cox's The Brownies were the first North American comics-type characters to be internationally merchandised. Even though Cox was continuously doing sequential comic strips in magazines like Wild Oats, he left the medium of comics when he hit paydirt with The Brownies. For over a quarter of a century, Cox deftly combined the popular advertising motifs of animals and fairies into a wonderful, whimsical world of society at its best and worst.

The Brownies' first book was issued in 1887, titled The Brownies: Their Book; many more followed. Cox also added a run of his hugely popular characters in Ladies Home Journal from October 1891 through February 1895, as well as a special for December 1910. With the 1892-93 World's Fair, the merchandising exploded with a host of products, including pianos, paper dolls and other figurines, chairs, stoves, puzzles, cough drops, coffee, soap, boots, candy, and many more. Brownies material was being produced in Europe as well as the United States of America.

Cox tried out The Brownies as a newspaper strip in the San Francisco Examiner during 1898, where he had begun his newspaper career over 30 years before, and then in the New York World in 1900. It was syndicated from 1903 through 1907. He seems to have retired from regularly drawing The Brownies with the January 1914 issue of St. Nicholas when he was 74. A wealthy man, he lived to the ripe old age of 84, spending his last decade in his home he affectionately called Brownie Castle, back in Granby, Quebec.

By the mid-1890s, while keeping careful track of quickly rising circulations of magazines with graphic humor such as Harper's, Puck, St. Nicholas, Judge, Life and Truth, New York based newspaper publishers began to recognize that illustrated humor would sell extra papers. Thus was born the Sunday "comic supplement." Most of the regular favorites were under contract with these magazines. However, there was an artist working for Truth who wasn't. Roy L. McCardell, then a staffer at Puck, informed Morrill Goddard, Sunday editor of The New York World, that he knew someone who could fit what was needed at the then-largest newspaper in America.

Richard F. Outcault (1863-1928) first introduced his street children strip in Truth #372, June 2, 1894, somewhat inspired by Michael Angelo Woolf's slum kids single panel cartoons in Life which had begun in the mid 1880s. The interested collector should seek out a copy of Woolf's Sketches of Lowly Life In A Great City (1899) listed in the Guide. It's also possible that Outcault's Hogan's Alley cast, including the Yellow Kid, was inspired by Charles W.

Saalgburg's The Ting Ling Kids, which began in the Chicago Inter-Ocean by May 1894. By 1895, Saalgburg was Art Director in charge of coloring for the new color printing press at the New York World. Edward Harrigan's play "O'Reilly and the Four Hundred," which had a song beginning with the words "Down in Hogan's Alley..." likely provided direct inspiration.

By the November 18, 1894 issue of the World, Outcault was working for Goddard and Saalgburg. Outcault produced a successful Sunday newspaper sequential comic strip in color with "The Origin of a New Species" on the back page in the World's first colored Sunday supplement. Long time pro Walt McDougall, a famous cartoonist reputed to have turned the 1884 Presidential race with a single cartoon that ran in the World, handled the cartoon art on the front page. Earlier, The World began running full page color single panels on May 21, 1893. McDougall did various other page panels during 1893, but it was Jan. 28, 1894 when the first sequence of comic pictures in a newspaper appeared in panels in the same format as our comic strips today. It was a full page cut up into nine panels. This historic sequence was drawn entirely in pantomime, with no words, by Mark Fenderson.

The Brownies in the Philippines by Palmer Cox - scarce original artwork from the chapter "The Brownies on Marinduque," page 142, Oct 1904. President Teddy Roosevelt is also pictured within these multitudes of Brownie madness which was a Cox "signature trademark." His stories are comic strip-oriented in nature of time sequence as he boldly took his Brownies around the world.

The second page to appear in panels was an eight panel strip from February 4, 1894, also lacking words except for the title. This page was a collaboration between Walt McDougall and Mark Fenderson titled "The Unfortunate Fate of a Well-Intentioned Dog." From then on, many full page color strips by McDougall and Fenderson appeared; they were the first cartoonists to draw for the Sunday newspaper comic section. It was Outcault, however, who soon became the most famous cartoonist featured. After first appearing in black and white in Pulitzer's The New York World on February 17, 1895 and again on March 10, 1895, The Yellow Kid was introduced to the public in color on May 5, 1895.

Some have erroneously reported in scholarly journals that perhaps it was Frank Ladendorff's "Uncle Reuben," first introduced May 26, 1895, which became the first regularly recurring Top: Walt McDougall & Mark Fenderson, the second American newspaper sequential comic strip, New York World, February 4, 1894, predates Yellow Kid in The World by over a year. comics character in newspapers. This is wrong, as even Outcault's "Yellow Kid" began in Pulitzer's paper a good three months before Uncle Reuben. Until firm evidence to the contrary comes to light, that honor will forever be enshrined with Jimmy Swinnerton's Little Bears cartoon characters, found all over inside Hearst's San Francisco Examiner as early as 1892. Though never actually a comic strip, they nonetheless were the earliest presently known recurring comics characters in American newspapers. There never was a strip titled Little Bears and Tigers, as the Tigers portion was strictly for New York consumption when Hearst ordered Swinnerton to move to the Big Apple to compete better in the brewing comic strip wars.

The Yellow Kid's importance is widely recognized today as the first newspaper comic strip to demonstrate without a doubt that the general public was ready for full color comics. The Yellow Kid was the first in the USA to show that (1), comics could increase newspaper sales, and that (2), comic characters could be merchandised. The Yellow Kid was the headlining spark of what was soon dubbed by Hearst as "eight pages of polychromatic effulgence that makes the rainbow look like a lead pipe."

Ongoing research suggests that Palmer Cox's fabulous success with The Brownies was a direct inspiration for Richard Outcault's future merchandising work. The ultimate proof lies in the fourth Yellow Kid cartoon, which appeared in the February 9, 1895 issue of Truth. It was reprinted in the New York World eight days later on February 17, 1895, becoming the first Yellow Kid cartoon in the newspapers. The caption read "FOURTH WARD BROWNIES. MICKEY, THE ARTIST (adding a finishing touch) Dere, Chimmy! If Palmer Cox wuz t' see yer, he'd git yer copyrighted in a minute." The Yellow Kid was widely licensed in the greater New York area for all kinds of products, including gum and cigarette cards, toys, pinbacks, cookies, postcards, tobacco products, and appliances. There was also a short-lived humor magazine from Street & Smith named The Yellow Kid, featuring exquisite Outcault covers, plus a 196-page comic book from Dillingham & Co. known as The Yellow Kid in

McFadden's Flats, dated to early 1897. In addition, there were several Yellow Kid plays produced, spawning other collectibles like show posters, programs and illustrated sheet music. (For those interested in more information regarding the Yellow Kid, it is available on the Internet at www.neponset.com/yellowkid/.)

Mickey Dugan burned brightly for a few years as Outcault secured a copyright on the character with the United States Government by Sept. 1896. By the time he completed the necessary paperwork, however, hundreds of business people nationwide had pirated the image of The Yellow Kid and plastered it all over every product imaginable; mothers were even dressing their newborns to look like Dugan. (Outcault, however, kept regularly utilizing images of The Yellow Kid in his comics style advertising work confirmed as late as 1915.) Outcault soon found himself in a maelstrom not of his choosing, which probably pushed him to eventually drop the character. Outcault's creation went back and forth between newspaper giants Pulitzer and Hearst until Bennett's New York Herald mercifully snatched the cartoonist away in 1900 to do what amounted to a few relatively short-run strips. Later, he did one particular strip for a year—a satire of rural Black America titled Pore Li'l Mose, and then his newer creation, Buster Brown, debuted May 4, 1902. Mose had a very rare comic book collection published in 1902 by Cupples & Leon, now highly sought after by today's savvy collectors. Outcault continued drawing him in the background of occasional Buster Brown strips for many years to come.

William Randolph Hearst loved the comic strip medium ever since he was a little boy growing up on Max & Moritz by Wilhelm Busch in American collected book editions translated from the original German (these collections were first published in book form in 1871, serving as the influence for The Katzenjammer Kids). One of the ways Hearst responded to losing Outcault in 1900 was by purchasing the highly successful 23-year-old humor magazine Puck from the heirs of founder Joseph Keppler. With Puck and its exclusive cartoonist contracts, he commanded, among others, the very popular F. M. Howarth and Frederick Burr Opper's undivided attention. Opper had first burst upon the comics scene in America back in 1880. Within a year Hearst had expanded this National Lampoon of its day into the colored Sunday comics section, Puck-The Comic Weekly. At first featuring Rudolph Dirk's The Katzenjammer Kids (1897), Happy Hooligan and other fine strips by the wildly popular Opper and a few others including Rudolph's brother Gus Dirks, the Hearst comic section steadily added more strips. For decades to come, there wasn't anything else that could compete with Puck. Hearst hired the best of the best and transformed Puck into the most popular comics section anywhere.

Outcault, meanwhile, followed in Palmer Cox's footprints a decade later by using the nexus of a World's Fair as a jumping off venue. Buster Brown was an instant sensation when he debuted as the new merchandising mascot of the Brown Shoe Company at the 1904 St. Louis World's Fair in a special Buster Brown Shoes pavilion. The character has the honor of being the first nationally licensed comic strip character in America. Many hundreds of different Buster Brown premiums have been issued. Comic books by Frederick A. Stokes Company featuring Buster Brown & His Dog Tige began as early as 1903 with Buster Brown and His Resolutions, simultaneously published in several different languages throughout the world.

After a few years, Buster and Outcault returned to Hearst in late 1905, joining what soon became the flagship of the comics world. Buster's popularity quickly spread all over the United States and then the world as he single-handedly spawned the first great comics licensing dynasty. For years, there were little people traveling from town to town performing as Buster Brown and selling shoes while accompanied by small dogs named Tige. Many other highly competitive licensed strips would soon follow. We suggest getting Hake's Price Guide to Character Toys for information on several hundred Buster Brown competitors, as well as several pages of the more fascinating Buster Brown material.

Soon there were many comic strip syndicates not only offering hundreds of various comic strips but also offering to license the characters for any company interested in paying the fee. The history of the comic strip with wide popularity

HUGO HERCULES MISSES THE FOOTBALL, BUT—

Beginning in late 1902, The Chicago Tribune introduced a straight super hero with obvious super strength called "Hugo Hercules" by the unknown artist J. Koerner. This Sunday strip ran until early 1903 and ran only in this one paper. It is entirely possible a very young Chicago-resident named Philip Wylie read "Hugo" since that was the same name he gave his super-heroic main character in his much-later book The Gladiator (1930). Other appearances have Hugo running with almost super speed.

since The Yellow Kid has been intertwined with giveaway premiums and character-based, store-bought merchandise of all kinds. Since its infancy as a profitable art form unto itself with The Yellow Kid, the comic strip world has profited from selling all sorts of "stuff" to the public featuring their favorite character or strip as its motif. American business gladly responded to the desire for comic character memorabilia with thousands of fun items to enjoy and collect. Most of the early comics were not aimed specifically at kids, though children understandably enjoyed them as well.

Comic books have generally been associated with almost all of the licensed merchandise in this century. In the Platinum Age section beginning right after this essay, you will find a great many comic books in varied formats and sizes published before the advent of the first successful monthly newsstand comic magazine, Famous Funnies. What drove each of these evolutionary format changes was the need by their producers to make money so more books could be issued.

A very significant format was F. M. Howarth's Funny Folks, published in 1899 by E. P. Dutton and drawn from color as well as black and white pages of Puck. This rather large hardcover volume measured 16 1/2" wide by 12" tall. It contains numerous sequential comic strip pages as well as single gag illustrations. Howarth's art was a joy to behold and deserves wider recognition.

By Oct. 1900, Hearst had already caused Oppen's Folks In Funnyville to be collected by publisher R. H. Russell, NY in a 12x9 hard cover format from his New York Journal American Humorist section. At the end of 1900, Carl Shultze had a first edition of Vaudevilles and Other Things

Katzenjammer Kids #1, 1902,
by Rudolph Dirks was inspired by Wilhelm Busch.

Happy Hooligan Book #1, 1902,
by Frederick Oppen, was wildly popular.

Katzenjammer Kids #2 by Rudolph Dirks. These Katz Kids have the longest running strip in America.

The second Happy Hooligan comic book, 1903, by Frederick Oppen set a high standard.

Originally discovered listed for sale in a 1906 Lockwood Art School brochure, the existences of The Naughty Adventures of Vivacious Mr. Jack and Alphonse and Gaston New Edition 1903 were recently verified. So far only one copy of each is known to exist. We ask collectors who might have one of these to contact the authors.

published by Isaac H. Blanchard Co., NY. It measures 10 1/2" wide by 13" tall with 22 pages including covers. Each interior page is a 2 to 7 panel comic strip with lots of color.

There were also recently unearthed format variation second and third printings of Vaudevilles with the inscription "From the Originator of the 'Foxy Grandpa' Series" at the bottom of its front cover of the third printing. This note is lacking on the earlier first two editions, and it also switches format size to 11" tall by 13" wide. Discovered last year was a heretofore undocumented The Adventures of Foxy Grandpa - also issued in 1900 - new to the Platinum listings. The second number dated 1901 drops the words "The Adventures of..." from the title.

E. W. Kemble's The Blackberries had a color collection by 1901, also published by R. H. Russell, NY, as well as a few other comic-related volumes by Kemble still to be unearthed and properly identified. An earlier one was titled Coontown's 400 (1899) newly listed this year. While the title is definitely not "PC" by today's standards, Kemble's drawings are excellent slices of African-American life in the USA with some humor injected. Kemble did a good job documenting aspects of life.

Confirmed is the exact format of Hearst's 1902 The Katzenjammer Kids and Happy Hooligan And His Brother Gloomy Gus. They both measure 15 5/16" wide by 10" tall and contain 88 pages including covers. Confirmed also is the fact that there are two separate editions with different covers for the pictured 1902 first edition and a 1903

Frederick Stokes edition of Katzenjammer Kids and Happy Hooligan with differing contents. They both are two different books entirely, and what confuses many collectors is that they have identical indicia title pages, as does an entirely different KK from 1905.

Settling on a popular size of 17" wide by 11" tall, comic books were soon available that featured Charles "Bunny" Schultze's Foxy Grandpa, Rudolph Dirk's The Katzenjammer Kids, Winsor McCay's Little Sammy Sneeze, Rarebit Fiend and Little Nemo, and Fred Opper's Happy Hooligan and Maud, in addition to dozens of Buster Brown comic books. For well over a decade, these large-size, full-color volumes were the norm, retailing for 60¢. These collections offered full-size Sunday comics with the back side blank per page.

The very rare Brainy Bowers and Drowsy Dugan by R. W. Taylor is now crowned the first collection of strip reprints from daily newspapers published in America. There are now four different collections of Brainy Bower known to exist.

The Outbursts of Everett True by A. D. Condo and J. W. Raper was first published by Saalfeld in 1907 in a 88-page hard-cover collection. It qualifies as the second daily comic strip collection as it predates the first Mutt & Jeff collection from Ball by three years. Condo & Raper's creation began its regular run several times a week in 1905 daily newspapers and lasted until 1927, when Condo became too sick to continue. This same Everett True collection was later truncated a bit by Saalfeld in 1921 to 56 strips in just 32 pages measuring the standard 10"x10" Cupples & Leon size.

By 1908 Stokes had a large backlist of full color comic books for sale at 60¢ each. Some of these titles date back to 1903 and were reprinted over and over as demand warranted. Note the number of titles in the advertisement pulled from the back of The Three Fun Makers shown below.

With the ever-increasing popularity of Bud Fisher's new daily strip sensation, Mutt & Jeff, a new format was created for reprinting daily strips in black and white, a hardcover book about 15" wide by 5" tall, published by Ball starting in 1910 for five volumes. In 1912, Ball also branched out with at least the now-obscure Doings of the Van Loons by Fred I. Leipziger, a rare comic book in the same format as the Mutt & Jeffs.

Cartoons Magazine also began in 1912 and ran through 1921 before undergoing a radical format change. It is notable as a wonderful source for information on early comics and their creators. See also the Platinum index.

The next significant evolutionary change occurred in 1919, when Cupples & Leon began issuing their black and white daily strip reprint books in a new aforementioned format, about 10" wide by 10" tall, with four panels reprinted per page in a two by two matrix. These books were 52 pages for 25¢. The first ones featured Bringing Up Father and Mutt & Jeff; there were about 100 others.

By 1921, the last of the oblong (11"x15") color comic books were issued, with Cupples & Leon's Jimmie Dugan and The Reg'lar Fellers by Gene Byrne and EmBee's The Trouble Of Bringing Up Father by self publisher George McManus. Of special historical interest, Embee issued the first 10¢ monthly comic book, Comic Monthly, with a first issue dated January 1922. A dozen 8-1/2"x9" issues were published, each featuring solo adventures of popular King Features strips. The monthly 10¢ comic book concept had finally arrived, though it would be more than a decade before it became truly successful.

Skippy by Percy Crosby debuted in the long-running humor magazine Life in the March 22, 1923 issue. By 1924 the first hard cover collection, Life Presents Skippy, was published. The newspaper comic strip debuted June 23, 1925 with the McClure syndicate. Hearst soon picked up a Sunday page a year later in mid-1926, then added a daily strip in 1929. By the 1930s it was red hot - think Calvin & Hobbes or Peanuts in popularity. In its day, it was one of the most popular comic strips ever created. Read the Modern era essay for more on Skippy's immense popularity.

In 1926, Cupples & Leon added a new 7" wide by 9" tall format with Little Orphan Annie, Smitty, and others. These were issued in both softcover and hardcover editions with dust jackets, and became extremely popular at 60¢ per copy.

Dell began publishing all original material in The Funnies in late 1929 in a larger tabloid format. At least three dozen issues were published before Delacorte threw in the towel. Even the extremely popular Big Little Book, introduced in 1932, can be viewed as a smaller version of the existing formats. The competition amongst publishers now included Dell, McKay, Sonnet, Saalfeld and Whitman. The 1930s saw a definite shift in merchandising comic strip material from adults to children. This was the decade when Kellogg's placed Buck Rogers on the map, and when Ovaltine issued tons of Little Orphan Annie material. Merchandising from such pioneers as Sam Gold and Kay Kamen spearheaded this next re-transformation of the comics biz beginning in the early 1930s.

COLLECTOR'S NOTE: The books listed in this section were published many decades before organized comics fandom began archiving and helping to preserve these fragile popular culture artifacts. Consequently, copies of most of these comics do not often surface in Fine+ or better shape. eBay is proving that many items once considered rare actually are not, though they are in higher grades. Most Platinum Age comic books are in the Fair to VG range. If you want to collect these only in high grade, your collection will be extremely small. The prices given for Good, Fine and Very Fine categories are for strictly graded editions. If you need help grading your item, we refer you to the grading section in the front of book or contact the authors of the Platinum essay. Items marked scarce we are trying to ascertain how many copies might still be in existence. Your input is always welcome.

For ease of ascertaining the contents of each item of this listing, there is a code letter or two following most titles. A helpful list of categories pertaining to these codes can be found at the beginning of the Victorian Age pricing. Most measurements are in inches. A few measurements are in centimeters. The first dimension given is Height and the second is Width. This section created, revised, and expanded by Robert Beerbohm with Doug Wheeler & Richard Olson and able assistance from Ray Agricola, Bill Blackbeard, Roy Bonario, Ray Bottorff Jr., Chris Brown, Alfredo Castelli, Darrell Coons, Sol Davidson, Leonardo De Sa, Scott Deschaine, Mitchell Duval, Joe Evans, Tom Gordon, Bruce Hamilton, Andy Konkkyru, Don Kurtz, Gabriel Laderman, Bruce Mason, Donald Puff, Robert Quesinberry, Steve Rowe, Randy Scott, John Snyder, Art Spiegelman, Steve Thompson, Joan Crosby Tibbets, Richard Samuel West, Richard Wright and Craig Yoe.

Also describes his experience visiting Chicago to speak out against Capone, his concerns over the evils of Prohibition, and the economy prior to the 1929 crash. # The Golden Age and Beyond

The American Comic Book: 1938-Present

THE MODERN COMICS MAGAZINE SUPPLANTS THE EARLIER FORMATS

by Robert L. Beerbohm & Richard D. Olson, PhD ©2005

(This article series was originally created by Robert Beerbohm and Richard Olson for OCBPG #27 1997 and is revised annually.)

Although somewhat similar in appearance to comic books of the Golden Age of the superhero, the varied formats that comic publishing pioneer Cupples & Leon popularized beginning in 1919 are quite different in appearance from today's comics. Even so, the books and those formats were consistently successful until the early 1930s, when they had to compete against The Great Depression; the Depression eventually won. One major reason for a format change was that at a cost of 25¢ per book for the 10" x 10" cardboard style and 60¢ for the 7" x 8 1/2" dustjacketed hardcovers, the price became increasingly prohibitive for most consumers already stifled by the crushed economy. As a result, all Cupples & Leon style books published between 1929-1935 are much rarer than their earlier counterparts because most Americans had little money to spend after paying for necessities like food and shelter.

By the early 1930s, the era of the Prestige Format black & white reprint comic book was over. In 1932-33 a lot of format variations arose, collecting such newspaper strips as Bobby Thatcher, Bringing Up Father, Buck Rogers, Dick Tracy, Happy Hooligan, Joe Palooka, The Little King, Little Orphan Annie, Mickey Mouse, Moon Mullins, Mutt & Jeff, Smitty, Tailspin Tommy, Tarzan, Thimble Theater starring Popeye, Tillie the Toiler, Winnie Winkle, and the Highlights of History series.

There had been Embee's Comic Monthly's dozen issues in 1922, and several dozen of Dell & Eastern's The Funnies tabloid in 1929-30. It contained only original material and still failed.

It has been recently discovered that Eastern Color and Dell were also co-partners in The Funnies. It is possible that Eastern came up with the idea and Delecorte agreed to publish it for general standalone distribution. Similar format Sunday sections of the same material have been discovered by comics historian Ken Barker to be published at the same time in the Montreal Standard, a Canadian newspaper; it appears to have been an effort to get a new comics syndicate off the ground. The effort was not too successful as The Standard dropped the sections after just a few months. Allan Holtz went through the E&P yearbooks and found that this section (presumably a preprint) was advertised from 1930-34 by Eastern Color Printing out of New York City. This is a re-discovery of important magnitude as it pushes back the time known for Eastern Color Printing Company and Dell Publishing Company to be partners by four years into late 1928. They had almost discovered the winning formula which has ruled the format of comic books in America for the last 70 years. Unfortunately, it would be another four years before they successfully figured it out.

With the 1933 newsstand appearance of Humor's Detective Dan, Adventures of Detective Ace King, Bob Scully, Two Fisted Hick Detective, and possibly the still undiscovered but definitely advertised Happy Mulligan, these little understood original-material comic books were the direct inspiration for Jerry Siegel and Joe Shuster to transform their fanzine's evil character The Superman from Science Fiction #3 (January 1933) into a comic strip that would stand as a watershed heroic mark in American pop culture. The stage was set for a new frontier. With another format change including four colors, page counts beginning at 32 (soon hitting a whopping 68), and a hefty price reduction (starting for free as promotional premiums due to the nationwide numbing effects of worldwide deflation), the birthing pangs of the modern American comic book occurred in late 1932. Created out of desperation, to keep the printing presses rolling, the modern American comic book was born when a 45-year-old sales manager for Eastern Color Printing Company of New York reinvented the format from the failed tabloid The Funnies.

Harry I. Wildenberg's job was to come up with ideas that would sell color printing for Eastern, a company which also printed the comic sections for a score of newspapers along the eastern seaboard, including the Boston Globe, the Brooklyn Times, the Providence Journal, and the Newark Ledger. Downtime meant less take-home pay, so Wildenberg was always racking his brains for something to fit the color presses. He was fascinated by the miles of funny sheets which rolled off Eastern's presses each week, and he constantly sought new ways to exploit their commercial possibilities. If the funny papers were this popular, he reasoned, they should prove a good advertising medium. He decided to suggest a comics tabloid to a client.

Gulf Oil Company liked the idea and hired a few artists to create an original comic called Gulf Comic Weekly. The comic was dated April 1933 and was 10 1/2" x 15". It was the first comic to be advertised nationally on the radio beginning April 30th. Its first artists were Stan Schendel doing The Uncovered Wagon, Victor doing Curly and the Kids, and Svess on a strip named Smileage. All were full page, full color comic strips. Wildenberg promptly had Eastern print this four page comic, making it probably the first tabloid newsprint comic published for American distribution outside of a newspaper in the 20th Century. Wildenberg and Gulf were astonished when the tabloids were grabbed up as fast as Gulf service stations could offer them. Distribution shot up to 3,000,000 copies a week after Gulf changed the name to Gulf Funny Weekly with its 5th issue. The series remained a tabloid until early 1939 & ran for 422 issues until May 23, 1941.

Recent research has also turned up "new" rediscovered comics material from other oil companies from this same time span of 1933-34. Perhaps spurred by the runaway success of Gulf Funny Weekly, these other oil companies found they had to compete with licensed comic strip material of their own in order to remain profitable. The authors of this essay are actively soliciting help in uncovering more information regarding the following: There are at least 14 issues each of at least an A and a B series of a four page tabloid-size full color comics giveaway titled Standard Oil

Detective Dan Secret Op. #48, Bob Scully The Two Fisted Hick Detective & The Adventures of Detective Ace King, early 1933, Humor Publishing Co. This earliest Superman was never published.

Comics, dating from 1933. The issues seen so far contain Fred Oppen's Si & Mirandi, an older couple who interact with perennial favorites, Happy Hooligan & Maud the Mule, drawn by the grand old master himself, Frederick Oppen, who had been a professional cartoonist for over 60 years by this time.

Other strips include Pesty And His Pop & Smiling Slim by Sid Hicks. Considering the concept of Gulf Funny Weekly has been well known for decades while Standard Oil Comics remains virtually unknown, our guess is Gulf Comic Weekly began first and ran many years longer than Rockefeller's version.

Beginning with the March-April 1934 issue of Shell Globe (V4 #2), characters from Bud Fisher (Mutt & Jeff) and Fontaine Fox (Toonerville Folks) were licensed to sell gas & oil for this company. 52,000 eight foot standees were made for Fisher's Mutt and Jeff and Fox's Powerful Katrinka and The Skipper for placement around 13,000 Shell gas stations. Augmenting them was an army of 250,000 miniature figures of the same characters. In addition, more than 1,000,000 play masks were given away to children along with more than 285,000 window stickers. If that wasn't enough, hundreds of thousands of 3x5 foot posters featuring these characters were released in conjunction with twenty-four sheet outdoor billboards. Radio announcements of this promotion began running April 7th, 1934. It is presently unknown if Shell had a comics tabloid created to give away to customers.

The idea for creating an actual comic book as we know it today, however, did not occur to Wildenberg until later in 1933, when he said he was idly folding a newspaper in halves, then in quarters. As he looked at the twice-folded paper, it occurred to him that it was a convenient book size (actually it was late stage "Dime Novel" size, which companies like Street & Smith were pumping out). The format had its heyday from the 1880s through the 1910s, having been invented by the firm of Beadle and Adam in 1860 in more of a digest format. According to a 1942 article by Max Gaines (née Ginzberg), another contributing factor in the development of the format was an inspection of a promotional folder published by the Ledger Syndicate, in which four-color Sunday comic pages were printed in 7"x9".

According to a 1949 interview with Wildenberg, he thought "why not a comic book? It would have 32 or 64 pages and make a fine item for concerns which distribute premiums." All they did at Eastern Color that one fateful day is fold a tabloid newspaper format down to "dime novel" size running full color throughout on most of the comic strips, then staple it, and they hit upon their winning formula.

But they did not yet know this...as we will find out.

Working for Eastern Color at this same time were quite a few future legends of the comics business, such as Max Gaines, Lev Gleason and a fellow named Harold Moore (all sales staff directly underneath the supervision of Wildenberg), Sol Harrison as a color separator, and George Dougherty Sr. as a printer.

Janosik, Wildenberg, Gaines, Gleason and crew obtained publishing rights to certain Associated, Bell, Fisher, McNaught and Public Ledger Syndicate comics, had an artist make up a few dummies by hand. The sales staff then walked them around to their biggest prospects. Wildenberg received a telegram from Proctor & Gamble for an order of a million copies for a 32-page color comic magazine called Funnies on Parade. The entire print run was given away in just a few weeks in the Spring of 1933. Most copies no longer exist and it is now hard to find. All of them worked on the Funnies on Parade project. Morris Margolis was brought in from Charlton in Derby, Connecticut to solve binding problems centered on getting the pages in proper numerical sequence on that last fold to "modern" comic book size. Most of them were infected with the comics bug for most of the rest of their lives.

The success of Funnies on Parade quickly led to Eastern publishing additional giveaway books in the same format by late 1933, including the 32-page Famous Funnies A

The latter became the first "new" format comic book about a single character. Out of all the comic strips on the market in 1933, Eastern Color's growing comics market as devised by Harry Wildenberg, M.C. Gaines and Lev Gleason chose the Percy Crosby creation in Skippy's Own Book of Comics to be its first standalone title. This first solo effort in their new 52-page newsprint Funnies on Parade format had an initial print run of half a million, as did their 100-pager.

The idea that anyone would pay for them seemed fantastic to Wildenberg, so Max Gaines stickered ten cents on several dozen of the latest premium, Famous Funnies A Carnival of Comics, as a test, and talked a couple newsstands into participating in this experiment. The copies sold out over the weekend and newsies asked for more.

Eastern sales staffers then approached Woolworth's. The late Oscar Fitz-Alan Douglas, sales brains of Woolworth, showed some interest, but after several months of deliberation decided the book would not give enough value for ten cents. Kress, Kresge, McCrory, and several other dime stores turned them down even more abruptly. Wildenberg next went to George Hecht, editor of Parents Magazine, and tried to persuade him to run a comic supplement or publish a "higher level" comic magazine. Hecht also frowned on the idea.

In Wildenberg's 1949 interview, he noted that "even the comic syndicates couldn't see it. 'Who's going to read old comics?' they asked." With the failures of EmBee's Comic Monthly (1922) and Dell's The Funnies (1929) still fresh in some minds, no one could see why children would pay ten cents for a comic magazine when they could get all they wanted for free in a Sunday newspaper. But Wildenberg had become convinced that children as well as grown-ups were not getting all the comics they wanted in the Sunday papers; otherwise, the Gulf Comic Weekly and the premium comics would not have met with such success. Wildenberg said, "I decided that if boys and girls were willing to work for premium coupons to obtain comic books, they might be willing to pay ten cents on the newsstands." This conviction was also strengthened by Max Gaines' ten cent sticker experiment.

George Janosik, the president of Eastern Color, then called on George Delacorte to form another 50-50 joint venture to publish and market a comic book "magazine" for retail sales as they did with The Funnies just a few years previously, but this time American News turned them down cold. The magazine monopoly remembered the abortive The Funnies from just a few years before. After much discussion on how to proceed, Delacorte finally agreed to publish it and a partnership was formed. Feeling cautious, they printed 40,000 copies for distribution to a few chain stores who agreed to try it out. Known today as Famous Funnies Series One, it clocks in at 68 pages, with half its pages coming from reprints of the reprints in Funnies on Parade and half from Famous Funnies A Carnival of Comics. It is the scarcest issue.

With 68 full-color pages at only ten cents a piece, it sold out in thirty days with not a single returned copy. Delacorte refused to print a second edition. "Advertisers won't use it," he complained. "They say it's not dignified enough." The profit, however, was approximately $2,000. This particular edition is the rarest of all these early Eastern comic book experiments.

In early 1934, while riding the train, another Eastern Color employee named Harold A. Moore read an account from a prominent New York newspaper that indicated they owed much of their circulation success to their comics section. Mr. Moore went back to Harry Gold, President of American News, with the article in hand. He succeeded in acquiring a print order for 250,000 copies for a proposed monthly comics magazine. In May 1934, Famous Funnies #1 (with a July cover date) hit the newsstands with Steven O. Douglass as its only editor (even though Harold Moore was listed as such in #1) until it ceased publication some twenty years later. It was a 64-page version of the 32-page giveaways, and more importantly, it still sold for a dime! The first issue lost $4,150.60. Ninety percent of the copies sold out and a second issue dated September debuted in July. From then on, the comic book was published monthly. Famous Funnies also began carrying original material, apparently as early as the second issue. With #3, Buck Rogers took center stage and stayed there for the next twenty years, with covers by Frank Frazetta towards the end of the run—some of his best comics work ever.

Delacorte got cold feet and sold back his interest to Eastern, even though the seventh issue cleared a profit of $2,664.25. Wildenberg emphasized that Eastern could make a manufacturer's profit by printing its own books as well as the publishing profits once it was distributed. Every issue showed greater sales than the preceding one, until within a year, close to a million 64-page books were being sold monthly at ten cents apiece; Eastern received the lion's share of the receipts, and soon found it was netting $30,000 per issue. The comic syndicates received $640 ($10 a page) for publishing rights. Original material could be obtained from budding professionals for just $5 a page. According to Will Eisner in R. C. Harvey's The Art of the Comic Book, the prices then paid for original material had a long range effect of keeping creator wages low for years.

Initially, Eastern's experiment was eyed with skepticism by the publishing world, but within a year or so after Famous Funnies was nonchalantly placed on sale alongside slicker magazines like Atlantic Monthly or Harper's, at least five other competitors tried this brand new format.

However, one other abortive periodical comics experiment was launched over dated a full two months before the highly successful newsstand Famous Funnies format would have an important influence on a chain of events which led ultimately to Superman being published.

Comic Cuts #1, May 19, 1934, debuted published by H.L. Baker Co., Inc., 195 Main St, Buffalo, New York with editorial and executive offices at 381 Fourth St, NYC, same address as ULTEM (Centaur) acquired the backing of S-M News Co., Inc. as their distributor. Most distributors back then functioned on many important levels. It was common practice for the distributor back then to front the funds to pay the paper company and the printer, collecting the revenue from the 900 I.D. distributors located around the country after months of on-sale time, then paying the publisher.

In late 1934, army officer/diplomat turned pulp writer turned publisher Major Wheeler-Nicholson (1890-1968) formed the under-funded National Allied Publishing which introduced New Fun #1 (Feb 1935) at almost tabloid-size. New Fun was also distributed by S-M News. It is entirely possible Wheeler-Nicholson somehow convinced them he could produce a superior "home-grown" package as the imported strips were not selling well. New Fun was basically the same as Comic Cuts while also containing all original USA material such as carried in The Funnies (1929-30) from Dell/Eastern. Coulton Waugh speculated in his 1947 history book The Comics on page 342: "...The Major had gone back to the 1929 idea of The Funnies, for the contents of New Fun were original material. (It should be recorded here that original art work had appeared in a one-color book called

Detective Dan..."

However, Lloyd Jacquet, a person definitely in a position to know better, wrote as Chapter One of a proposed "History of the Comic Book" in 1957, "When Major Malcolm Wheeler-Nicholson set up his card table and chair in an eleventh floor office of the Hathaway Building in New York that Fall of 1934, these most modest beginnings sparked off what can rightly be called the 'comic book era.' When he came back to the U.S. after his last stay abroad, he looked over the American newsstand, and thought that the European juvenile weekly papers, with their picture-story continuities, their colorful illustrations, and their low price would appeal to the American boys and girls in the same way. He knew that those European publications were made up of new material, specially drawn and produced for each little magazine. He also knew that the American presentation of such material would have to be different, and merely importing, or translating European produced features for republication here was not the answer. This was about the time I joined with him in his project. It was still embryonic, but beginning to take form under Nicholson's direction. We were in the depression then, & it was not too difficult to secure writers and artists - but it was a task to instruct them as to exactly what was wanted. We finally rounded up a small but gifted group of creative people, and we produced our first issue of a monthly magazine composed of original features and material, and which was called, simply, "FUN."

Around this same time in late 1934, M.C. Gaines left Eastern Color moving over to the McClure Newspaper Syndicate to become their manager of their Color Printing Department. He immediately went to work convincing clients to introduced the new comics formats known as the Big Little Book and the Big Big Book. The BLB and BBB formats would go toe-to-toe with Eastern's creation throughout the 1930s, but Eastern would win out with their new comics magazine format.

The very last 10" x 10" comic books pioneered by Cupples & Leon were published by the David McKay Publishing Company around mid-1935. Around this same time the Major published his 2nd comic book in which the editorial mentions amongst other exciting stories they were going to be showcasing the adventures of "hero supermen of the days to come."

By late 1935, Max Gaines (with his youthful assistant Sheldon Mayer) reached a business agreement with George Delacorte (who was re-entering the comic book business a third time) and McClure Syndicate (a growing newspaper comic strip enterprise) to be come editor of reprint newspaper comic strips in Popular Comics.

Also by late '35, Lev Gleason, another pioneer who participated in mercantiling Funnies on Parade and the early

In 1939 he would begin publishing his own titles starting with Silver Streak, created by the comics genius, Jack Cole, best known for Plastic Man. Gleason later created the crime comic book as a separate popular genre by 1942 with Crime Does Not Pay with a long run until 1955.

Wheeler-Nicholson introduced the concept of "the annual" into this new format with Big Book of Fun Comics #1 cover dated March 1936. It featured reprints from his earlier efforts in New Fun #1-5 as he struggled to make a go of it.

Industry giant King Features introduced King Comics #1 cover dated April 1936 through publisher David McKay, with Ruth Plumly Thompson as editor. McKay had already been issuing various format comic books with King Feature characters for a few years, including Mickey Mouse, Henry, Popeye and Secret Agent X-9, wherein Dashiell Hammett received cover billing and Alex Raymond was listed inside simply as "illustrator." McKay readily adapted to trying several formats. Soon many young comic book illustrators were copying Raymond.

The next month, William Cook & John Mahon, former disgruntled employees of Major Wheeler-Nicholson, issued their first issue of Comics Magazine #1 in May 1936.

This was followed by Henle Publishing issuing Wow What

The company would eventually be known historically as Centaur Comics, and serve as the subject of endless debate among fan historians regarding their earliest origins as to who the owners were, where they came from and where they went.

Dell issued the second western genre comic book titled Western Action Thrillers #1 in April 1937. It was ten cents for one hundred pages as well as 100 Pages of Comics 101, containing Big Little Book art reworked back into sequential comics.

Harry 'A' Chesler jumped ship from the Major, issuing his first comic books with Star Comics and Star Ranger Funnies, dated Feb 1937. Later that year, he sold these two titles to Ultem while remaining editor, and his newly set up art shop supplied contents. He then began Feature Funnies #1 in Oct. 1937, headlining Joe Palooka, at one time the #1 newspaper comic strip in America. Issue #2 sported a Rube Goldberg cover while #3 contains "Hawk of the Sea," Will Eisner's first work for what would soon become the Quality Comics Group when Everett "Busy" Arnold bought the company. Feature Funnies #3 also contains the first appearance of The Clock by George Brenner - the first costumed comic book hero.

titles out of the starting block. In late 1937 the Major began stumbling when he couldn't pay his printing bill to Harry Donenfeld. In recent interviews, Harry's son, Irwin, who as a 12-year old read the original art to the first issue of Action Comics #1 and Detective Comics #27 said "in 1932 my father and Paul Sampliner started Independent News with Liebowitz as the accountant. The company was begun with Paul Sampliner's mother's money. If it hadn't been for her investments into building the distribution as well as purchasing color printing presses, there might never have been a DC Comics....My father took over Wheeler-Nicholson's company with the Major's books literally on the printing presses. Harry had to absorb debt that could not otherwise be paid." Irwin told this writer "my dad did not originally willingly enter the comics business..."

Comics #1 was published with a cover date of June 1938, and the first Golden Age of superhero comics had begun. Early in 1938 at McClure Syndicate, Max Gaines and Shelly Mayer showed editor Vin Sullivan a many times rejected sample strip. Sullivan then talked Donenfeld, Paul Sampliner and Jack Liebowitz into publishing Jerry Siegel & Joe Shuster's creation of "The Last Son of Krypton." This was followed in 1939 by a lucrative partnership for Gaines beginning with Harry Donenfeld as the All-American Comics Group.

were some of the highest Holy Grails of collecting, but no more even though they contain fantastic art & story.

Today's marketplace dictates super heroes command the highest prices and are seemingly the most desirable. Maybe one day that pendulum will swing once again as there have been many years since they were introduced when super heroes almost disappeared completely from the racks.

The Atomic/Romance Age debuted with a bang by early 1946, revamping the industry once again as circulations soon hit their all-time highs with well over 1.3 billion periodical issues sold a year by the consignment honor system. By the early 1950s one in three periodicals sold in the USA was a comic book. 90% of all children admitted they read and enjoyed comics. There were dozens of genres being published. There were comic books for every taste and style. Hundreds of titles were being issued every month.

For many readers, the pinnacle was reached with the "New Trend" Entertaining Comics (E.C.) began delivering to the newsstands in 1950. The company still has a large following even today - a testament to its emphasis on quality art & story.

Comic book publishers glutted the market place by 1952-53. The attacks on comics begun the late 1940s came back anew in 1954 brought on by over-zealous church people and district attorneys with an agenda.

This continued until the advent of the self-censoring, industry-stifling Comics Code, created in response to a public outcry spearheaded by Dr. Frederic Wertham's tirade against the American comics industry, published as a book titled Left, Crime Detective #9, July 1948. Some say the tied-up figure represents Dr. Fredric Wertham following his earliest attacks on the crime comic book. Hillman joined the first Code. Middle, Justice Traps the Guilty #56, Nov. 1953. The S&K studio placed themselves in the spotlight, with a pretty mother pointing out Joe Simon as the tall, dastardly ring-leader. Jack Kirby is on the right end. Right, Thing #15, Apr. 1954. Ditko wreaks havoc on a world rising against comics as a giant worm eats Brooklyn in one of the most gruesome titles created. His early work is intense.

Left, By the early 1950s, Carl Barks increased the circulation of Walt Disney's C&S to over 4 million per issue & in 1952 his creation, Uncle Scrooge, got his own book, selling over a million an issue through the '50s while superheroes slumbered. Middle, Harvey Kurtzman created Mad Comics #1, 1952, as the comics industry went in an entirely "New" Direction and has directly inspired countless comics creators for years. Right, Showcase #4, Sept. 1956, the superhero revival starts a year after the Code, though it was three years before the Flash earned his own title once again.

Seduction of the Innocent, which removed crime and horror comic books from the marketplace. Some of them were quite gruesome; however in his last book, The World of Fanzines, Wertham exhonerated comics fans for misinterpreting his data more than 20 years previous.

It took a year or two to recover from that moralistic assault, with many historians speculating the Silver Age of Superheroes began with the publication of Showcase #4 in 1956. Others point to the 1952 successful releases of Kurtzman's MAD #1 and Bark's Uncle Scrooge 4C 386 as true Silver, since those titles soon broke the "million sold per issue" mark when the rest of the comic book industry was reeling from the effects of the public uproar fueled by Wertham. Within the Silver Era the term Bronze Age has been stated by some to begin when the Code approved newsstand comic book industry raised its standard cover price from 12 to 15 cents and Jack Kirby left Marvel for DC. As circulations plummeted after the Batman TV craze wore off by 1968 and the ensuing superhero glut withered on the stands, out in the Bay Area cartoonist Robert Crumb's creator-owned Zap Comics #1 appeared in Feb 1968, printed by Charles Plymell & Don Donahue on a small printing press. Soon after in Chicago, Jay Lynch and Skip Williamson brought out Bijou Funnies, Gilbert Shelton self-published Feds 'N' Heads while still in Austin, Texas, with Print Mint reprinting it almost immediately & Crumb let S. Clay Wilson, Victor Moscoso & Rick Griffin into Zap #2.

As originally published by the Print Mint beginning with #2 in 1968, Zap Comics almost single-handedly spawned an industry with tremendous growth in alternative comix running through the 1970s. During this decade the San Left, Brave & Bold #28, Feb/Mar. 1960, gathered together the revived DC heroes, further expanding the resurging super hero market DC Comics ushered in. Middle, Fantastic Four #1, Nov. 1962, began the revitalization of Martin Goodman's moribund Marvel Comics Group, directly inspired by the success of the JLA's own regular series begun 2 years earlier in late 1960. Right, Amazing Fantasy #15, Aug. 1962, introduced the Amazing Spider-Man, created almost completely by Steve Ditko with some assists from Stan Lee and Jack Kirby, which revolutionized the way comic book stories could be told.

Left, Zap Comics #1, Plymell first printing, Feb. 1968, was the “direct” inspiration for the earliest successful origins of the Direct Market and has sold over a million copies. Most issues have been continuously in print for over 30 years. High grade first printings have sold for over $4500. Middle, soon afterwards Gilbert Shelton brought Feds ‘N’ Heads to Print Mint and later joined Zap. It has sold for $1000. Right, famed poster artist Rick Griffin edited his own comic book, Tales From the Tube in 1973, with most of the Zap crew joining him. It currently brings over $200 in NM high grade.

Francisco Bay Area was an intense hotbed of comix being issued without a comics code “seal of approval” from companies such as Rip Off Press, Last Gasp, San Francisco Comic Book Company, Company & Sons, Weirandom Publications, Star*Reach, and Comics & Comix. Kitchen Sink prospered for many years in Wisconsin and many small press comix publishers scattered across the USA and Canada - all of whom created the Direct Sales Market. There were hundreds of people involved with an independent mind producing & distributing alternative underground comix, creating the direct market. Phil Seuling introduced DC, Marvel and Warren to this already developed for five years, San Francisco Bay Area-based, comix business system as a “new” way of selling comics in late 1973, acknowledged by Phil himself in his last interview in Will Eisner’s Quarterly #3, Summer 1984.

After DC and Marvel joined the DM in a serious way in 1979, the last 20 years have generally been called the “Modern Age”, although there are hints of a new age emerging since the mid-’90s. The jury is still out on naming it.

The comic book store as an industry came into its own in the 1980s. Thousands of fans & entrepreneurs opened stores, fulfilling a life’s dream for many of them - fueled by a vibrant speculator’s market which lasted until the early 1990s, its last hurrah being when DC “killed” Superman in 1992. The comic book marketplace has been rebuilding ever since. Much of that growth has been outside the super hero genre.

In each of the preceding eras, however, the secret for collectors has remained the same: buy what you enjoy. We did, and we are still collectors today!

Left, Conan #1, Oct. 1970, by Roy Thomas and Barry Windsor-Smith introduced the sword & sorcery genre. Middle, StarReach #1, April 1974, published by Mike Friedrich, was the first comic book directed specifically at comic book stores. Right, Giant-Size X-Men #1, Summer, 1975, introduced the new X-team, which later on revolutionized the comic book store system with its phenomenal sales once Chris Claremont and John Byrne teamed up on the title.

The correct title listing for each comic book can be determined by consulting the indicia (publication data) on the beginning interior pages of the comic. The official title is determined by those words of the title in capital letters only, and not by what is on the cover. Titles are listed in this book as if they were one word, ignoring spaces, hyphens, and apostrophes, to make finding titles easier. Exceptions are made in rare cases. Comic books listed should be assumed to be in color unless noted "B&W".
